That prodigal instant lather—how men appreciate it

Lightly fragrant, fine-textured, lasting, Lux Toilet Form comes in its lavender and white wrapper ready for your personal use. It is "un vrai savon condensé" for the entire family's toilet and bath

PLEASE, please make us a new soap—a different soap," women wrote us. "Something as exquisite as the French soaps we pay such absurd prices for."

"Make us a soap for personal use we can adore as we adore them," they asked. "A soap that will caress our delicate skin as imported soaps do."

And—because the makers of Lux are known all over Europe and the world, as the world's largest makers of soap—we were able to.

We made Lux Toilet Form!

And then when women had used it—we asked them what they thought of Lux Toilet Form.

"I adore it—it's so smooth and firm and lasting—just like French soap." Ah yes—for Lux Toilet Form is made by the very method France uses for her finest toilet soaps. This makes Lux Toilet Form "un vrai savon condensé"—firm, delicious, lasting.

"Its lather is so soft and delicious—it leaves my skin so soft and fresh—luxurious feeling." Assuredly—the French method gives to Lux Toilet Form that instant magic lather that leaves your skin refreshed and satin smooth. It gives that intangible, but oh, so real feeling of luxuriousness—the same feeling that has made you willing to pay 50c—75c—$1.00 for imported soaps.

"The fragrance is delicious—wonderful—delicate," women enthuse. "Un vrai savon parfumé." It was a European perfume expert who determined Lux Toilet Form's delicate fragrance.

"It's so wonderful for the bath, too—my husband loves it—the moment it's wet you get such lather." Ah, that was what you wanted, fastidious, charming women—an exquisite soap you could use for everything and not feel wickedly extravagant. A true "savon de toilette" for all the family.

"And that darling lavender and white wrapper—it's like a charming cross-stitch sampler." You will find Lux Toilet Form at your druggist's and your department store and your grocer's. Ten cents. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Your druggist, your department store, your grocer, each one has Lux Toilet Form in its exquisite wrapper—just say how many delicately fragrant, satiny cakes you want. It lasts and lasts

The most precious baby in the world—yours—is as safe in his Lux Toilet Form bath as in your arms

THE GASOLINE TAX

By the bill which has been approved by the lower house of the general assembly placing a tax of two cents a gallon on gasoline, or an increase of one cent, it is to be realized that this should produce something like two million dollars, and like the million being raised under the one cent tax this revenue will go for the maintenance of the highways.

Thus it means that the upkeep of the roads of Connecticut would be paid by those who use them, and that provision would be made for meeting the increased cost and the demand for greater attention to the highways.

Good roads have been persistently and consistently advocated. They are still called for and after they are obtained there is no small item of expense in keeping them in satisfactory condition. The great bulk of travel over the improved roads is by automobiles. They get the benefit of the smooth surfaced roads and when they pay a tax on gasoline they know that that tax is for the purpose of keeping up the highways system from which they expect so much. They are contributing to something which is of a direct benefit to them, and when that is the case there cannot be any very serious remonstrance. Likewise it must be apparent that contribution is made in keeping with the use that is made of the highways. And this applies to those from out of the state as well as from those within, who buy their gasoline in Connecticut.

Not all states are as fair with their motorists as is Connecticut. There are state where the proceeds from a gasoline tax go for general state purposes, and only a part for highway work. That works an injustice upon the auto owner. Connecticut in applying its gasoline tax to the highways utilizes that income for the benefit of those who meet the levy, and it rightly exempts those who do not use gasoline or those who do not use it for automobiles.

TAX REVISION

Speaking to the bankers at Jackson, Miss., Secretary Mellon dealt with the question of tax reform, and was able to reinforce his views with the results obtained from certain revisions which have been made.

Secretary Mellon has clearly set his ideas before the country on previous occasions. Just because he has urged a sane and scientific tax revision there have been those who have opposed it, and yet Secretary Mellon stands in the front row of those who have headed the treasury department. He has rendered a great service to this country, and more and more are those who have balked at his suggestions because they were his come to a realization of the soundness of his recommendations.

When he declared that an income tax is a fair and economically sound means of raising large government revenue, but pointed out that 'the tax must not be levied at rates so high as to hamper business, slacken initiative, distort investment and encourage avoidance of the tax," he said what must be evident to all, and it is for the purpose of getting further away from such a condition that he advocates the continuance of tax reform.

Widespread interest will be shown in his endorsement of the president's stand against the estate tax and his advocacy of leaving the inheritance tax to the states. He shows an unchanging attitude in his condemnation of the high surtax and is able to show that while the government collected $155,000,000 from the highest surtax in 1921 it collected $365,000,000 from the same class of taxpayers by the reduction of the surtax the following year.

There is a benefit to be gained by the tax revision from checking that disposition to avoid taxes and from encouraging the removal of funds from the tax exempt securities and placing them where they will result industrially to the advantage of the country and produce taxable income.

Mr. Mellon may not permit his name become attached to any further legislation but he has views concerning it that cannot and should not be kept under cover.

THE PEACE TIME CASUALTY LIST

We have not quite yet reached the point where the snuffing out of the life of a child or an adult in an automobile accident does not have any more effect upon us than any other accident, but it is often wondered how soon it will be before that time comes. Automobiles continue to increase and so do the accidents and fatalities. We are told that the percentage of accidents per thousand of automobiles is dropping, but that doesn't mean that the number of deaths is decreasing from year to year.

According to the figures which are presented by the casualty and surety underwriters bureau there were 15,000 killed in automobile accidents last year and 450,000 injured. That means that more than two persons were killed every hour of the day throughout the year and in each of those same days of 24 hours each 235 persons were injured.

In time of war we are stunned by the casualty lists. Do we give the same consideration to the list of casualties from automobiles? Do we stop to think how great a reduction could be made in that appalling list if there was half an effort to be more careful?

It is by no means possible to charge all the responsibility for the deaths and injuries to the automobilists. The pedestrian cannot disregard his part. Both are burdened with the task of exercising all possible care for the purpose of protecting others as well as self. Till there is more sanity in regard to speed, till there is greater respect for the rules of the road, the motor vehicle laws, the traffic regulations and the rights of others there will unfortunately be this constant toll exacted from humanity.

We talk and rave about the horrors of war. We deplore the great and needless waste of human life in fighting each other with deadly weapons, but are we fully alive to the fact that in time of peace there are such great ravages of human life constantly going on, and that it lies within our power to make great reductions in it?

PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION LINES

Had the motor busses been in existence at the time the control of trolley roads was placed in the hands of the public utilities commissions of the various states, there is good reason for believing that they would have been included. They are engaged in a similar service and there is quite as great, if not greater, need of giving the public the protection that goes with commission regulation of the bus lines as there is with the steam and electric lines. Only a little though is required to show that there are many instances where the control of the bus lines is a crying need.

By a law which has just been passed in Massachusetts the bus lines are placed under the control of the local authorities, the state utility department, the department of public works. This does not please the bus interests. They take the view that they should not be subjected to the same regulations as other transportation lines, and are threatening to demand a referendum, which will mean the submission of the law to the people for ratification or rejection.

For just the same reason that other transportation lines and other public service corporations are placed under control that will see that the public welfare is protected, the bus lines should expect to be included, while an additional reason is that the busses use the roadbed that is provided at state expense while the others build their own and maintain them. Should the referendum be obtained there is no reason to expect that the people of Massachusetts would be blind to their own protection and welfare. They are not likely to disregard their own interests.

KEEP IT HERE

One of the defenders of the position that is taken by Orville Wright concerning his intention of sending his first product to a British museum makes the statement that this undesirable outcome can be easily prevented by effecting the changes in the placard on the Langley plane now in the Smithsonian Institute.

This whole controversy is simply a revival of the dispute that has existed for years concerning the contribution of the respective flying machine inventors to aviation. Mr. Wright doesn't try to detract from Mr. Langley's ability or what he actually did, but he does take exception to the claim that the Langley machine was incapable of flight as left by the inventor. His point is that it underwent changes previous to the flight which made the test successful and therefore is not entitled to the claim of being the first flying machine or the first one capable of flying.

The simple arrangement whereby this, the proposed sending of the Wright plane to a foreign country, can be stopped lies in altering the claim which is made in behalf of the Langley machine as now on public exhibition. The changing of the description would be easy but the difficulty will arise in getting the authority to make such a change.

Nevertheless there cannot fail to be a widespread feeling that there should be such an adjustment of the matter as to prevent the Wright plane, the first machine that did fly, from being sent out of the country. We appreciate the honor involved in the work of the Wrights and it is to be hoped their product will remain on American soil. Whether easy or hard let the adjustment be undertaken.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Washington, May 6—Frank Kent, a political writer for the Baltimore Sun who has been one of President Coolidge's most violent and unreasonable critics has seen a great light. He is touring the country sending daily despatches to his paper. When, the other day, he reached the middle west, he was frankly surprised to find that President Coolidge's popularity is universal and that many who voted for Davis and Bryan have become his strong admirers.

People of all types told him they were not interested in petty politics at Washington but that they were greatly interested in the president's fight for economy. They want national and state expenses cut with the consequent reduction in taxes. That represents their greatest interest in governmental affairs at present. They indicated that when congress reconvenes their senators and representatives will understand that they must support the Coolidge program or make way for others at the next election.

To those who have been familiar with the stuff Kent has been writing about the president this made very interesting reading. We commend it particularly to the Bryan boys who announced a few weeks ago that the hope of the Democratic party lies in the west and middle west.

Pirate lairs, gold-bearing galleons, plank-walking and the skull and cross bones flag are what the youngster associates with the caribbean region. But it is a far cry from the old Spanish Main to the peaceful trade pursuits of today, and where in the days of Blackbeard and Cook profits of thousands may have been realized from the seizure of the high sterned vessels of the Dons, today commerce reaches into the hundreds of millions of dollars. Says Dr. Julius Klein, of our bureau of foreign and domestic commerce:

"The Caribbean region, comprising the West Indies, Central America, Venezuela and the Caribbean section of Colombia, is as much a distinctive trade area for the American manufacturer as Canada or Australia.

This region group of countries, while contiguous to the other countries of Latin America, has very little direct contact with them because most of the established lines of water transport treat the Caribbean area as a separate unit."

Last year our commerce with these Caribbean countries amounted to $876,000,000, of which $510,000,000 represented imports from and $366,000,000 exports to them. In order of importance, Cuba ranks first, Porto Rico second, Colombia third and the Central American group fourth.

It is officially stated that the par value of foreign securities publicly offered in the United States during the first three months of 1925 amounted to $379,000,000, compared with about $238,000,000 for the same period last year. If refunding issues are excluded, the increase in the amounts of new financing is even more pronounced. Of the foreign loans for the first quarter of last year less than $100,000,000 represented new financing, compared with $238,000,000 for such purposes during the 1925 quarter. Europe borrowed $139,000,000 during that quarter, German industry took $65,000,000, and Poland borrowed $36,000,000.

The announcement that the United States and Canada have worked out an agreement to make a joint survey of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes ship canal is the best news that the middle west has had from Washington in many days. The question which has been the subject of negotiations between our state department and Canada for several years is transferred from the diplomats to the engineers. This means that it has passed from conversation to action. The army engineers appointed by the war department will begin to survey with their Canadian colleagues immediately and they are to report within a year. It will then be up to congress to approve the plans, to make the appropriations and start the shovels working. The cost is expected to approximate $800,000,000 which is a trifle compared to the benefits which will accrue to the country if we may accept our experience in Panama as a criterion.

In his first message to congress President Coolidge called attention to the desirability of pushing this project forward and doubtless his name will be attached to the great undertaking just as the construction of the Panama canal inevitably brings to mind the name of President Roosevelt who did in a few short years what the world had been talking of doing since gold was discovered in California in '49.

Every item of information that trickles across the Rio Grande and finds its way to Washington indicates that Mexico is getting on her feet again—at last. A good many years must pass away before she regains the position of prosperity that "watchful waiting" cost her but she has made a start in the right direction and for the first time since the advent of the republican administration officials of our government are frankly optimistic of the future. They are not broadcasting their new found optimism because Mexico is inherently a tinder box but we can state positively that the white house and state department really believe the country is on the mend.

When General Calles was elected to succeed President Obregon, America was filled with propaganda indicating that he was tainted with socialism if not bolshevism. If he has any such taint he has scrupulously hidden it since his inauguration. His administration thus far has been conspicuous for hard headed common sense and those officials of our government whose business it is to handle Mexican affairs have developed a very considerable admiration for him and for the manner in which he has handled a most trying situation.

When he entered office Mexico was ridden with grafting "generals" who exerted tremendous influence from the cantinas (bars) where they spent most of their time. He was warned not to interfere with this favored class of "patriots" lest they start a revolution, and throw his government out over night. He discharged the entire gang and reduced the army to a normal state. There was no revolution. The people of the country who had had their fill of these "patriots" promptly rallied to his support.

He found the government pay-roll three months in arrears and bills of every conceivable sort over-due. Last week he brought the payroll up to date, wiped out the bills and put 25,000,000 pesos ($12,500,000) in the bank to the credit of the government. In other words he balanced the internal budget that had not been balanced in almost fifteen years, with the exception of one item—the interest on the outstanding government bonds. There is not the slightest doubt however that if he maintains the record which he has established so far American bankers will be willing to help him unravel the financial tangle which he inherited.

The turning point in Mexican affairs was reached last year when President Coolidge supported the government by allowing Mexico to purchase munitions from our war department for the purpose of squelching a revolution which was then brewing.

DOING HIS DUTY

"Far better would it have been for me," declared the earnest man with the polkadot tie, "if I had not talked so much—when your pretty platitudes you have to live up to 'em, dog gone it."

"One of my pet sermons has been that most things go wrong because nobody will take any personal trouble to right them—it's easier to let things slide, suffer the trespassing upon public rights and hope for the best, than to raise a yell that will be heard. This was why I had no snappy comeback when the family kept telling me I ought to do something about the mysterious automobiles which drew up across the street every morning about 4 o'clock and honked vigorously just as though the rest of the world were not fast asleep.

"'Maybe it will stop if we wait,' I told the family weakly, 'Maybe it is just some people starting off on a trip or something!" This did not meet with favor. It was pointed out to me that folks did not start on tripe at 4 o'clock in the morning seven days in succession. At last the racket began waking me up, too, so I telephoned the police station and asked them to abolish the nuisance.

"The next morning at 4 o'clock the honking broke loose as usual. I called the police station once more.

"The auto honked again the next morning and my wife said things about if-she-were-a-man—you know how they act when results are not forthcoming. On the way to the train I met Officer Cassidy, who is our daytime partolman and buttonholing him I related my troubles all over.

" 'What kindan ottymobile wus it?' Cassidy asked. 'To dinno? What wus the number-r? Say, how can yuh expect annything to be dons about it if you don't know nawthin' about it yersilf?'

" 'Now,' I reared at Cassidy, 'could I get the number when I am up on a third floor across the street from it? And it's dark at 4 o'clock a. m.!'

"Cassidy was severe. People expected the police to do everything without any facts. No, he didn't want the color of the driver's eyes or the name of his tailor—well, he'd tell Dennis about it. Dennis was on the beat at 4 a. m.

"This blast of honking arrived as per schedule the next morning. All the family blamed me vigorously. They blamed all the male residents in the block—too weak and lazy to do anything to stop it! I hated to call the station again and—well, the family never knew I held the receiver, catch down with one finger while I talked. You have to keep some things from women who will not understand. That night at 1 o'clock my wife and my son dragged me from a sound slumber with the news that somebody was ringing the front door bell terribly and why didn't I hurry!

"The person disturbing us remained below, and as I leaned over looking down the hall well, he called up in booming voice that caused all the doors of all other apartments to snap open to see what the excitement was about. Was I the man who had made the complaint about the honking automobile across the way? Was I Mr. Mallen? Being assured on this point he wrote something in a book and called back that he just wanted to know, being the policeman on the beat.

"At 4 o'clock we were wakened as usual by the arrival of the honking machine, and in a frenzy I yelled 'hey!' at it from my window, with no results.

"At breakfast the next morning, while my wife was telling me what she thought of me in the explicit way wives have, a policeman arrived at our upstairs front door and we waited expectantly to hear the depth of the punishment that had been inflicted on the miscreants. Regarding me sternly and referring to a little book he told me that some complaint had been made about my disturbing the peace by honking an auto horn out in front at 4 a. m. for some time, and if I didn't stop it I would be arrested, hanged, drawn and quartered, and what did I mean by it?

"Well, even the family is convinced now that the best way out of it is to move. It's quicker!"—Exchange.

despite criticism from any ill informed sources President Coolidge dared give the government moral and material support. History shows that such support from the United States is essential to the welfare of Mexico and in taking bold steps in that direction the president reverted to the republican policy initiated by President Hayes and followed by all of his republican successors, with the result that Mexico enjoyed thirty years of peace and prosperity. It was left to President Wilson and his ill advised agents to withdraw this support with the result that a handful of bandits, parading as patriots, looted the unhappy country and murdered about 250 Americans who were foolish enough to believe that the democratic administration would protect them.

"Oh, yes, I know him quite well," answered the young man.

"Well," said the barber, "that man is so stingy that he wouldn't give a dime to see Moses running up Mt. Sinai backward."

SPEAKS ON IMPORTANCE OF THE PRE-SCHOOL PERIOD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, May 5—"The pre-school child as a health problem" was the subject of an interesting address by Dr. Arnold Gesell of New Haven before the Women's club of Storrs tonight. Mr. Gesell is professor of child's hygiene at Yale, director of the Yale psyco-clinic, author of the Normal Child and Primary Education and other authoritative books on the subject of the pre-school child. Prof. Gesell supplemented his address with two reels of motion pictures taken in the department laboratory at Yale, which showed the mental development of child from one month to five years of age.

The pre-school child is being rediscovered was the statement of Dr. Gesell in outlining his talk which he said would concern a new subject. A few years ago the pre-school period of childhood from 2 to 6 years of age was picturesquely called the no-man's land of public endeavor, but all this is changing now. Society is taking measures that will bring the health and development of the pre-school child under systematic social control.

That the pre-school years are the most important in the development of an individual was the contention of Dr. Gesell and he raised the question as to how we could afford to neglect the pre-school years of life. The child is the father of the man but the pre-school child is the father of the school child, of the youth, of the man. The pre-school years are fundamental to all development that follows.

The new nursery school movement which is seen in both America and England was described by Dr. Gesell as one that is of much importance in its relation to the training and development of the child between the ages of 2 and 6 years. The Merrill-Palmer school in Detroit was mentioned by Dr. Gesell as one of the outstanding schools of this type in the country. There the pre-school child receives systematic medical and educational attention which is of great value in its early development.

Dr. Gesell also touched on pre-parental education stating that from a broad standpoint of public policy no more far reaching measure in behalf of the children of the future can be instituted than a systematic and sincere type of pre-parental education. This should include fathers as well as mothers.

OBITUARY

Grant Troland.

Following an illness of nearly a month, the life of Grant Troland, 18, came to a peaceful close at noon Wednesday at his home at 59 Church street. Word of his death was received with profound sorrow by a host of friends in this city who had learned to love him through close association.

Mr. Troland had been in poor health for several months past, but had kept at his work as foreman of the composing room of the Bulletin until Mar. 14th, when his failing health obliged him to give up work. He was most tenderly cared for during his illness by relatives and friends, everything possible being done to restore him to health, but to no avail.

Born in Norwich March 11, 1867, the son of James and Augusta Shaffer Troland, he attended the Broadway grammar school and at the age of 17 years entered the employ of The Bulletin company, serving his apprenticeship in the job department under Foreman W. D. Manning. For 42 years Mr. Troland had served the Bulletin company in several capacities, with the exception of a brief period when he was employed in Worcester and New London. At the time he became connected with the Bulletin force in October, 1884, the Bulletin was located on Main street in the building now occupied by The Porteous & Mitchell company. After 15 years in the job department he was selected for foreman of the advertising department of the Norwich Bulletin, to succeed D. Tyler Roath, and he held this position at the time of his death, with the additional responsibility of foreman of the composing room, which office he assumed in 1923.

Thirty-two years ago, in October, 1892, he was united in marriage with Miss Josephine Moush of Montville, daughter of Peter and Elizabeth Huff Moush, who passed away in this city on September 16, 1924. Following their marriage the couple made their home on Washington St. but for a few years past had resided at 59 Church street.

Being a man who loved his home and those about him, Mr. Toland belonged to few societies or orders, but for many years had held membership in the O. D. Ones and the Tuckerbung club. He was also affiliated with the Central Baptist church.

In his home life he was ever a loving and kind husband and father and his chief joy in life was in his family ties. In his business life, through long association with The Bulletin, he always proved himself a most loyal and faithful employe, ever working for the interest of the company which employed him and never failing in any trust placed in him. To those with whom he came into daily contact he was courteous and kind, taking pleasure in going out of his way to do a kindnes or favor, this trait of character endearing him not only to those who worked with him, but to everyone who met him through business dealings or in social life.

In his death his family has lost a beloved member whose place can never be filled. Those who mourn the loss of a real friend extend their heartfelt sympathies to his family, feeling certain that he has earned the reward of a well spent life of service to others.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Ivan E. Brann, (Agnes Troland), of Hollywood, Calif.; one granddaughter, Edna Jane Brann of Hollywood; one sister, Mrs. Augusta Chapman of Norwich, and three brothers, Henry L. Troland of Taftville, Charles Troland of Norwich and Daniel Troland of Providence, R. I.

Mrs. John Lee

After an illness of only a few hours the death of Ellen L. Leyden, beloved wife of John Lee, occurred Wednesday morning at 7:30 o'clock at her home in Lisbon. Mrs. Lee had been in her usual good health Tuesday and had not known a day's sickness until stricken Wednesday morning.

She was born in Preston, 68 years ago, the daughter of John and Mary Murphy Lee, and lived in that town until she reached the age of 16 years when she moved to Griswold with her parents. She received her early education in schools of these two towns and 28 years ago this month was united in marriage at the home of her parents to John Lee, of Lisbon.

She was a devout member of St. Mary's church, Jewett City, and a devoted wife and mother. News of her sudden death was received with sorrow by her many friends.

She is survived by her husband, three sons, John Edward, Clarence V., and Cornelius William Lee, and one daughter, Miss Vera Ellen Lee, all of Lisbon.

INTERNATIONAL PRESIDENT AT EVER READY ANNIVERSARY

Over 125 members and friends of Ever Ready Circle, King's Daughters, met at Korwich Town chapel, Wednesday evening, in celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the institution of the circle.

The chapel was tastefully decorated with apple blossoms and snap dragons, white silver crosses of the order were used as table decorations.

Vice Leader Miss Sadie J. Dawson opened the meeting after which a musical program was rendered by Miss Ruth Sterry, violin, and Miss Louise Sterry, piano. The address of welcome was delivered by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the Norwich Town Congregational church, after which Miss Jessie Hyde gave a most interesting report on the history of Ever Ready Circle.

Tracing the history of the circle since it's beginning, Miss Hyde told of the organization of the circle on May 4, 1895 by Mrs. Joseph Fraser. At that time, she said, Ever Ready Circle comprised members of the Sunday school class taught by Mrs. Fraser, but as years passed by members were added to the circle from outside the church. The circle grew in membership until it numbered about 30 who continued to carry out the idea of being a circle for doing work for others.

An interesting feature of the program was the reading of letters and words of greetings from old members of the circle and the several other circles of King's Daughters of the city. A letter from Rev. George H. Ewing, former pastor of the church, now of Sanford, Me., was read, in which best wishes for many years of service were voiced.

Another group of musical selections by the Misses Ruth and Louise Sterry was followed by the address of the evening by Mrs. George H. Prior of Jewett City, president of the International Order of King's Daughters. In her remarks, Mrs. Prior emphasized the idea of working to develop the spiritual life and to stimulate Christian activities. She also told of the work being done throughout the country, mentioning the hospital at Honolulu, homes for incurables, and work being done for children and old people.

At the conclusion of her remarks Mrs. Prior was presented a handsome bouquet of flowers, the gift of Ever Ready circle in appreciation of many past favors.

Following brief remarks by Miss Dawson a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments of punch and fancy wafers were served. One of the features of the party was the beautiful birthday cake, coated with white frosting and bearing 30 lighted pink candles, one candle for each year of life of the circle. A gift of snap dragons, from Euphemian Circle also rested on the refreshment table.

The morning session opened at 10 o'clock with Mrs. Lillian Slocum, New London county president, in the chair. The meeting opened with a song service, Mrs. Arthur F. Wyman, accompanying at the piano and the devotional service was led by Mrs. Sisson of New London. In the absence of the county secretary, Mrs. William Rogers of New London was named secretary pro tem. Miss Harriet G. Miss Nellie Starr, president of the Uncasville union, told of the L. T. L. work being carried on in Uncasville and Palmertown. Mrs. Thompson of New London gave a report on the anti-cigarette and medal contest being conducted in that city. Mrs. Slocum gave an interesting report on the W. C. T. U. activities at Section Base No. 4, New London, and the Coast Guard Academy. Mrs. Lamb of Mystic, president of the Mystic union, gave a report on the progress of the essay contest in Mystic. The topic of the essays is the benefits of prohibition and the essays are written in the form of a letter from American school children in foreign countries telling of the benefits of the prohibition law in this country. About 60 young people from Mystic and Stonington have entered the contest.

Mrs. Munger reported on the activities of the W. C. T. U. in Niantic, her home town and Mrs. Hicks, the new president of the New London union, gave an interesting talk on the general activities of the union in that city.

Mrs. Getchell of New London, county flower mission superintendent, read a letter from an Illinois W. C. T. U. member, telling of the great need of bedding and clothing, supplies, etc., for children in that state owing to the havoc wrought by the recent hurricane. New London this week sent two large boxes of supplies and $35 in money in response to the letter. The unions throughout the county were urged to aid in whatever ways they are able.

The singing of the consecration hymn and the offering of the noontide prayer by Mrs. Jessie MacDonald of Lebanon was followed by the appointment of a nominating committee for the fall election. Those appointed to the committee are Mrs. Avery of New London, Mrs. Joseph J. Fields of Norwich and Miss Nellie Starr of Uncasville.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session was called to order about 2 o'clock and opened with the singing of America, followed by prayer by Mrs. Calvert of New London. A petition from the chaplain of the submarine base and the lieutenant commander of the submarine base was received, asking for postcards suitable for Mothers' Day, for distribution to the men at the base. As a result of the petition New London Union contributed $10 and Norwich Union $5, the balance of the money needed, approximately $5 to be provided by other unions in the state.

Mrs. Slocum announced that each county be requested to provide a slogan of its own at the state convention to be held in Middletown in October. It was decided that a prize be offered for the best slogan or yell submitted for New London county.

A petition was received from the chaplain at the submarine base asking for a phonograph for the boys at the base. One of the women present immediately offered to provide a machine and other unions in the state will provide records for the machine.

Mrs. Mary B. Wilson of Southington, a former state president, was present at the meeting and gave an interesting talk on W. C. T. U. activities. She told of her visit to heads of the Coast Guard in Washington and told of visits she made to Section Base No. 4, and the Coast Guard Academy at New London, explaining the need for magazines, phonograph records, comfort bags and sunshine bags which articles the various unions in the state are providing as fast as possible.

Mrs. Wilson called attention to the following editorial which appeared in the Waterbury American:

"Ralph H. White, assistant superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league in this state naturally does not agree with President Emeritus Hadley of Yale that the prohibition law is not enforced because the majority of people do not want it enforced. But any tendency to discount Mr. White's opinion because of his office should not blind one to the telling points he makes.

"One is that our legal processes are so bad that it is hard to enforce laws no matter how strongly the people want them enforced. Mr. White is far from alone when he makes this point. In fact, he has the respectable backing of the American Bar association, including such eminent men as Charles Evans Hughes. Our court practices are bad; our laws are weakly framed. This has appeared with startling conspicuousness in connection with enforcement of the prohibition laws and not a little of the weakness of enforcement must be attributed to that cause. Here in Connecticut an intelligent, earnest effort to remedy this situation so far as the faultiness of the law is concerned has just been defeated by the state republican machine for reasons presumably sufficient to itself.

"Mr. White's other point is that the comparatively small element that is used to getting what it wants and so protests vociferously against prohibition and does not scruple to violate the law, which would quickly quiet down and respect the law if that were "the thing" to do. This is true, not only by all that we know of human nature, but also by observation in the case of prohibition. All can remember how excessively smart it was to violate the prohibition law two or three years back. It is much less so now. The fashion is changing—and would have changed much faster in this state if we could have had the publicity for "respectable" offenders that the Wheeler bill would have made possible."

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey of Norwich Town spoke briefly on the influence of the newspaper and of the decidedly wonderful influence of an effective organization such as the W. C. T. U. Miss Nellie Howie entertained with two excellently rendered piano solos. The meeting closed with prayer about 4 o'clock.

REPORTS FROM PITTSFIELD MADE TO ROTARIANS

The weekly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel was devoted largely to reports of the spring conference held at Pittsfield recently. The reports were very enthusiastic all the members reporting a splendid time from which they gained much inspiration. The outstanding feature of the convention was the inspiring talk given by Golden Rule Nash on the Application of the Golden Rule in Business. Other features were the marked interest in the meeting shown by Bert Gager, Linc Crawford and Al Lillibridge. Those giving reports on the convention were Dr. Russ B. Campbell who presided at the Presidents' round table meeting, J. Nelson Weymouth, Edward C. Jewett, C. A. Gager, A. O. Lillibridge, L. F. Crawford and Henry Shannon.

Another feature of the meeting was the five minute talk by Bert Adams, "the Will Rogers of the Norwich Rotary club." Bert's talk was decidedly witty and entertaining and he spoke on everything and everybody in general.

At the business session President Weymouth presided and Eben Learned acted as song leader, both instilling a world of spirit into the meeting. There were chorus selections by the new officers, directors and chairmen of the various committees. A pleasing duet number was rendered by Charlie Butts and Bert Gager.

ACADEMY TAKES LEAD IN LEAGUE BY WINNING FROM CHAPMAN TECH

The Academy baseball nine is on the top rung of the ladder, in the eastern Connecticut interscholastic league today, as a result of their 4 to 1 victory over Chapman Tech at New London yesterday. Playing rings around the rivals, the red and white with amazing team work, easily held the Tech boys while they themselves, bunching their hits, made 4 runs and enough to win the ball game. The Academy's playing throughout was superb and it was only through Dame Fortune that the Whaling City lads managed to get their lone tally.

The locals got to Morris Brown, the hurling star of Chapman Tech, to six hits, while the best the New London team could do was to get three hits, one a double off Smiling Johnny Greene, the red and white's moundster.

Chapman Tech scored its run in the fourth inning when Capt. Courbois, the first man up, smacked a double to right field. Aquillo, the next batter, struck out. Johnny Brown hit a grounder to Carroll who faked a throw to first and caught the fleet Courbois between second and third. Brown stole second and went to third on MacDonald's single and started for home, with Greene's windup, sliding safely across the pan and scoring Tech's solitary run.

The Academy settled down to business the very first frame, Carroll leading off, fanned, Capt. McGowan drew a base on balls and stole second Lloyd Jarvis socked the pill to left field for a single, scoring McGowan. Until the sixth inning the Academy guns remained silent, but in the sixth things were set humming. Capt. McGowan was hit by Brown, Jarvis was walked and Hinrichs came through with a single sending McGowan and Jarvis home. Hinrichs stole second and went to third on Cimikoski's single to center. Hinrichs scored by a daring steal of home, which brought the spectators to their feet and slid safely under McDonald's feet.

For the next three innings, Tech held the Academy scoreless, but could do nothing themselves with Greene's deliveries.

A double play was completed successfully by the Academy in the sixth when Aquillo grounded to Greene, who threw to McGowan, putting out Courbois, the local captain completing the play by throwing to Burke for the second out. It was the only time that Tech really threatened after the 4th but the double play put a stop to their activities.

The Academy team as a whole playing a wonderful brand of ball, their fielding was errorless and their batting showed marked improvement, bunching their hits at the most opportune times. Greene, although only striking out four men to his rival's eleven, allowed the Tech batsmen only three hits.

For the Academy Lefty Jarvis, the lad from Jewett City, proved the most dangerous batter, making two out of the six hits, Hinrichs also proved reliable, coming through in the pinches.

For Chapman Tech, Captain Courbois and McDonald were the shining lights, the former making the only extra base hit of the game and the latter connecting for two singles.

The standing of the league today is as follows: the N. F. A. in first place, with two victories and no defeats; Chapman Tech, second, with a win and loss; and Westerly and Stonington tied for the cellar position both with no wins and a loss. The Red and White still have Westerly to meet in the first round of the league to prove their superiority over their rivals. At present, the Academy is making the strongest bid for the cup and is out to win it unless a miracle happens.

The home team will begin practice today in preparation for their game with Plainfield High on Saturday, Lefty Jarvis, the twirling phanion, will probably get the mound assignment and judging from his work thus far this season, Plainfield may be sent home with broken backs from trying to hit his curves and fast ball.

Notes

There was only once that the smile came off Johnny Greene's face and that was in the sixth, but it was soon back again, when the double play wiped the gloom off his features. Tight places are nothing to him.

Jack Hinrichs made a dazzling catch of Aquillo's bid for a double in the first. Jack's always dependable.

Ed Brewer is a whaling good coach off third base. If he can't play all the game, Radio Ed uses his loudspeaker, to broadcast his sentiments to rival stations. A new station heard from.

Lefty Jarvis is sure an all-round star. When he isn't pitching he can rock the pill enough to make the opposing speed artist wish he was back on the bench.

Mish, the Academy backstop, must like chickens because he was chasing fouls all around the bleachers. He certainly can catch fouls.

Rudy Courbois will have to travel to Norwich where he lives, by a back road. What an awful razzing Rudy is due for?

Morris Brown, Johnny's younger brother, made eleven strikeouts, but it went to no avail. When the Academy chose to hit him, they hit him. These Brown boys will have to think of something else beside strikeouts, when they play [illegible] again on May 17.

Always use Greene paint color, it always wins, at least over Brown. It seemed as though two paints were opposed each other. Brown was on the mound for Chapman and Greene for the Academy.

Westerly was well represented at the game. Our contemporary Edward Butler was among the interested spectators at the game.

Courbois of Chapman, a Norwich boy, poled out the only extra base hit of the game a double in the fourth inning. For solid wallops Jarvis led the attack with two blows, but MacDonald of Chapman Tech also hit two singles.

Back to the fur coats again if the weather lasts like it did this afternoon. George Sullivan nearly froze to death without his sheep skin coat.

FAST TIME MADE BY DERBY NOMINEES IN WORKOUT

Louisville, Ky., May 6—Dark horses came to light in the Derby trials here today. Nominees for the $50,000 race May 16 were sent at a fast clip over short distances. A number of eligibles for the fifty first renewal of the $10,000 Clark handicap, including several Derby candidates, feature on opening day next Saturday, also were put through the paces.

The most pretentious move came from Abstract, who with his stablemate, Annihilatro, stepped the quarter together in :23 4-5; half in :48 2-5, and three quarters in 1:15. Here Annihilator began to fall back and Abstract went the mile in 1:42, very creditable work for the track.

Cup Bearer, the G. C. Cudahy eligible, breezed five eighths in 1:04, this colt does not extend himself in his trials and can do better with colors up.

Elsass did a good move going three quarters in 1:18 3-5 and the mile in 1:46 1-5. Russell Cave showed three quaters in 1.16. Boon Companion went a fast half in :49 2-5. Pyrcot turned three eights in :37 4-5 and Baalbec went seven eights in 1:36 2-5.

Quatrain and Captani Hal, two of the most likely looking Derby colts here, went out for long gallops. Captain Hal is considered a probable starter in the Clark Saturday. Quatrain was not named for the event, although Kentucky Cardinal, Leo P. Coiner, Boon Companion, Abstract and Elsass among the derby candidate also are eligible for the stakes. The race for three year old and upward, at a mile and a sixteenth, has been won by three year olds only five times since 1902.

Dan Scott's candidate Son of John, showed the most sensational trial of the season at Lexington today. The bay son of Sir John Johnson-Walter K. went a mile and an eighth in 1:51 4-5, within one and three fifths of a second of the track record set in 1916.

With Jockey L. Canfield up and carrying close to the derby weight, 126 pounds, worked under restraint the first three quarters after which he was given his head and he responded with a fine burst of speed. The fractional time was :25 1-5; :40 1-5; 1:01; 1:13 1-5; 1:26 2-5; 1:39 1-5 and 1:51 4-5. He was driving in the last quarter and finished full of run.

RIVERVIEW AND SOCONY PLAYS TO TIE SCORE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 6.—The Standard Oil and Riverview nine of Norwich battled to a 1-1 tie score here this evening, the game being called at the end of the seventh inning due to darkness. It was a fine pitchers' battle between Bill Johnson, former University of Montana twirler, and Toney West for the State Hospital nine. It was a fast game throughout, featured with fast fielding on the parts of both teams.

Bill Johnson gave a better account of himself on the mound than the former Baltimore International league twirler, allowing the State Hospital nine but two bingles during the entire game and fanning seven. West allowed six hits in that space of time and fanned five.

The visitors scored first when Normandin connected with one of Bill Johnson's fast ones and circled the bases before the ball was brought back to the playing field. Up until this inning which was the third, there was no semblance of scoring made by either side. The teams were retired with the regularity of the clock, the infield work featuring.

The standard Oil nine evened the count in the fifth when Wullaer singled with no outs. Couillard followed with a double after Johnson filed out to left field. Eddie Burns' sacrifice fly to center field brought in the tieing run.

Two of the State Hospital players hurt their ankles in fielding ground hit balls. But the injuries did not seem serious although Hammill for the Riverview nine was forced to retire in the sixth with a bad ankle. The score:

MISS COLLETT WINS BOTH MATCHES AT ST. ANNE'S

St. Annes, England, May 6—Playing in the ladies' northern foursomes, Miss Glenna Collett, former American champion in 1923, disposed of two pairs of opponents today without being pressed, although they granted ten strokes to the first couple and eleven to the second.

In the forenoon Miss Collett and Mrs. MacBeth beat Mrs. T. H. Miller and after lunch they had to go only to the fifteenth green to eliminate Miss B. Marland and Miss P. Forden, both of St. Annes.

The Collett-MacBeth opponents for the fourth round tomorrow morning will be Miss D. Dawson and Mrs. O. H. Sykes, who have a combined handicap of 25, and who probably will be conceded eight or nine strokes by the Anglo-American team.

In the third round this afternoon Miss Doris Chambers and Miss Joy Win were beaten at the twenty-second hole by Miss E. Griffith and Mrs. W. E. Taylor.

The afternoon card of Miss Collett and Mrs. MacBeth was as follows:

Out 4 6 5 3 4 6 6 5 4—47.
In 4 6 4 6 5 5 3—37—74.

PURCELL'S HOMERS DO NOT HELP PITTSFIELD

Pittsfield, Mass., May 6—Purcell hit two home runs on successive trips to the plate but Pittsfield lost to Hartford 6 to 2, here today. Failure of Schelberg to cover first base on two different occasions figures largely in the scoring of the visitors' six runs. Feature catches were made by Hesse and Wojack. Score:

COBB'S RECORD EQUALS THAT OF POP ANSON

Detroit, May 6.—(By The A. P.)—Ty Cobb's record of five home runs in two consecutive games has equalled the record of Pop Anson, one of the old White Stockings set in 1884.

Babe Ruth, Ken Williams and Charles Walker of the Athletics held the modern figures with four each. Cobb's three home runs, a pair of singles and a double in six trips to the plate ordinarily is enough for any bleacherite to rave about. But, the mathematicians found that a record, engraved on the books by the mighty Honus Wagner was obliterated by the bat of Ty Cobb yesterday. Ty holds the extra base hit record with a total of 1,456 during his lifetime in the game.

The old mark set by the Flying Dutchman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was 1,448.

Cobb also played havoc with a number of his own records. These with new figures to date are: New world's records for singles.

New American League record for extra base hits, 991.

New world's record for total number of hits, 3,687.

New mark for total number of runs scored, the four he made yesterday and two today giving a total of 1,958.

New American League record for total times at bat 9,967.

Wagner went to bat 10,437 times in the National League.

COBB POUNDS OUT TWO MORE HOMERS AGAINST BROWNS

St. Louis, May 6—The veteran Ty Cobb added to his batting laurels by hitting two home runs thereby establishing a modern major league baseball record of five four-baggers in two secutive games, and the Detroit Tigers defeated the St. Louis Browns today 11 to 4. George Sisler hit safely in his 21st consecutive game. The score:

PENN ATHLETES ON WAY TO BOSTON FOR GAME

Philadelphia, May 6—Two major sports teams of the University of Pennsylvania, the baseball squad and the crews left here tonight for Boston. The crews will meet Harvard, Cornell and M. I. # DUWELL CLUB WILL SPONSOR TWILIGHT LEAGUE THIS SEASON

With the daylight saving season well under way and June close on us nothing as yet seemed to stir in regards to a twilight league for the coming season. The league last year proved to be a huge success in every manner and also furnished considerable amusement for the local baseball fans. Many good games were witnessed and also poor ones, but as a whole the league proved satisfactory in every respect.

One of the real reasons why some of the games were poor was owing to the shortness of the Duwell field which has been lengthened considerably since then and by the first of June will be one of the best fields in this locality.

Back along the Duwell association came forth with a statement that they were willing to back and help support any enterprise that would help boost sports in Norwich and now stand ready to sponsor a twilight league in this city, providing enough teams can be secured. At a recent meeting of the Duwell club it was voted that should a twilight league be started that the club would furnish prizes for the winning team and also offer individual prizes for the leading hitters, fielders and other things that would help to keep up enthusiasm amongst the players during the life of the league.

One of the bad features of the league last year was that a couple of the teams got so far in the lead that when the teams that occupied the cellar played there wasn't the interest shown that possibly would be shown if the players on these teams had a chance at a prize other than the trophy awarded the winning team. No doubt the possibility of winning a prize even though not on a winning team should arouse considerable interest, not only among the players but also the fans.

A committee has been appointed by the Duwell club to hear from any teams interested so that later an open meeting can be held for anyone interested in the welfare of a twilight league. It is hoped that the Nuggets, Hardigs, East Ends, West Ends, Battery B, Yantic Grain or any other local team interested get started soon so that the league can be opened by the first of June.

Work on the Duwell field is progressing rapidly and every night or Sunday the East Side huskies can be found on the field engaged in banjo practice as they call it.

The membership to the association is increasing rapidly and the support that the association has already received has been beyond expectations. The Lions club has already come forth with assistance which has been greatly appreciated and it is hoped that any other organizations that are interested in clean sport will co-operate with the Duwell club so to help put Norwich on the map in this line.

SCOTT'S LONG RECORD OF GAMES IS BROKEN

New York, May 6.—Everett Scott of Auburn, Indiana, today gave way before lame knees after playing in 1,307 consecutive games of major league baseball.

On June 20, 1916, as a member of the Boston Red Sox, Scott started on a record that no other athlete has approached on a baseball diamond. Day after day, year after year, he was seen in his accustomed position, racing for warm hits and throwing out his opponents until he became known as one of the Yankee's greatest defensive players.

Today at the Yankee Stadium the end, forecast so long, came. The Indianan, now captain of the former world champion New York Yankees, donned his uniform but remained in the dugout while little Paul Wilsinger, a recruit, took his place.

A very small crowd was amazed at Scott's absence from the lineup and when Wanninger was removed for Ernie Johnson as a pinch hitter in the seventh, it was thought that the familiar face would return to the shortfield. But Johnson went out there and Scott's only work during the game was to wave "Sad Sam" Jones to the dugout when the Athletics attacked viciously in the tenth.

Twice in the span of almost ten years the veteran shortstop has been in danger of losing his magnificent record, while he was with the Red Sox a boil on his neck put him out of action for a full day but rain rushed to his aid and prevented the game. Three years ago he was again near disaster while visiting relatives in Indiana, a train wreck barring his progress to Chicago where the Yankees and White Sox were playing. Scott commandeered conveyances right and left and was in his position in the last few innings.

Scott succeeded Heinie Wagner as shortstop in Boston in 1914 and came to New York for the 1922 season when Roger Peckinpaugh, now with the champion Washington Senators, departed. Since his arrival in New York he has participated in sixteen world series games, all of them against the Giants of the National League.

Scott doubled the major league record for play in consecutive games, the former mark having been held by George P. Pickney, with the old Brooklyn club of the American Association and National League from 1885 to 1890—577 games. Luderus, once heavy hitting first baseman of the Phillies, held the modern figures, having played in 533 straight games from 1916 to 1919. The minor league record of 1,127 games, was credited to Perry Lipe in the Virginia and South Atlantic leagues.

Throughout the accomplishment of his remarkable record Scott has maintained a high fielding average, the poorest year being 1917, when his figures were .953. But he has been almost less than a mediocre hitter, although recognized as a dangerous batsman with runners on the bases.

AGGIES WIN EASILY FROM TRINITY TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, May 6.—The Connecticut college broke into the win column at the expense of Trinity here this afternoon in a game that was marked by many errors, the Nutmeg farmers winning by a 9 to 1 count. Wells pitched the entire distance for the Aggies, keeping the Hartford team well in check and letting them down with but four scattered hits. Coach Becker started McNiss to pitch on the mound for Trinity and later put in Mastronade, both of whom were accorded ragged support by their teammates. The Aggies touched these men for seven hits including four triples and a double that came at opportune moments. McNiss was a little off in control today passing four men in the six innings he pitched.

Schofield was able to stretch a single into a home run in the third inning when he sent a scorching grounder out o center field. Burr letting the ball go through his legs and by the time he recovered it, Schofield was well on his way to third. Burr made a slow throw to Cronin at short, giving Schofield just time enough to beat the throw home by a scant margin.

Trinity presented the Aggies with a run in the first inning when Eberle threw wild over third in an effort to catch O'Brien, who then tore home with the first score of the game. Trinity's only score came in the third inning when, with two away, Cronin started things with a clean single to center field taking second as Cronin was held on third by Tiernan's throw home. With men on second and third and two out a passed ball allowed Cronin to score and Newsholme to take third. Wells struck out Burr, ending the inning and any further scoring by the Hartford team.

Connecticut came back in its half of the third when two hits coupled with a Trinity error allowed the Storrs team to push two more runs across. With one away Wardle connected with one of McNiss' shoots and set it sailing into deep center field and although he stumbled and fell between second and third he was able to stretch it into a triple. Schofield, next man up, scored Wardle on a single that he was able to circuit the bases due to Burr's error. In the fifth inning the Aggies made two more runs largely through Schofield's triple and another Trinity error. After Trinity was put out in one, two, three order in the sixth the Aggies came back in their half of the session and shot three more runs across the plate. With Mastronade pitching he passed Gilbert, first man to face him. Wells went to second safe on Orrick's error. Gilbert advancing to third. A triple by O'Brien sent these two men home and Makofske followed with another triple that scored O'Brien. Coach Becker sent Laffler to center field in place of Burr at this point and Thompson was substituted at catch for Pryor. Makofski was caught trying to steal home and Mastronade fanned both Ahearn and Wardle ending the inning. There was no further scoring though Trinity had the chance in the eighth inning. With two away and men on second and third Wells pulled himself out of a hole by fanning Eberle for the third out. The score:

SOUTH AMERICA GETS RADIO NEWS OF FIGHTS

New York, May 6—The running ringside story of the pan-American boxing tournament at Boston was broadcast so successfully tonight to Buenos Aires, 6,000 miles away, that the announced had to be cautioned "not to speak so fast" lest any of his exciting narrative be lost. His words were plainly audible at the receiving end.

Sunshine and Cod Liver Oil For Puny Sickly Children

Read this from a well known medical journal if you have a boy or girl that needs building up—more weight—more strength—sturdy bones—perfect teeth.

"Sunshine and cod liver oil! both will cure rickets. Cod liver oil will also cure sore eyes while sunshine will not."

Keep the frail, underdeveloped children out in the open during the sunshiny days of spring and summer.

You might feed them on nasty tasting, vile smelling, cod liver oil also, for it is chock full of health creating, body building vitamines, but the days of such cruelty are past.

Nowadays, intelligent parents who want their backward, thin children to take on weight, grow healthy and bright and romp and play as normal children should, are turning to McCoy's Cod Liver Oil compound Tablets—sugar coated and as easy to take as candy.

They surely do help puny, underweight children and for that purpose alone hundreds of thousands of boxes have been sold. Often a child will gain five pounds in 60 days and show mental as well as physical improvement.

But be sure and get McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, the original and genuine—60 tablets—60 cents—at Lee & Osgood Co., and all druggists everywhere in North and South America—and if after a 30 days treatment they do not help your ailing child—get your money back.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Mrs. Honoria Marris Darbie, 76, wife of Charles L. Darbie, died at their home on North Main street during the early hours of Wednesday morning. Death came to Mrs. Darbie following a shock that she sustained while in the bathroom early Saturday evening. She soon lapsed into unconsciousness and remained so to the end. An hour or two prior to being stricken Mrs. Darbie appeared more cheerful and in better spirits generally than was usual, her health not having been the best for a number of years, so the sudden and severe attack was a shock to members of the household and friends who learned of it.

Mrs. Darbie was born in Pomfret, February 5, 1849, a daughter of John and Bridget Morris. It was from that town that her father and her brother, Joseph, went forth to serve in the Union army during the Civil War and, as it proved, to give their lives for their country. Mrs. Darbie's father was killed in the battle of Cold Harbor, and about seven weeks later, her brother met death in the battle of Petersburg.

In 1865 Mrs. Darbie and her mother came to Danielson to make their home. June 30, 1868, Mr. and Mrs. Darbie were married here by Rev. William W. Ackley, rector of St. Alban's Episcopal church, of which Mrs. Darbie had at the time of her death been a member for a great many years. The family has since remained here and is among the best known in Danielson.

Mrs. Darbie was a woman that centered her interests and activities in her home and the welfare of her family. Friends were graciously welcomed and found in Mrs. Darbie's companionship a cheering, helpful experience. She was in every sense the mother and in the full significance of that exalted place in life.

Mrs. Darbie leaves her husband, two sons, Rev. William H. Darbie, of Seaford, Delaware, rector of the Episcopal church at that place; Attorney Elbert L. Darbie, of Danielson, speaker of the house of representatives at Hartford, and Miss Ellen F. Darbie, at home. John Welch, of Brighton, Mass., is a half-brother of Mrs. Darbie's.

Stockholders here of the L. A. W. Acceptance corporation of Worcester, formerly with headquarters in Putnam, have received a report of operations of the corporation covering the first four months of the year; this report showing a total volume of $363,255, for the period as compared with $248,000 for the corresponding period of last year. The earnings for the period also show a remarkable gain over the same four months in 1924. Gross earnings for the first four months of this year amount to $30,850, as compared with $18,056 for the same period of last year.

Secretary John H. Corbett, of Putnam, of the Windham county Y. M. C. A., was in Danielson Wednesday and in touch with what is being done here this week in the annual finance drive of the organization, Killingly has a quota of $1,500. Of special interest to many here is the arrangement for the annual convention and dinner of the Windham county Y. M. C. A. at the Congregational church in Putnam Tuesday evening of next week. A brief session will be held at which reports covering the past year's work will be presented and members of the county committe chosen. The address of the evening will be made by Rev. Hugh D. Maydole, national council of the Y. M. C. A., at New York.

Using an automobile as a mowing machine for shearing the top layers off stone wall is not a successful enterprise from any viewpoint. It neither improves the automobile nor does a good job on the wall, leaving it sort of ragged like and all askew. This was demonstrated on the state highway between Brooklyn and Wauregan, near the Knight place, by parties unknown, but there is broken glass and parts of the top of the wrecked car to point to what happened to the automobile. It was a very early morning accident, around 4 o'clock, and came after the car had raced through Brooklyn village at breakneck speed. A wrecker towed the car away before residents of the vicinity got much information about the machine or its occupants, who were not seriously injured.

The Cloud Digger pleads to be heard through The Bulletin this morning and his wish shall not be denied. It's about inquiries that are coming in to him—and have been coming the past three weeks—complaining about the backward spring and unseasonable weather. The Cloud Digger says he is the only one in the United States who happened to have predicted a late spring, is so far as he was heard, and the unusual weather, including the dry spell. As to the Cloud Digger making a special forecast to cover the immediate future the Cloud Digger says: "I make no predictions between meals. I couldn't change my prediction from coming true and I wouldn't if I could. But do as I say—dam up the brooks and save every drop of water, for you will sure need it. It will be much dryer later on."

Sequels to the affair in which Joseph Johnson, colored, of Providence, met death a week ago Monday include the receipt of an anonymous letter by B. E. Terwilliger, of South Killingly, in which his life has been threatened and an inquiry, direct to Coroner Arthur G. Bill, from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored people, with headquarters in New York, for full information about the case.

Officials regard the crudely written letter received by Mr. Terwilliger as the work of a crank. The missive, postmarked at Providence, was written on a typewriter.

It is evident from the text of the letter received by Coroner Bill from the association referred to in New York that it has received considerable misinformation about the case. Coroner Bill has written the real facts concerning the unfortunate affair and his letter will make clear that Mr. Terwilliger acted solely in self defense and in the face of a desperate situation in which his own life was at stake.

As a mark of respect to Mrs. Charles L. Darbie, mother of Speaker E. L. Darbie, a delegation representing the membership of the house at Hartford will come here to attend Mrs. Darbie's funeral services.

There will be some cases in which intoxication will be alleged for the consideration of the town court this morning.

The market appears to be a bit off on used automobiles. Six dollars bought one in running order for a Danielson man Wednesday and another one, a roadster, that sold for $11 a few days ago is flitting about town and appears to be a great bus.

Mrs. Helen Leavens Berry, wife of George A. Berry, was reported Wednesday as seriously ill at their home on Winter street. Mrs. Berry has been an invalid for a number of years. For a long time Mrs. Berry was supervisor of music in the schools of Killingly.

Joseph Peloquin, driver of an American Specialty company truck out of Worcester, will be in the town court Monday morning to answer to a charge of reckless driving. Peloquin was apprehended by State Officer Leonard Comstock.

Numbers from Danielson attended a whist given Tuesday evening at Brooklyn by members of St. James' mission in that place. The proceeds from the very successful affair will be added to the fund for the new parochial school to be built here.

An illustrated and storied magazine published by one of the great gasoline companies and now being circulated in Danielson to boost motoring as a healthful pleasure, contains a very interesting article by Ida Bailey Allen, noted dietician and writer on food subjects and a former resident of this town.

B. E. TERWILLIGER'S ACT JUSTIFIED, CORONER FINDS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Danielson, May 6—Bertrand E. Terwilliger of, South Killingly, is fully exonerated in the killing of Joseph Johnson, colored, of Providence, in the finding reached Wednesday afternoon by Coroner Arthur G. Bill, who decided that Mr. Terwilliger acted in self defense and after every reasonable effort to have Johnson desist in his attack upon him. The finding is as follows:

The undersigned, coroner within and for the county of Windham having received notice about 9 a. m., on the 27th day of April, 1925, that an unknown colored man (since identified as Joseph Johnson about 38 years of age of Providence, R. I., formerly of Baltimore, Md.) had been shot on Reynolds street, in Danielson, Conn. I viewed the body of said deceased and on the 2nd day of May, 1925, at 9 a. m., I held an inquest as to the cause and manner of said death at my office in Danielson, Conn.

From the testimony taken at said inquest I find that the said Joseph Johnson died in said Danielson on the 27th day of April, 1925, about 9 a. m., from a pistol wound in the left breast, inflicted by Bertrand E. Terwilliger, of the town of Killingly, while the said Joseph Johnson was making a vicious and murderous assault with an iron jack and a large iron wrench, upon the head and body of said Terwilliger, and threatening to kill him. I further find that said Terwilliger used his best efforts to compel the said Johnson to desist in his assault before doing him bodily injury and that said Terwilliger was acting in self defense in causing said death and that he was fully justified in so doing, and that said death was not caused by the criminal act, omission or carelessness of said Terwilliger or any other person or persons.

I also find that said Johnson at the time of said assault was insane.

No one having appeared to claim the body of the deceased and being unable to locate any relative, I delivered the body of the deceased to the selectmen of Killingly for burial. I file with this finding a copy of the testimony taken at said inquest.

Dated at Danielson this 6th day of May, A. D., 1925.

ARTHUR G. BILL,
Coroner for Windham county.

PUTNAM

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thurston Child of Woodstock celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday, May 5 at their home, Valleyside. Both are widely known throughout the northern part of Windham county and at the reception from 4 to 10 o'clock hundreds of people, their neighbors and friends from nearby towns, called to offer their congratulations. Messages and remembrances came from any different points.

As a public spirited citizen, as a town official, as a founder and supporter of the Grange, as an officer of the Woodstock Agricultural society, as trustee of Woodstock Academy, and a devoted adherent of the Woodstock Congregational church, Mr. Child has come in contact with thousands of people and possesses their respect and friendship. Mrs. Child in her sphere is comparatively as well known and has many loyal friends.

At a luncheon at noon, the children and grandchildren and intimate friends present, included Mr. and Mrs. William P. Chapin of Providence, R. I., Mr. Child's sister, Mrs. J. M. Paine of Danielson, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Bass of Greenwich, Conn., Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Green, Worcester, Mass., Mrs. A. J. Tillinghast, Danielson, Mrs. Alfred T. Child of Tiferre Haute, Ind., Edward L. Child, Worcester, Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Child, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Harry F. Child of Jacksonville, Florida, and seven grandchildren.

From 4 to 10, a general reception to friends and neighbors was held in the house where, one year after it was built in 1822, Moses Lyon, grandfather of the present Mr. Child brought his bride to live.

Henry T. Child and Ella Eliza Fitts were married May 5, 1875, in Pomfret, by Rev. Henry F. Hyde of Rockville, Conn., assisted by Rev. Walter S. Alexander, of Pomfret. They began keeping house in the home built by Mrs. Child's grandfather. Five sons and one daughter was born to them, the daughter dying in infancy. The sons are Prof. Alfred Thurston Child, associate professor of applied chemistry at Rose Polytechnic Institute, Terre Haute, Indiana; Edward L. Child, a department head at the Barnard and Sumner store in Worcester, Mass., Richard Lyon Child engaged in electrical work in Brooklyn, N. Y.; William Chapin Child, who for the past four years has been the active head and manager of "Valleyside" taking over the management when Mr. Child retired, and Harry Fitts Child, road construction engineer with the Barrett company at Jacksonville Florida.

Seven of the nine grandchildren present, Alfred Thurston Child, Jr., a sophomore at Harvard and Miss Margaret Child of Radcliffe, children of Alfred T.; Richard Lyon, Jr., and Frances Eleanor, children of Richard L., of Brooklyn; Florence Augusta, Roxanna Eaton and Henry Thurston, 2nd., children of William C. Child of Woodstock.

Henry T. Child was born in Woodstock, in the home where he now lives, June 26, 1846, the son of Asa Thurston Child and Roxanna Lyon. The family on both sides extending back to Colonial days.

Ella Eliza Fitts was born in Pomfret, December 14, 1851, the daughter of Lyman Fitts and Harriet Richard and her family tree also has its roots in the times of the early settlers.

Mrs. Child is the sixth of her lineage to observe a golden wedding anniversary. Mr. Child, in his connection with the First Congregational church of Woodstock, is associated with three deacons who have celebrated their golden wedding day. There are ten persons living who were present at the wedding in Pomfret 50 years ago.

The Woodstock Agricultural association held their first fair when Henry Child was a boy of thirteen, and since then he has never missed being present nor has there ever been a fair when products of "Valleyside" have not been displayed. He has been associated with the fair organization for many years, secretary for a period of years and has also been president.

He has been a member of the First Congregational church for 67 years, a trustee for 56 years, clerk and treasurer for many years and is now a deacon. At Woodstock Academy, which all of his sons attended, he is the oldest trustee, a position he has held for half a century and he was secretary and treasurer of the board for years.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Child are members of Senexet Grange, the oldest active members of the organizations. Joining when it was organized, they are still active and interested. Various offices have been held by both of them in the grange.

Mr. Child is affiliated with no fraternal organizations. He has devoted all his life to farming and has been very successful. He say, however that 75 per cent. of any success that he may have attained is due to his wife. Mrs. Child typifies the thrifty, home loving housewife and mother, descendant of the sturdy stock that came to America when the country was in its infancy, along with the ancestors of her husband. Together they represent that which is best in the New England farm home, who earned success through hard work, thrift and enterprise.

Mr. and Mrs. Child have also learned that rare accomplishment of growing old gracefully and crediting each other with most of the success that has earned for them a well deserved rest and retirement from the acsive work in the management of one of the best and most modern farm in the Woodstocks.

Attorney Arthur E. Howard, Jr., of Hartford, trustee for the bankrupt estate of G. Harold Gilpatric, was in Putnam this week in connection with matters pertaining to the estate.

Mr. Howard has been here a number of times since the tragic event of last August and has met many local people all of whom are interested to learn that he has been appointed assistant judge of the common pleas court of Hartford and sat on the bench for the first time last week.

The following have been drawn on the jury for the next term of court: Ashford, Harlow F. Scott; Canterbury, Robert Fletcher and Fred Cone; Hampton, Elmer Stone; Sterling, Geo. C. Speeder; Scotland, Archie H. Gallup; Killingly, Benjamin Cogswell and Louis J. Sales; Plainfield, Herbert Tarbox and William J. Thompson; Pomfret, Horace D. Covell and Frank Chandler; Putnam, Clinton S. Andem and Leon T. Wilson; Thompson, Arthur C. Chandler and Marcus A. Covell; Windham, Ernest P. Chesebro and Raymond Harris; Brooklyn, John Pessette and Louis S. Ingallis; Woodstock, Arthur Sullard and Clarence Lyon; Eastford, Carleton P. Tatem; Chaplin, B. M. Welch.

The S-A Amusement company of this city has added another theatre to its chain, by taking over the Princess theatre of Rockville. The company now has six theatres, two in Putnam, two in Danielson and two in Rockville. They will assume management of the Princess theatre May 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Owler entertained a bridge party recently at their home on School street. Mrs. Nelson Lowne won the ladies' prize, a wall vase, and Lewis T. Champlin the gentlemen's two silk handkerchiefs. The hostess served fancy wafers, angel cake, ice cream in forms, coffee and punch. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shirrefs, Mr. and Mrs. John Moss, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis T. Champlin, Mr. and Mrs. Carl T. Blossom, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Lown, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Macdonald, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Keith and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Metcalf.

Friends of Miss Estes, former music teacher in the Putnam school are glad to know that she has improved sufficiently to return to her home at 524 Watertown street, Newtonville, Mass. Miss Estes entered Day Kimball hospital here April 24 and was taken in July from there to a hospital in Jamaica Plains, to be nearer home, and has been in that hospital ever since.

By the will of Miss Jennie Simmons, the choir of the Methodist church receives a bequest of $100.

Mrs. Clifford Bowen of Abington is a patient at Day Kimball hospital.

The girls of the sewing room of the Beachmont Worsted company hung a May basket to Miss Lena St. Marie of North Grosvenordale and in the basket was a string of pearls. A pleasant evening was spent and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Catherine Dolan remains critically ill at her home on Chapman street. She is growing weaker steadily and there is but little hope of her recovery. Her daughter, Rev. Mother Everista, remains with her.

Miss Nellie Flanagan of New London has been the guest of her parents for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson and little son have returned to their home after a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson at West Thompson.

It is now a busy time for the seniors at Putnam High school, graduation preparations are well under way. At a recent class meeting it was voted to have instead of a class day a senior night, probably Tuesday evening of Commencement week.

Several committees have been elected for the various tasks concerning graduation. The committee to obtain a hall for the senior reception has secured the armory. Committee for getting an orchestra, with Rudolph Metty as chairman and one for having the invitations printed with Sidney King in charge were also elected and they are busy with their plans.

A food sale was held during April for the purpose of raising money for the class. Doris Barrett was chairman and Gladys Peterson, Geraldine Frost, Edith Child and Winifred Meilor were her assistants. The sale was very successfully and profitably conducted.

The senior girls have been holding meetings to discuss the clothes they will wear on class night. Finally an amicable agreement was reached.

LIBERTY HILL

The Liberty Hill church was well filled Sunday morning. Rev. L. L. Harris gave a very impressive sermon from the text found in first Samuel 10-7, and let it be when these signs are come unto thee that thou do as occasion serve thee, for God is with thee. After the sermon communion was observed. George Paton and daughter, of Willimantic, Baptist church choir, sang a duet and Miss Paton sang a solo. Both songs were greatly enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Verplanck of South Manchester and Mrs. Emily A. Noyes, of Needham, Mass., and her son, Albert W. Noyes, of Chicago, called on Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Davoll and Mr. and Mrs. J. George Clark Sunday afternoon, on their way to Lebanon Center.

Mrs. Saunders Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Troubles of Change of Life

Knoxville, Tenn.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound while going through the Change of Life. I was very nervous, could not sleep and had melancholy spells. In fact, I was nearly insane at times, and my memory was almost a blank. I was so weak I could not do my housework half of the time and suffered dreadfully with my back. My doctor said I would have to worry it out and I went through this for three years before I began taking the Vegetable Compound which I saw advertised. I think it was eight bottles that I took. It has been two years since I took any and I haven't had a doctor since for that trouble. I do all my washing and ironing and I have gained from 116 to 138 pounds. I advise all women who suffer physically and mentally as I did to give the Vegetable Compound a fair trial. I hope it will do as much for them as it did for me."—Mrs. T. A. SAUNDERS, 711 E. # BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A Test of Mother Love

A mother's love may often quail,
But in the end it will not fail.
—Old Mother Nature.

Mrs. Timmy the Flying Squirrel had safely carried her four babies to a place of safety out of the path of the Red Terror, and she had been just in the nick of time. She was quite used up, was little Mrs. Timmy. How she did pant for breath! How her heart did thump! But though safe, the babies were safe for the time being, she was hardly less frightened than she had been at first. She knew that there was no knowing where that fire, the Red Terror, might spread to. A little change of wind might send it straight to where they had found safety, and it would be no longer safe.

So just as soon as Mrs. Timmy had got her breath and had rested a wee bit she started to move those babies again. As before she carried them by the skin of the neck just as Mother Cat carries her kittens. She didn't have to hurry so fast this time, but she was more tired than before and she had further to go. She went so far with the first one before she could find another safe hiding place that she was sadly worried about the babies left behind, and hurried back so that again she was panting and out of breath and so tired that it seemed to her that she couldn't, she just couldn't, make that long journey three times more.

But when she had carried the first one to a place of safety she was worried for fear something might happen to the others, while she was gone, and this fear gave her strength to hurry back. And when she got back she began to worry over the one left all alone in the new place of safety. An enemy might find that baby. Anyway, it would be dreadfully lonesome and frightened there in a strange place. So she rested hardly a moment before starting back with another.

Where was Mr. Timmy? Well, you see since the coming of the children there had been no room for Timmy in that home which now the Red Terror had destroyed, so Timmy had moved to an old nest where he had lived before he met Mrs. Timmy. It was out of the course of the Red Terror, and he had known nothing about the Red Terror until it was too late to do anything to help, even had he tried. By the time he discovered the Red Terror it had swept through where his family had been living, and so far as he knew they had been burned to death. So Timmy was to be excused for not being on hand and helping Mrs. Timmy.

The carrying of those helpless babies to a place of safety was a real test of mother love. Nothing else could have kept that little mother going. But at last she dropped the last of the babies beside the others, and then, panting and gasping, she lay down with them and wondered what she should do if that Red Terror should follow them there and drive them out again, for she felt that she couldn't, she just couldn't move all those babies again.

But the Red Terror, the fire which had been started by a burning cigarette carelessly thrown from an automobile into some dry leaves by the side of the old road in the Green Forest, was steadily moving in another direction and Mrs. Timmy had nothing further to fear from it. It had done all the harm it could do to her for the present, and that was plenty. But the fear of it still filled her heart, and she knew that it was carrying that same fear to the hearts of all who lived in that part of the Green Forest.

JOHN TRUMBULL'S PAINTING DISCOVERED IN WASHINGTON

The original of Colonel John Trumbull's famous painting, The Battle of Bunker Hill sometimes known as The Death of Warren, has been unearthed in Washington. It is believed, on the eve of the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill, after disappearing from public view for many years. It is now hanging in the office of Secretary Mellon in the Treasury Department for his observation.

Years ago it was on exhibition in the Metropolitan Museum of Art for a short time, but outside of this single allowing it lay, accumulating dirt, in the old bookshop of the late James Judd in Pennsylvania Avenue, in the Capitol. The person or party who will not permit his name to be disclosed (or a photograph of the painting to be made, purchased it from the widow.

The scene depicted is familiar to every American school boy impressed upon his memory as indelibly as that of The Battle of the Monitor and the Merrimac by William F. Hamet of Massachusetts, and the four great historical paintings by Trumbull, which hang in the Rotunda of the Capitol.

The painting is forty-four by thirty-four inches in dimension, from which Trumbull, it is asserted, copied the smaller painting of the same subject now in the possession of the Museum of fine Arts at Yale University.

It is said to be fully authenticated.

This original painting, it is believed, was executed by Trumbull, who was one of the sons of Governor Jonathan Trumbull, of Lebanon, Conn., in 1786 in London and brought to Washington in 1817, when he was commissioned by congress to paint the four historical pictures which now hang in the rotunda of the Capitol. These depict The Signing of the Declaration of Independence, Surrender of General Burgoyne, Surrender of Cornwallis, and Washington Resigning His Commission. Trumbull was engaged to do these pictures for a total of $32,000—a large sum for those days—and while in the task he lived at the Old Indian Queen Hotel, which formerly stood at Sixth street and Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington. The history of the painting records that Trumbull gave this painting to the proprietor of the hotel in part settlement of his board bill.

HUMANE POSTER CONTEST HAD OVER 3,000 ENTRIES

The Third Humane Poster contest conducted under the auspices of the Connecticut Humane society in the public and parochial schools of Connecticut has just closed the exhibition which was open to the public at the Old State house in Hartford during the past three weeks. The posters are now being judged and the winners will be announced in the course of the next two weeks.

More than 3,000 were entered in the contest by grammar school pupils in the state. The judges included the following: Mrs. Henry F. Stoll, Miss Frances H. Bacheler, art instructor, Hartford Public High school; Professor Wilbur F. Gorey, Frederick S. Camp, supervisor of elementary education, state board of education; Miss Gertrude O. Lewis, Mrs. W. B. Williams, Joseph Wheelter, supervisor of drawing state department of education; Miss Bertha P. Dennis, and Mrs. H. Clay Preston, who has charge of the contest. Mrs. Preston is wife of the general manager of the Connecticut Humane society.

Cruelty to animals was the most popular subject, among the favorite being dogs, although the horse was by no means overlooked. The cruelties connected with the training of animals has been the subject chosen by many of the children, especially the story in the selection of models, for there are a larger number of cat posters than any other in the exhibition, depicting the life of chained dogs, injury to dogs in the highways, the dog without a home, etc.

Among the cat pictures which are especially favored by the children, are shown many different kinds of abuse, the cat without a home being among the most prominent.

Some very clever ideas are incorporated in the horse posters. Much stress is laid on showing horses overloaded bearing the title, "Prevent Heavy Loads"—"Do Not Beat Them!" The bird also has its place in the wide variety of birds shown, the prevailing thought in the production seems to be the bringing out of the beauty of bird life and their protection from destruction, also consideration for their needs in cold weather.

The children were quick to grasp the problems which are occupying the attention of humane societies everywhere. The cruelty of trapping is depicted in many ways with such slogans as "To Trap is Cruel," "If You Must Kill Me, Be Merciful and Shoot Me." One for speaking to another: "Where is Your Food," and the answer, "In The Trap," a squirrel coat advertized "At Cost" and written underneath, "The Cost Was Five Hundred Lives."

Many of the posters were devoted to attracting attention to the Connecticut Humane society. The Ark is pictured with a slogan attached reading, "Your Humane Society," and nearly every phase of human endeavor is in some way touched upon, not forgetting kindly deeds of Abraham Lincoln and other great men in behalf of animals.

Lester M. Boyle, 21 years old, who, on March 23, 1923, escaped from a tunnel leading from police headquarters in New Haven to the city court pen, is believed to be one of the three men held in Toledo, Ohio, on charges of bank robbery last Saturday.

218 DIFFERENT SECTIONS SERVED BY BUS LINES

The extent to which auto buses or trucks are operating in this state is revealed in a time-table just issued by the Connecticut Motor Stage association. Accompanying the table is a map showing the routes that these jitneys take, runnings on regular scheduled through Connecticut communities, and doubtless a look at this map will surprise a great many people because of the disclosure it furnishes of the scope of this auto business.

There are few habitations of considerable size that these vehicles do not reach and on many routes they run often.

These lines operating on certificates issued and schedules approved by the public utilities commission. Some of these reach outside the state. In not a few instances they are in competition with other means of passenger transportation.

The following lines are now in operation:

Danbury-Brewster, N. Y.; Danbury-Ridgewater; Torrington-Litchfield-New Milford; Torrington-Thomaston; Thomaston-Terryville; Bridgeport-Bethel-Danbury; Bridgeport-Newtown; Danbury, Bridgeport-Sandy Hook; Middletown-Saybrook-Moodus; Collinsville-Unionville; New Haven-Saybrook; Stamford-High Ridge; Stamford-Long Ridge; Hartford-Winsted-Williamantic-Storrs; New Haven-Waterbury; Hartford-Willimantic; Bridgeport-Monroe; Bridgeport-Nichols; Willimantic-Danielson-Canaan-Great Barrington Mass.; Winsted-Canaan; Bridgeport-Waterbury; Norwich-Westerly R. I.; Bridgeport-Trumbull; Port Chester, N. Y.-Pemberwick; Waterbury-Litchfield; Hartford-New London; Willimantic-Stafford Springs; Staffordville-Orcuttville; W. Willington-Springfield, Mass.; South Lyme-New London; Greenwich-Bankeville-Round Hill; Moosup-Providence, R. I.; Danielson-Providence, R. I.; Colchester-Norwich; Canaan-Millerton; Eastford-Willimantic, Webster, Mass.-Quinebaug, Conn.-Southbridge, Mass.; Winsted-Pittsfield, Mass.; Southington-Lake Compounce; Norwich-Poquetanuck; Hartford-Westfield, Mass.; Danbury-New Milford; Easton-Bridgeport; Hartford-South Manchester; Willimantic-Lebanon; Willimantic-Scotland; New London-Crescent Beach-Pine Grove; New London-Sub Base; New London-Norwich.

There are 218 cities, towns and villages now connected by these automobile conveyances for passengers.

Presumably the Connecticut Co. has felt the sting of the competition of these lines and may adopt measures to offset it.

Last week the general assembly received a favorable report from the railroad committee which would empower the trolley company to run bus lines. If this act goes through, the trolley company will likely get busy in establishing new bus lines of not in direct competition with the lines of the Motor Stage association, the only other lines of travel not already preempted by the association members. At any rate it is expected that the trolley company will operate buses on some lines where the trolley cars do not now pay.

The officers of the Connecticut Motor Stage association are the following: President, Patrick Healy, Waterbury; vice president, William McCormick, Bridgeport; secretary, Edward J. Gildea, Danbury; treasurer, Christopher C. Wells, Trumbull.

Now it is the only soap used in my laundry. Our clothes are delightfully fresh, fragrant and seem to last longer since we don't have to rub them."
Mrs. S. W. C., Providence, R. I.

"There is nothing to clean an enamel sink like Rinso. Just put a teaspoonful in an almost dry sink, wipe around with a cloth and rinse thoroughly and you have an immaculate sink and a clean cloth too. Of course, Rinso is the only thing I use on washday. Rinso and Lux solve all our laundry problems."

BILL MAKING TAX ON GASOLINE TWO CENTS IS PASSED BY HOUSE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, May 6—As compensation for the small amount of business transacted yesterday by the house, the greatest number of bills were acted upon today that has been done since the reception of bills was closed. It was a source of sorrow to the members of both houses to learn of the bereavement of the speaker of the house, Elbert L. Darbie of Killingly, by the death of his mother. In the house resolutions of sympathy for Mr. Darbie were adopted and adjournment was made as a mark of respect.

Among the matters of interest passed in the house today were appropriations for fire escapes in the State Normal schools. Among those affected is the building at Willimantic.

The act is as follows:

The sum of three thousand dollars, or as much thereof as may be necessary, is appropriated to the state board of education for the purpose of installing fire escapes on the state normal school building at Willimantic.

Another bill permits towns to make appropriations for maintenance of hospitals within its borders. The bill is as follows;

Any town may, at any annual or special town meeting, make appropriations for the maintenance of any hospital located within such town.

Section 453 of the general statutes is amended in the bill passed today by including in the list of animals and reptiles, "rattlesnakes and copperheads," for the killing of which towns may pay a bounty of $1.00.

Section 453 of the general statutes is amended to read as follows: Any town may offer a bounty of not more than five dollars for killing any wild cat, fox, rattlesnake or copperhead snake, and a bounty of not more than one dollar for killing each weasel, woodchuck, wild Belgian hare or wild German hare within its limits, which bounty shall be paid by its treasurer from the surplus remaining from the amount received for dog licenses during the previous year and upon such evidence of killing as such town may require.

When action was being taken, Representative Cassidy of Norwich opposed the passage of the bill concerning the removal of snow from the highways, and asked that the bill be tabled. His motion was lost. Mr. Cassidy further claimed that if this bill was passed it would make it impossible for three lines in the state to operate as there was no place in which they could deposit the snow removed from the tracks. The matter was debated by several of the members. The motion by Bell of Salisbury that it be recommitted was lost and the bill was passed.

The bill is as follows:

Section 1.—No street railway company or other public utility company having a track in, over, above, under, parallel or adjacent to any state aid or trunk line highway shall, in the removal of snow or ice from so much of the right of way of any such company as is occupied by tracks, deposit upon the paved, metal or hardened section of such highway, or within twelve feet thereof, any snow or ice without the written permission of the highway commissioner, which permission shall state the manner in which such snow or ice shall be removed, and may be revoked by the commissioner upon fifteen days' written notice.

Sec. 2. Any person, firm or corporation violating any provision of this act shall be fined not more than two hundred dollars, and shall reimburse the state for any expense that may have been incurred in the removal of such snow or ice from any such highway, plus fifteen per centum of such expense.

The bill increasing the tax on Gasoline provoked some discussion but it was passed by a large vote, the number dissenting being very small. The Norwich Water bond bill was passed in the senate. The gasoline tax bill is as follows:

Section 1. Terms used in this act shall be construed as follows: "Motor vehicle" shall mean any rubber tired vehicle propelled or drawn by any power other than muscular, except road rollers, street sprinklers, fire engines, fire department apparatus, police patrol wagons, ambulances owned by municipalities or hospitals, agricultural tractors and such vehicles as run only on rails or tracks. "Fuels" shall mean gasoline, benzol or other products to be used in the propelling of motor vehicles using combustible type engines over the highways of this state. "Distributor" shall mean any persons, firm or corporation, wherever resident or located, who shall import or cause to be imported for sale fuels as herein defined, into the state; and also any person, association of persons, firm or corporation who shall produce, refine, manufacture or compound fuels, as herein defined, within the state.

Sec. 2. Each distributor shall, within 60 days after this act shall go into effect, and thereafter annually, before continuing in or commencing to transact the business of a distributor as herein denied, procure a license from the commissioner of motor vehicles to continue or to commence to engage in said business withi nthis state.

Sec. 3. Each such distributor shall keep a record of all sales of such fuels which shall include a statement of the number of gallons purchased, the date of purchase and the number of gallons sold or used by him. He shall deliver with each consignment of such fuel to any purchaser within this state a written statement of the names of the vendor and vendee, the number of gallons sold and the date of sale and delivery. Each record and such statement shall be preserved by such distributor and such purchaser for the period of one year and shall be offered for inspection upon demand of the commissioner of motor vehicles or any officer or agent designated by the commissioner.

Sec. 4. Each distributor shall, on or before the 15th day of each month, render a report to the commissioner of motor vehicles, which shall state the number of gallons of such fuel sold or used in the state by him during the preceding calendar month, on forms to be furnished by said commissioner of motor vehicles; and such report shall contain such further information as the commissioner of motor vehicles shall prescribe. On or before the first day of the calendar month succeeding the filing of such report, each distributor shall pay to the treasurer of the state a tax of two cents per gallon upon each gallon so reported, provided all fuels sold to any retailer for resale or use for motor boats shall be exempt from the payment of such tax upon satisfactory evidence to the commissioner of motor vehicles that all such fuels are intended for and will be used only for the propelling of motor boats. On or before the first day of each calendar month the commissioner of motor vehicles shall transmit to the treasurer of the state such information as shall show all taxes due from each distributor under the provisions of this act.

Sec. 5. Any distributor who shall contract to make any distribution of fuels to any person, firm or corporation, to be used commercially or for the purpose of manufacture, may apply to the commissioner of motor vehicles for a permit to make such sale without tax, on a form provided by the commissioner for such purpose. The commissioner of motor vehicles may require such purchaser to certify to him under oath on forms furnished for such purposes, the use which is to be made of such fuels and whether any portion or the whole thereof is to be used for the operation of motor vehicles. Said commissioner may require further information from such distributor or purchaser. If any portion or the whole of such fuels so purchased shall be taxable under the provisions of this act, the purchaser shall be charged with the tax provided for in this act and shall pay the same in accordance with the provisions hereof.

Sec. 6. All money paid to the treasurer of the state under the provisions of section four hereof shall be expended under the direction of the highway commissioner for the construction, maintenance or reconstruction of state highways, without specific appropriation by the general assembly for such purpose.

Sec. 7. Any distributor or purchaser of such fuels who shall violate any provision of this act shall be fined not more than two thousand dollars. Whenever any distributor or purchaser shall fail to pay any tax due under the provisions of this act within the time limited herein, the commissioner shall enforce payment of such tax by civil action against such distributor or purchaser for the amount of such tax, in a court of appropriate jurisdiction.

Sec. 8—Chapter 300 of the public acts of 1921 and chapter 203 of the public acts of 1923 are repealed.

The bill was amended by the provision, that appeals can be made to the superior court.

It was stated in the discussion on the gasoline tax bill, that the state derived receipts of $1,050,000 from this tax last year and it is expected that this amount will be more than doubled. The receipts of the tax are to be used in the construction and maintenance of the state highways.

HOUSE

The house was called to order at 10:30 by Representative Sturgess of Woodbury. Prayer was offered by Rev. Arthur F. Lewis, the house chaplain.

Resolution was favorably reported incorporating the Albertus Magnus college of Milford. A resolution was passed directing the comptroller to pay George L. Main $12.75, paid for registration of motor vehicle not used. The judiciary committee reported unfavorably a large number of bills among which were H. B. 73, providing salaries of prosecuting attorneys of courts of common pleas; H. B. 101, concerning applications to be made electors; H B 111, concerning sessions of registrars, for enrolment for caucuses and primaries; H. B. 113 providing that legal residences of married women for voting purposes shall follow that of her husband; H B. 265, providing for a one day session of registrars for caucuse purposes in towns having less than three thousand population; H. B. 271 and 273, concerning meetings of registrars; H. B. 287, concerning abrentie voting. H. B. 406, allowing voting by mail as reported by the judiciary, unfavorably, brought forth a vigorous protest from Representative Ketchem of Simsbury. He moved the rejection of the committee report. Averill of Branford, defended the report and said that the supreme court has rendered a decision that the constitution would not allow these bills to be lawfully passed. Hill of Shelton said he had been a registrar of voters for twenty-two years and from his experience as such he was of the opinion that the situation was not as serious as claimed. In answer to Mr. Ketchem, Mr. Averill stated that the constitutional prohibition was not by the national constitution as they had no power in the matter.

The state's alone having the say as to who shall vote, some states constitution may allow this action but this state does not. The report was adopted and the bills were rejected. The committee also reported unfavorably on H. B. 615, providing for instructions as to use of voting machines; H. B. 615, providing for separate lists of men and women voters in towns of less than three thousand inhabitants; H. B. 643, amending an act concerning voting in town meetings by persons not registered voters; H. B. 816 providing for a method of voting split ballots.

The committee on Public Health and Safety reported unfavorbly, providing for the appointment of a commission, for the study of malignant diseases; H. B. 830, providing for further examination of osteopathic physicians.

Fourteen bills were reported unfavorably by the committee on Fish and Game as they concerned matters already taken care of in the amended codification that has been passed.

Fifteen resolutions appointing judges and deputies were adopted, and under suspension of the rules were transmitted to the senate. Resolutions appointing Frank H. Foss, judge and Russell H. Andrews deputy judge of the city court of Willimantic were reported and were placed on the calender. Fifteen resolutions appointing judges and deputy judges of city courts were adopted in concurrence.

Among them were those of E. Victor Prince, judge and Lewis Crandall, deputy judge of the city court of New London, of Arthur F. Libby, judge and Henry H. Pettis deputy judge of the city court of Norwich.

All bills favorably reported were ordered printed and placed on the calendar. Concurrence was voted with the Senate in all matters reported from that body.

SENATE

Senator Clement H. Brigham of the Seventh district called the senate to order at 10:30 (standard time) and presided at the day's session. Prayer by Chaplain Ayer.

The committee on the judiciary reported unfavorably on the bill for absentee voting, and on another bill authorizing the secretary of state to provide means for the counting of absentee ballots. The bills were rejected. Senator Cronin, in explaining the report of the committee, said that the subject matter of the bills would be taken care of by the special committee, that was in existence, to receive the ballot laws.

Senator Tone explained the favorable report of the committee on labor on the bill relating to the employment of women and children. He said that no public restaurant, cafe, dining room, barber shop, hair dressing or manicuring establishment or photograph galleries shall employ any minor under sixteen years of age or any women more than six days or fifty-eight hours in one week.

Senator Keeney asked Senator Tone for a more comprehensive statement and the latter said that the bill simply limited employment to six days a week. Senator Keeney then asked Senator Tone to state in what manner the bill differed from the present law.

Senator Pierson said the bill would deprive girls employed in hotels of their employment, and if that were so the bill was unjust and unfair.

Senator Keeney pointed out that under the bill hotel employes could not be employed in hotel dining rooms and restaurants on Sundays.

Senator Shaw said that hotels did not come under the provisions of the bill.

Senator Keeney insisted that the restaurants of hotels did.

The bill was tabled.

The committee on agriculture, reported a substitute bill concerning the sampling and testing of milk and cream. It empowers the dairy and pure food commissioner to make regulations for the examination of persons who may engage in sampling or testing milk or cream which is to be sold on the basis of the butter fat content or the bacterial count. Application for such examination shall be made in writing to the commissioner. An examination fee of $1 shall be charged, etc. The bill was tabled for calendar.

On the unfavorable report of the committee on roads, bridges and rivers the bill providing for insurance on public service motor vehicles was rejected. The bill defining the term "public service motor vehicle" was also rejected.

Calendar.

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 6—The two-story brick structure, 230-232 State street, known as the Marsh building and occupied by the United Music company, Crocker Cigar factory shop and Edward H. Smith & Co., stock brokers, was sold today by the owners, Daniel S. Marsh, Wm. A. Marsh and Daniel S. Marsh, Jr., to the Mariners Savings bank. The price paid was $45,000. The present leases remained unaltered by the transfer. The structure was erected about 35 years ago and adjoins the structure occupied by the banking institution.

Linwood Smith, 33, a member of the construction department of the Connecticut Power company, who attempted suicide a fortnight ago, following the termination of his day's work, by sending a bullet into his brain at the submarine base, will now recover, it is believed by the physicians at Lawrence hospital. It was stated late this afternoon that the patient's condition had become so encouraging that he had been taken from the critical list.

Patrick Reagan has finished his spree, begun a couple of days ago. He was arrested at midnight Monday on Bank street, by Policeman John Sullivan after the officer had endeavored to send Reagan, who was with John Penders, both drunk, to his home. Neither of the men would take the advice of the officer then. In the police court, next day, they were fined and Reagan, who felt rich as he had started in with a hundred dollars in his duds, paid the bills for himself and his friend. An hour or so after Reagan was released minus about $40 he was picked up on Main street where he was a nuisance. Today he paid $18.70 more into the court and declared that he had got through with that sort of thing. Reagan is a laborer, and will now devote his time to work and let the booze alone for a while.

The case of William R. Waterman, an autoist who ran down Frank Bray's machine as it came from Lawrence hospital, about a month ago, was called in the police court this morning. It did not get a start, however, as Attorney Frank L. McGuire asked for a continuance. The request was granted and the case went over till next Wednesday. Mr. Bray was seriously injured and has been under hospital care since the night of the collision. It is expected he will be in court when the case is begun next week.

Arthur Martin, about 25, residing in Graniteville, is a patient at Lawrence hospital tonight, suffering from a possible fractured skull, possible internal injuries, a compound fracture of the right leg and many lacerations of the face and head. The motorcycle which he was operating this afternoon was run down by an automobile owned and operated by Louis Itzkowitch, of 93 Squier street. Itzkowitch was arrested charged with reckless driving and obtained in Barnet Greenblatt, a surety on his bond of $1,000 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

At the institution this evening it was stated that Martin's condition was critical.

Martin was operating his motorcycle with side car, on Bank street, being headed for his home. As the cycle was approaching Fay street, the automobile, headed easterly, was traveling at an alleged fast rate of speed and on the left hand side of the highway. Itzkowitch attempted to guide the machine to the opposite side of the road and avoid a crash, but was not successful for the automobile struck the cycle, hurling Martin from the cycle, he being rendered unconscious. A passing automobile was stopped and Martin placed in it and hurriedly transferred to the hospital.

Coroner J. J. Desmond, of Norwich, will hold an inquest within a few days to ascertain the exact circumstances attending the fatality last night when Jack Bergen, sailor stationed at the United States coast guard sectional base, state pier, was crushed to death, dying almost instantly by a five-ton truck owned by Nathaniel and operated by William Starwesky, 11 Meridian street, Groton. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman has conducted an investigation and has decided that there is nothing indicating criminal responsibility connected with Bergen's demise, but all of the witnesses will be summoned before Coroner Desmond.

From the statements of witnesses, it is revealed that Bergen, who was bound from the city to the state pier, was walking along the bridge approach but not to the extreme right. When Bergen had reached a point where the state road intersects with the highway leading to the pier, a touring car, owned and driven by Frank A. Smith, 185 Central avenue, Norwich, and loaded easterly came along. Just as the car was about to pass Bergen, the latter stepped in front of the automobile and was struck with considerable force, the body of the sailor being hurled directly in front of the truck, which was heavily laden and bound for New York. Starwesky attempted to apply the brakes, but before he could accomplish the slow-down of the heavy truck, the wheels passed over the head of Bergen crushing it to an unrecognizable mass.

Bergen's funeral took place this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, at an undertaking establishment on Ocean avenue. Services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First church of Christ; and were attended by a detachment of sailors from the coast guard station and who accompanied the body to Cedar Grove cemetery, where committal was in the government plot. A volley was fired and taps was sounded as the body was lowered into the grave.

She is now a prisoner at the police station pending a hearing in the city court tomorrow morning. The Lee woman was seen in the Northwest section of the city considerably today and on each occasion she was with male company. Finally when she made her way to Riverside park, a place much frequented in the summer but where few if any congregate at this season of the year, accompanied by five or six men, complaint was lodged with Patrolman William Graham, who was on duty on Main street. That officer and Patrolman William Babcock went to the park and upon their arrival there the Williams woman was found entertaining a man, the others in the gang having disappeared.

SOLDIERS PLEAD GUILTY TO CHARGE OF FORGERY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 6—Leo Shefield and Russell Hereau, the young soldiers from Fort Wright who went into the game of getting money without working for it and without being entitled to it, put upon themselves an expense that they need not have had to meet if they had used ordinary sense in meeting the charge of forgery that was made against them and of which they pleaded guilty. They represented to the prosecuting attorney in the police court that they would not go to trial until the last minute, when one of them changed his mind and made it necessary to subpoena witnesses from New Britain. Cashier Fred Macomber of the New Britain Trust company, and John Contaras, manager of the Life Theatre company. These gentlemen came to New London, after being subpoenaed by Police Sergeant Cavanaugh, who spent most of a night in going to and from New Britain to summon the witnesses. The youths realized that they were convicted before the start, as they were guilty and they changed their pleas and escaped a penalty that would have been much more severe than they received. It is understood that they made good the money they obtained by fraud.

A girl may speak a dozen different languages and yet be unable to say "yes" to a young man in any of them.

LOUIS W. ELY DROWNED REACHING FOR FISH POLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 6—Louis W. Ely, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ely, of Fraser street, was drowned in the Thames river this forenoon when he fell overboard while fishing from the embankment beneath the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, at East New London. The body was recovered. Young Ely and two companions went to the river embankment about 9 o'clock and after fishing a short time, the Ely youth dropped his pole into the river and in his efforts to recover the implement, he lost his balance and rolled down the grade and into the deep waters of the river. Realizing the danger of their companion the other boys cried loudly for help, and within a few minutes help from one of the gasoline storage stations responded, but as the rescuers reached the river's edge Ely was sinking from view. The rescuers, however, managed to seize the boy by the clothing and pulled him ashore and it was believed that he was still alive. First aid methods were resorted to and the police were notified. A telephone message to the Niagara Engine company caused a pulmotor to be rushed to the bridge and Dr. Emanuel A. Henkle also responded. The pulmotor was put into operation in an endeavor to save the child's life, but after a half hour's labor the task was abandoned, as the physician pronounced the child dead.

JEWETT CITY

Mrs. Ellen Leyden Lee, 66, wife of John Lee, died very suddenly, Wednesday morning at her home in Lisbon. She had been in the best of health and only a week ago, complained of a slight pain around the heart. This passed away and she was as well as ever Tuesday, sleeping well all night. Wednesday morning, the pain came again, and in less than an hour she died.

She was born in the town of Preston, the daughter of John and Mary Murphy Leyden. She lived in Griswold when she was ten years old until she was united in marriage with John Lee, in May 1881. They have lived in Lisbon since then. She was a member of the Lisbon school board.

Twelve years she taught school in Griswold, before her marriage. Her death is a severe blow to her family, for she was a home-loving woman. She was the best of neighbors, and the family have been tendered the sympathy of many friends in their sudden bereavement.

She is survived by her husband, and four children; John E. Lee Jr., and Cornelius W. Lee of Lisbon; Clarence V. Lee, a clerk in Blanchard's store, Jewett City, and a daughter Vera E. Lee, a telegraph operator for the New Haven road. She leaves a sister Mrs. Maria Gibbons of Pawtucket and two brothers Peter Leyden of Groton and Henry Leyden of Boston.

The many patrons of the Finn theatre are admiring the new set of announcements frames, made for the display of the photos and lithographs, which announce a coming attraction.

At this season of the year, Jewett City is many ways attractive at any time, but is up at its best. Not every town has as fine a display of wonderful trees, flowering shrubs, and house gardens blooming with beautiful plants. A visitor who sees nothing but the state road display, as he passes through, is attracted by the beauty, from the time he enters Sylvandale, and crosses the picturesque Quinebaug, until he crosses the northern borough line.

Farmers in this section with the rush of spring work crowding to be done, are being confronted with the, of late, ever present, "hired man" problem. Gone are the days when a first-class farm hand could be hired for $30 a month and board. This week, a Griswold farmer had a call to sell, and a demand to use a number of fence posts, that reached close to a thousand. In his wood lots are ten times that number growing on the stump. The man went to see a chopper and asked his price to cut fence posts for a few days. The farmer suffered a severe

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG

New York, May 6.—With total sales exceeding the two million share mark today for the first time since the middle of March, stock prices advanced for the fifth consecutive session. Buying orders were distributed throughout the list, but were particularly effective in the public utilities, rails and motors and specialties.

Trade news was mixed in character. The weekly steel reviews failed to disclose much improvement in that industry although the steel stocks held relatively firm. U. S. Steel common closed fractionally higher at 115 5-8 after selling above 116. Replogle Steel closed 1 1-2 points higher at 18 1-2.

Gasoline price reductions in New York city and a few other eastern municipalities had a restraining effect on trading in the oil group, which showed mixed changes. Gross earnings of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company for the first four months of the year, made public today, exceeded $37,000,000, or about equal to the gross earnings for the first seven months of 1924.

Buying of the rails was stimulated by the publication of statistics showing that car loadings for the week ended April 25 had established a new high record for the year and were 36,000 cars above the week before. Further accumulation of St. Louis-San Francisco common sent that stock up more than two points to a new high record at 81. New peak prices also were established by Gulf, Mobile and Northern, Colorado and Southern, second preferred and Seaboard Air Line common and preferred.

Other strong spots included Lehigh Valley, Missouri Pacific preferred, Texas and Pacific, Wabash common and Ann Arbor common, Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred, Pere Marquette and Pittsburgh and West Virginia, all of which showed net gains of 1 1-2 points or more. Heavy selling of Union Pacific just before the close sent that stock down from 139 1-8 to 136 1-4, closing slightly above the bottom for a net loss of more than one point on the day.

Utah securities was again the sensational feature in the public utilitiy group soaring more than 12 points to a record top at 121 1-2, or nearly three times the year's low price established in February. Federal Light and Traction soared more than ten points to a new top at 166 and then fell back to 152 1-2 on profit taking. Among the other issues in that group to break through their previous high levels were Virginia Railway and Power. Consolidated Gas, Brooklyn Union Gas, American Telephone, Montana Power, North American, Electric Power certificates, Columbia Gas and All-American Cables.

A sudden burst of activity in the Willys-Overland issues set the common up more than two points to a new high record at 18 5-8 on total transactions of about 100,800 shares. Maxwell A advanced 1 5-8 points but the B fell back 2 1-2. The accessory issues displayed a strong tone, Spicer touching a new high at 21 and American Bosch Magneto, Stewart-Warner and Stromberg Carburetor closing a point or more higher.

American Can was the outstanding strong spot among the industrials, soaring 6 points to a record high for all time at 183. United States Cast Iron Pipe jumped 4 1-2 points to 160 1-2 on reports of an advance in pipe prices. American Woolen preferred closed nearly five points higher at 75 after touching the lowest price in ten years at 69 1-2. The common established a new 1925 low at 34 3-4 and then rallied two points.

Call money held steady at 3 3-4 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges ruled slightly easier. Demand sterling was quoted just under $4.85 and French francs around 5.21 1-2 cents. Norwegian kroner broke 15 points to 16.84 cents.

PRISON SENTENCE WOULD HAVE SAVED DIAMOND

Citing an experience that the United States authorities in this state had with one of the Diamond boys months ago, Assistant United States District Attorney George H. Cohen, during an address before Everyman's Bible class in New Britain, Sunday, declared that children today are growing up without moral or religious training and without proper supervision from their parents. He described the Diamond incident as follows:

"Nine or ten months ago a complaint was received at our office from the state's attorney of Windham—or Tolland county perhaps it was—that there had been arrested two boys charged with carrying weapons. It seems that somewhere in the northern part of the state there came along an automobile with these two boys and stopped at the side of the road. The two boys got out of the car and started to pick apples from a tree on private land. They were not satisfied with picking the apples from the ground by the road, but went right onto the land and picked the apples. The owner of the land came and demurred, whereupon, to bring him to terms, one of the boys pulled a revolver, which caused the farmer to become silent.

"They took their apples and started off. The farmer, however, complained to the police. The boys were apprehended, and it was found that not only were they carrying weapons but had stolen the car in Webster, Mass. They were, therefore, prosecuted and given six months apiece for carrying guns, and then turned over to us for prosecution for stealing a car and bringing it from one state into another.

"When the case came up in our court it was found that the only one to whom we could attach the guilt was a young boy by the name of Diamond. This boy came before the court. His attorney appeared and presented letters of recommendation the like of which I have never seen in any criminal case.

"I would today hesitate to mention the names of the men who signed recommendations for this particular boy. Judge Thomas, who was on the bench, read the recommendations, listened to the plea of the attorney that this was only a young boy, listened to the story that his father was dead, that his mother and sisters were very fine people, and heeded the requests and these recommendations that he be lenient with the boy and fined him $300 and let him go.

"I wish we had given him ten years, because if we had given that boy ten years he would today be alive. As it is, a few nights ago, at midnight, he and his brother and another were electrocuted in Sing Sing for having deliberately and in cold blood shot down two bank messengers who were carrying money."

TRUCK LANDED IN COVE AT STONINGTON

A five-ton Pierce Arrow truck owned by Gaucas Brothers of Providence, R. I., Connecticut registration 24-213 and Rhode Island registration X-5066, operated by Harry Donnelly between New London and Providence, crashed into a fence at Quiambaug Cove, Stonington, at noon Wednesday and toppled over on its side, throwing three occupants into the cove. None of the occupants was injured.

Donnelly stopped the truck to pick up a pedestrian and in getting started again, lost control of the machine. In the front seat were Donnelly, Joseph Martelli, a truck mate, and the pedestrian, whose name could not be learned. The front axle of the truck was bent. Wreckers from a garage at Mystic were at work in the afternoon removing the truck from the cove.

TAFTVILLE

The Taftville Congregational Church gave a complimentary dinner to the choir and Miss Nellie Howie, the organist at the church, on Tuesday evening. The dinner was planned and served by a committee consisting of Miss Gertrude M. Young, Mrs. A. E. Pingree, Mrs. Allan Bogle, Mrs. John Veilkman and Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis. About 30 guests were present.

After the dinner, Professor J. Lawrence Erb of Connecticut College gave a most interesting and informal talk. The topic was Colonial Music in New England, especially church music. Dr. Erb discussed psalmody and psalm singing, the developing of the psalm tune and the hymn tune, and the several composers of different periods. He referred especially to the establishment of choirs and the introduction of the organ. He spoke of the prejudice against singing by note and also against all musical instruments in the church except the base viol. Dr. Erb discussed early American composers especially Billings in church music and Hopkinson in secular music. He referred to the musical attainments of Benjamin Franklin and his ability in playing several instruments. This was of interest because we usually think of Franklin in connections other than musical. Washington was also mentioned not only as a patron of music but as a man with ability as a flute player. Among the great names in the music of this Colonial period are Granpner, Webb and Mason. Granpner was an orchestral conductor in Boston, and the present Boston Symphony Orchestral goes back to him. Webb was an editor and composer. His name lives today in one of the great hymns of the church. Mason also was a great name and genius in hymnody. Many of his tunes are still used. Dr. Erb illustrated his interesting talk by using the piano at different points as he proceeded with his theme.

The roque season opened officially this week when one of the roque courts on Ponemah heights was put into condition, and the other two will be in use as soon as they can be overhauled." Daylight saving is always popular with the members of the roque clubs, and the sound of the mallet and balls can be heard until a late hour each night.

The large lot at the top of the sandbank on Occum Road is being plowed and made ready for the spring planting. It is owned by the Ponemah mills.

St. Veronica's T. A. & B. Society met Wednesday evening in their rooms on Providence street, with the president Miss Louise White presiding.

The dogwood trees on the cliffs near North Third avenue are beginning to bloom and some are covered with cream colored blossoms. In about another week, the trees will be a mass of bloom and the cliffs will be one of the beauty spots of the village.

Miss Elizabeth B. Houston has been appointed the local representative and treasurer of the Acorn Christian Endeavor Institute which is to meet in the Congregational Church May 23rd and 24th.

Lucien Lefebre has resigned his position with the carding department of the Ponemah company.

Arthur Satterstrum and family have taken a house on South Fourth avenue.

Arthur DeJourdy, a former resident of the old Canterbury turnpike, now of Pomfert, Conn., was in town Wednesday calling on relatives and friends. A few weeks ago Mr. DeJoudy bought a 45 acre farm on the Willimantic-Putnam road and is now occupying it with his family.

Frederick Handy is to lead the Christian Endeavor Society meeting next Sunday evening at the Taftville Congregational Church.

The members of the Castle Perilous, K. O. K. A. held a short meeting Wednesday evening at Ponemah hall, to plan the Pentecost conclave which is to be held early in June.

Lemon Removes Lines, Wrinkles

Squeeze the juice of two lemons in a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents, shake well and you have the very mildest anti-wrinkle lotion to tighten relaxed skin, erase fine lines and eradicate crows-feet.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the skin at night. By morning most of the tell-tale wrinkles, tired lines and crows-feet are smoothed out, giving a more youthful contour to cheeks, chin, throat. It leaves the skin velvety soft, clear and fresh.

Beauty experts use this astringent lotion for enlarged pores, also to bleach and whiten sallow, tanned skin.

Mix this harmless lotion yourself since it acts best immediately after prepared.

JOHN D. WELLS WILL GO ON TRIAL FOR SHOOTING HIS FATHER-IN-LAW

John D. Wells of Mystic, who is about 22 years old, will go on trial this (Thursday) morning in the superior court at New London before Judge John R. Booth and a jury on the charge of assault with intent to murder for shooting his father-in-law, William Lamb, on the night of April 4 at the Lamb home in Mystic.

Three shots were fired, the first passing through Lamb's ear, the second went into his shoulder and the third struck him in the mouth, passing through his heavy moustache, knocking out a number of teeth, and lodging in the back of Lamb's mouth from which he spit it out. Mrs. Lamb and her daughter Mildred, the wife of Wells, were present at the time of the shooting.

Wells pleaded not guilty when presented in the superior court to plead Wednesday morning. He elected to be tried by jury.

Two Trial Sentences.

Mrs. Pearl Flynn of New Britain, was put on trial Wednesday on the charge of adultery in Norwich March 2, with Bertram W. Govan of Hartford, who had pleaded guilty, but the woman had pleaded not guilty. Judge Booth heard the case and found the woman guilty, sentencing her to two months in jail and giving Govan six months in jail. The testimony against Mrs. Flynn, who is 22, was given by county detective Wm. Lewis, Sergeant Mathew Delaney and Officer P. Murphy of the Norwich police force, who told of arresting the couple in a Norwich rooming house where they were occupying a room together and had registered as man and wife. Mrs. Flynn admitted on the stand the circumstances of the arrest to which the officers had testified but denied that there had been any wrongdoing. Judge Booth declared that her testimony was not credible under the circumstances. Attorney Thomas M. Shields appeared for Mrs. Flynn.

Menghi Goes to Jail.

Joseph Menghi, of New London charged with indecent assault upon a four-and-one-half-year-old girl, was sentenced to not less than one year and not more than two years in state prison, by Judge Booth. Menghi, who is 25 years of age, pleaded guilty to the charge and State Attorney Arthur M. Brown asked for such a sentence. The accused was represented by Attorneys Clayton B. Smith and Jeramiah J. Desmond.

Reformation and Probation.

Walter Bagotski, 17, of Lebanon, pleaded guilty to a charge of statutory burglary, and was sentenced to the Cheshire reformatory, the execution of the sentence being suspended for one year and the accused placed on probation. He was represented by Public Defender Charles L. Stewart.

Mikel Case Nolled.

Andrew Mikel, alias Herman Mike of New London, charged with bribing two police officers, Detective Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh and Sergt. Nelson S. Smith, had his case nolled upon the payment of $250. Mikel was represented by Attorney William T. Connor.

Ernest Herbert of Voluntown pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny and was sentenced to six months in jail, the execution of which was suspended by Attorney Shields.

Joseph Saunders of Waterford, arraigned for violation of Chapter 21 of the Public Acts of 1921, which has to do with cruelty to children, was given six months in jail after he pleaded guilty to the charge. He was represented by Attorney Morris Lubschansky.

Three For Manslaughter

John J. Woods and Michael A. Day of New London, who are jointly charged with "Dr." William C. Bartlett, also of New London, with manslaughter in connection with the death of Miss Marion (Dolly) Winch, sweetheart of Woods, from blood poisoning following a criminal abortion, pleaded guilty to the charge. Bartlett, who is accused of performing the operation, pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by jury.

There was an array of counsel present on the case, consisting of Attorneys C. Hadlai Hull and Clayton B. Smith, for Bartlett, Attorneys Morris Lubchansky and George Curtis Morgan for Woods and Attorney John C. Geary for Day.

State Attorney Brown asked that the sentences on Woods and Day be deferred until after the trial of Bartlett and his request was granted.

BAPTISTS HAVE PLANS FOR EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN

Formation of plans for the New England evangelistic campaign occupied the second day's session of the American Baptist Home Missionary Society's conference this week at Tremont Temple, Boston, at which Rev. N. E. Mower, D. D., of Waterville, Me., presided.

A comprehensive program of future activities was presented to the conference by York A. King, superintendent for the New England district of the department of evangelism, which should have for its objectives the vitalizing of the local churches, "the evangelising of the unreached multitude," and the conservation of the results of evangelistic efforts. As a means of reviving the church, Mr. York recommended, the systematic enrollment on prayer lists of all who would pray for the movement; systematic Bible study; increased church and Sunday school attendance; the practise of personal evangelism, and the return to family devotions.

In speaking ways in which the "unreached multitude" could be brought to the church, he emphasized the use of great Biblical themes as texts for sermons, the wise use of tracts, special meetings by Gospel teams of laymen. He quoted Gypsy Smith to the effect that in Great Britain four-fifths of all preaching is done by laymen and added that more use should be made of them here.

His program included the combination and installation of simple machinery through which as a denomination the church could function along evangelical lines. To the state evangelistic committees, consisting usually of the chairmen of the associational committees, he would add a committee representing educational institutions, the combination to unite in turn two or three times a year with like gatherings of other states to form a New England committee. He cautioned careful choice and impartial representation upon the associational committees and upon the evangelistic committee.

In the discussion which followed, the state evangelistic committee of Connecticut was represented by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., of Norwich, who stated his full approval of the plan and commended its all-inclusive character.

COMPANY TAKES APPEAL FROM COMPENSATION AWARD

The Merritt Chapman and Scott Corperation of New London has brought an appeal to the superior court from the finding by Compensation Commissioner J. J. Donohue in the claim of Mrs. Sallie Northrop, mother of Patricia Northrop, a minor, dependent of the late Hans Schellwick, a captain on one of the company's boats.

The commissioner found that Patricia Northrop was a dependent of the capain, who had always shown much affection for the nine-year old girl, had at various times given money for her benefit and was paying her school expenses at a private school. Captain Schellwick died Feb. 18, 1925, and the compensation award was for $18 per week for 312 weeks, with $100 towards funeral expenses and the payment of reasonable medical bills.

Workmen's Compensation.

The following workmen's compensation agreements have been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

Uncas Paper Board Co., Norwich, employer, and John Dumbrowski, 90 Thames street, employe, injured back, at rate of $12.18.

New London Ship and Engine Co., Groton, employer, and M. Chapperian, employe, burns, at rate of $14.82.

STATE HEALTH BOARD SHOWS SMALLPOX COST

The two cases of smallpox reported last week, one of which was in Norwich, are the first cases reported in Connecticut during the present year says the current weekly health bulletin issued by the state department of health. The bulletin continues:

They serve to remind us that the danger of this disease is ever present. In each of these cases the question of expenses to be incurred by the public in combatting the disease has arisen as it always does when smallpox occurs. When figures of such expenses are compiled it is always found that smallpox costs more than vaccination.

Through the courtesy of the health officer of New Britain, this fact may be illustrated by figures for the small pox outbreak in that city during 1924. The total cost to the city of the New Britain smallpox outbreak comprising some 47 cases amounted to $24,560.72, the expenditures being distributed over 2 fiscal years. Of this amount $1,-099.54 represents the cost of the vaccination clinic where 9,000 people were vaccinated, and the balance of $23,-551.18 was expended in connection with the occurrence of 47 cases of smallpox which is slightly over $500 per case. The cost of vaccinating people at the clinic was slightly less than 12 cents per person vaccinated. Thus the cost for each smallpox case was more than 4,000 times the cost for each vaccination at the clinic.

These figures do not include loss of wages to the individual nor do they include decreased production in industry that always results from a smallpox outbreak in a community. The figures merely represent the expenditures from the public treasury because vaccination had been neglected.

The estimated population for New Britain as of July 1st, 1925, is 47,396. If the entire population had been vaccinated at city expense on the same efficiency basis as the 9,000 actually vaccinated in the free clinic, the cost to the city would have fallen short of of $8,000 or less than 1-3 of the cost of the smallpox outbreak. It so happened that the number of people vaccinated by their own physician amounted to 2 or 3 times the number vaccinated in the public clinic. Should this ratio be applied to the entire population, the cost of vaccinating the entire population would be much less than the estimate. The figures given represent the cost to the local municipality and do not include the cost of vaccine virus which is furnished by the State Department of Health.

Thus, leaving out of consideration all suffering and death, inconvenience of quarantine, loss of efficiency in industry resulting from a smallpox outbreak, and considering the question of smallpox and vaccination purely as a matter of municipal expenditure, the dollar and cent side of the argument is wholly in favor of vaccination.

Anything that reduces municipal expenditures reduces taxes. Immunization against disease does this. Thus it is to the interest of each taxpayer to have the population of his city completely vaccinated.

NORWICH EXHIBITOR AT ALLIED ARTS EXPOSITION

Local visitors at the Allied Arts Exhibition held in the Grand Central Palace, New York, this month were highly pleased to see the batick tapestries of Miss Elizabeth Kempton of Yantic and New York hanging most prominently in the entrance hall on the first floor of the exhibit.

They were the only ones of their kind—unique in design and bold in outline and created much favorable admiration. Five were given wall space.

Miss May M. Ansell formerly of Norwich, but now connected with the Master Reporting Company of New York was on the reporting staff assigned to the exhibit and awards of medals and monies April 24 and she considered it the mostcolerful in her career.

Miss Ansell was secretary of the office of the Admore Woolen Company, Yantic, during the war but left to take a course in a Boston Secretarial school entering the employ of the Columbia Trust Irving Bank company, where she married last year.

Her connection with the master reporting company takes her to many sections of the east and south east reporting conventions.

APPEALS FROM DISMISSAL OF COMPENSATION CLAIM

An appeal to the superior court from the award by Commissioner J. J. Donohue has been taken in the workmen's compensation case of John Ficaro of 32 Truman street, an employe of the Kaybrook Co. The commissioner disallowed the claim of Ficaro on the ground that he was not suffering from any condition arising out of his employment. Ficaro had an operation for hernia, but the commissioner found that in his opinion the condition from which Ficaro was suffering was not hernia.

The man received the injury on which he made a claim on Feb. 11, 1925 while carrying a bundle of nightshirts in the factory of the Kaybrook Co. He was examined by three physicians, Dr. C. John Satti, Dr. E. A. Henkle, and Dr. H. M Lee The last named could find no evidence of hernia, but Ficaro had the operation upon the advice of Dr. Satti, who was assisted at the operation by Dr Henkle.

BRANDEGEE ESTATE MAY PAY ALL ITS DEBTS

A substantial payment on the dollar, with possibility of full payment, is now forecast for the creditors of the late Senator Frank B. Brandegee of Connecticut who killed himself here October 14. Some say all the debts cannot be liquidated; some say they can be, according to a special dispatch from Washington to the Hartford Times.

The administrators have placed the debts of the estate in Washington at approximately $180,000. This is understood to be a conservative estimate. So far, claims totaling about $110,000 have been proved and filed, and $50,000 of yet unproved claims are on deck. It is a safe bet that several legitimate claimants have not yet come forward. For instance, Secretary of War Weeks and John Hayes Hammond, the inventor, were close to Brandegee and tried to save him from his financial difficulties. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, also, knew Brandegee. It is very possible that men like these lent money to the Connecticut senator. Whether they will put in claims is an important question and one that will help to determine how much the Brandegee creditors will receive.

Mortgages Over $100,000.

The $180,000 debt estimate does no include the mortgages, amounting to over $100,000, on the senator's Maryland real estate. Despite these mortgages the administrators of the estate hope to realize from sale of this real estate "enough to pay creditors a substantial amount," according to information officially filed. The Maryland home and part of the land was sold last week.

Stock possessed by the late senator, with a par paper value of about $77,-000, has been appraised at an ascertainable value of only $471.92. Frank B. Brandegee has proved as poor a stock investor as he did a real estate speculator.

The senator's listed assets are not imposing. He has deposits in the Riggs National bank of this city which total $11,084.14. His interest in the Ebbitt Hotel syndicate will realize an "amount unknown at this time." Perhaps $55,-000 would be too large an estimate. This famous old hotel, by the way, which at different times housed Grant, Lincoln, Sherman, Farragut, Custer and McKinley, closed its doors last Friday because it was losing money. Everything will be sold.

Equity in $80,000.

Another asset listed is "probable equity in $80,000 of second trust notes held by Messrs Flather and Dulany, trustees, as collateral." The two mentioned are officials of the Riggs bank in Washington. From this item the estate may realize around $2,000. Eldridge R. Jordan, local real estate man, owes the estate $9,750. Mr. Jordan states that this debt, which he says was incurred through money lent him by Brandegee when the two were in real estate deals, including taking up options, is balanced by notes of the senator endorsed by Jordan. The only other listed asset is a refund due on electricity charges from the Potomac Electric Power company. This may come to $100 or so.

Five Autos Worth $910.

In passing it may be mentioned that the five automobiles owned by the senator were appraised at $910. They included a 1923 Hudson sedan, $600; 1921 Dodge touring car, which was one of Mr. Brandegee's favorite cars, $100; 1910 Packard limousine, $50; Simplex touring car of unstated vintage, $35; Ford one-ton dump truck, used on the farm, $125.

As is known the household effects were appraised at $17,321.50 and auctioned off at nearly double that sum. A recent appraisal of the jewelry has resulted in an estimate of $50.

The appraisal of the stockholdings produced the melancholy result, which follows:

Twelve shares common stock, Hartford & Springfield Railway Co., par $100, no value.

Fifteen shares capital stock, Nitigon Mining Lands company, par $100 (recently declared liquidation dividend of $3), $45.

One hundred shares capital stock Pequot hotel corperation, New London, par $100, no ascertainable value.

Five thousand shares capital stock, Goldfield Deep Mines company, of Nevada, par five cents, appraised 2 1-2 cents, $125.

Five thousand shares Goldfield Consolidated Mines Co., Reno, Nevada, par $10, appraised five cents, $125.

Three shares Mystic Electric and Gaslight company, par $100, no value.

Ten thousand shares capital stock Oshkosh Gold Mines limited, Beatty, Nev., par $1, no market value.

Forty shares preferred capital stock Chapple Publishing Co., Ltd., par $100, no market value.

Ten shares Consolidated Engine Stock company, New London, Conn., no ascertainable valde.

Two hundred and four shares capital stock American Type-Bar Machine Co. par $1, no value.

One $100 6 per cent gold debenture of same company, no value.

One $800 6 per cent gold debenture of same company, no value.

Certificate of ownership No. 72 for membership in Pequot Canoe association, New London, par $100, $51.92.

The Pequot hotel stock and the canoe association certificate were sent to New London last winter so that money could be borrowed on them from banks there to prevent foreclosure proceedings on the mortgages on Brandegee's Maryland real estate. To indicate how worthless some of the senator's stock is, when the appraisers wrote to the Oshkosh Gold Mines Ltd., the letter was returned from Beatty, Nev., with the notation "no such company here."

Will Drawn 1895.

The only will left by Frank B. Brandegee was drawn July 16, 1895, and left everything to his father, Augustus Brandegee, who has been dead these many years. The senator's sister, Helen Zalinsko, was named the next heir, she died some years ago.

The Pequot Hotel corporation stock is the most valuable Brandegee stock holding. Its value cannot be ascertained until the land has been sold. The stock represents all the holdings of the late senator in the Pequot section of New London.

The remaining around 7,000 acres of Maryland real estate will be sold soon. Despite the $80,000 mortgage on them they are expected to bring a good deal of money to the estate.

BISHOP BREWSTER THINKS NEW DIOCESE UNLIKELY

Bishop Brewster of the Connecticut diocese of the Episcopal church declared Tuesday that in his opinion a division of the Connecticut diocese into two separate dioceses is very unlikely. It has been reported that the Fairfield county archdeaconry is considering such a division, the new diocese to include Fairfield, Litchfield and New Haven counties, the other five counties of the state to remain as the Connecticut diocese.

Bishop Brewster pointed out that some years ago he strongly advocated such a division, which was approved by the clergy but rejected by the laity. He has not since renewed his advocacy of the plan he said.

The whole matter is expected to be discussed pro and con at a meeting of the Fairfield county archdeaconry in Norwalk today (Wednesday). It is understood that New Haven and Litchfield counties are planning to consider the matter in meetings to be held before the convention.

POETRY

The Statues of Liberty

She stands where the old world needs us lifting the torch of liberty,
School children in Bohemia dream of her peasants on northern fjords look into the westering sun for her.
Fishermen in the caves of Capri, hewers of wood in the Black Forest—these are her lovers.
She is of them, of their thinking. She is their hope in us.
And we?
She is a gesture given us, a role for us to play.
From France she came, from the land of gestures. Foreign she is in form and foreign in feeling.
From the outside she came.
She is not of us.
Better than that we know liberty.
Better we know the hard way she leads us, the pitted path of the pioneer.
Better we see the wandering will-o'-the-wisp, the beckoning phantom that she is.
Our eyes grow dim with searching; our years are as water. Our very hearts grow gray in her service.
And we do not find her.
On our shores the gesture stands, a role for us to play, last outpost of an older world.
Children in Bohemia dream of her, and peasants on northern fjords look into the westering sun for her.
Fishermen in the caves of Capri, hew-ers of wood in the Black Forest—
these are her lovers.
Yet liberty we have not seen nor clasped nor found her.

The Way of It

The wind is awake, pretty leaves, pretty leaves,
Heed not what he says; he deceives, he deceives;
Over and over
Up the lowly clover
He has leaped the same love (and forgotten it, too)
He will soon be leaping and pledging to you.

The boy is abroad, pretty maid, pretty maid,
Beware his soft words; I'm afraid, I'm afraid;
He has said them before
Times many a score,
Ay, he died for a dozen or his heart
pricked through,
And the very same death he will die for
you.

The way of the boy is the way of the wind,
As light as the leaves is dainty maid-
kind:
One to deceive,
And one to believe—
That is the way of it, year by year;
But I know you learn it, year by year;
But I know you will learn it to late, my dear.

—John Vance Cheney.

PICTURES BY RADIO FROM HONOLULU TO NEW YORK

Photographic Negative Was Transmitted 5,136 Miles and a Complete Picture Was Perfected in Twenty Minutes—Between Honolulu and New York Not a Human Hand Intervened in the Process—Transmission of Each of the Thousands of Units Making the Picture Took About One-Fourth of a second—Successful Test is Regarded as of Great Importance to the Army.

New York, May 7—An ordinary photographic negative was placed in a photoradiographic machine in Honolulu, a beam of light played through it and the complicated apparatus began clicking. One fourth of a second later, another machine in New York, 5,136 miles away, began dotting and dashing out a copy of the negative. Twenty minutes later the machine in New York had inked in the last dot of a complete positive—making a success of the transmission of a photograph by radio across the Pacific ocean.

Seven times this process was repeated, and seven pictures of persons and events connected with the Hawaiian maneuvers of the American army and navy of last week appeared in early afternoon editions of New York newspapers.

This was the first attempt to transmit pictures by radio and telegraph over such a distance, and the promoters of the test, the Radio Corporation of America, with the co-operation of the United States army, hailed its success as another stride forward in the development of radio transmission of pictures. Similar attempts six months ago across the Atlantic were also successful, and pictures of President Coolidge and Charles E. Hughes were flashed through the ether from New York to London and back again.

Between Honolulu and New York not a human hand intervened in the process, although four relays were necessary, each accomplished automatically by linked receiving and transmitting devices. The radiophotographic machine at Honolulu, started the series of dots, dashes and spaces on the first lap of their journey, 29 miles by telegraph wire to the high power radio transmitting apparatus at Kahuku, Island of Oahu. Automatically the wire currents were changed to radio waves of a 2,372-mile leap across the Eastern Pacific to a receiving station at Marshall, Calif., which turned them again into telegraph current for a 19-mile relay to the transmitting station at Bolinas, Cal., where once more the Kahuku process was repeated to dispatch the picture units on their transcontinental lap of 2,640 miles to the radio receiving station at Riverhead Long Island. Into wire current once more the pictures were delivered at the offices of the Radio Corporation, Broad street, New York.

The transmission of each of the thousands of units making each pictures, across ocean, plain, mountain, forest, took about one-fourth of a second. The receiver in New York recorded each unit—dot, dash or space—on a sawtooth ticker ribbon, which set in motion the inking apparatus which recorded each unit in the finished positive.

The apparatus which began the process in Honolulu was a portable machine, sent last month from New York in charge of Alfred E. Koenig, 20-year old wireless expert, who four years ago was an office boy in the New York offices of the corporation. The apparatus used in today's test was practically the same as that of the trans-Atlantic success of six months ago, but improvements in speeding up the process have been made in the meantime.

Today's successful radiophotographic test is of great importance to the army, Maj.-Gen. Charles P. Summerall, commanding the second corps said. It was proved that by a slight shifting of the sending dial units of military maps could be sent which would be unintelligible to the enemy, but which the receiving apparatus could correct automatically, producing the correct map for the receiver for which it was intended.

TESTIMONY IN MURDER TRIAL OF OLYMPIA MACRI

New Haven, May 7—Two witnesses called by the state testified this afternoon to seeing Olympia Macri talking with John Bagnano for at least an hour and a half before she shot him to death on the afternoon of February 25th last. The girl defendant apparently had almost completely recovered from the effects of her collapse in the court room yesterday and sat quietly through the session today.

The witnesses were closely questioned as to conversations they had with Bagnano and Miss Macri prior to the shooting, and Joseph Kalesky, counsel for the defense, repeatedly tried to draw from them the admission that Bagnano carried a revolver on his person.

It is now expected that the state will have completed its case at the end of the present week which is the third already consumed by the trial of the girl on a first degree murder charge.

John Goggins, proprietor of a theatrical booking agency in the Poli theatre building, a witness this afternoon, told of seeing Miss Macri and John Bagnano standing in the hallway outside his office on the afternoon of the shooting and said that the girl's face had a "very troubled expression."

Questions from State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling, the witness said he went downstairs to go to a cigar store at 4.45 p. m., and that he passed the two on the stairway. While he was at the cigar store six or seven stores up the street, he heard two or three shots fired and walked hastily back to the Poli building Goggins said.

In the cross examination Mr. Kolesky asked, "Mr. Goggins, when you first saw this girl there you knew who she was didn't you?"

"No sir."

"Wasn't it the girl that Johnny told you he had been intimate with?"

"He told me about a girl he had been intimate with."

"Did you see a revolver on his person?"

"No sir."

"You knew he carried a gun in his auto, didn't you?"

"Yes sir."

"Was it this one?" Counsel for the defense produced a .38 calibre revolver.

"No sir."

Asked if Bagnano had ever showed him a revolver, Goggins admitted that the slain man had taken a gun out of the side pocket of a car one afternoon and had voluntarily shown it to him.

CAILLAUX TO SUBMIT FINANCIAL PLAN TODAY

Paris, May 7.—The following forecast of the plan devised by M. Caillaux, minister of finance, for straightening out the financial situation will appear in tomorrow's Matin. M. Caillaux will lay his plan before the cabinet tomorrow and before the finance committee of the chamber on Tuesday next.

Various expenses, which heretofore have not been incorporated in the budget will now be listed in it; for example, pensions, the deficit of the railroad and the supplementary posts, telephones and telegraphs budget, these henceforth, must be covered by taxation, leaving only the settlement of war damages as a direct charge of the treasury.

This means, the Matin says, 3,000,000,000 francs supplementary receipts from the taxpayers, half of which amount M. Caillaux intends to obtain by increased indirect taxation, and the other half by increasing certain schedules of the income tax, notably those dealing with income from investments and agricultural profit, which will be taxed in the same proportion as other sources of income.

Thus remodeled, the 1925 budget is to be voted before July 1, and the 1926 budget prepared soon enough to be introduced before the end of the session.

M. Caillaux has under consideration certain measures to procure for the treasury without a loan and without fresh taxation, the funds required for the devastated regions. However, the Matin adds, M. Caillaux's proposals can be studied at leisure as the treasury can meet its liabilities until the end of July, thanks to the favorable yield of taxes and the 1,500,000,000 francs supplied by the sale of taxation checks.

NEW TREATMENT FOR HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Toronto, May 7.—(A. P.)—Dr. W. J. MacDonald of St. Catherine, Ont., speaking before the Ontario Medical association today, gave details of a new treatment for high blood pressure, stating that in the 33 clinical cases already treated, an average reduction of systolic blood pressure of no less than 42 millimeters had been effected. He said the average reduction in diastolic blood pressure was 28 millimeters.

Dr. MacDonald informed the doctors that the treatment consists of hypodermic injections of extract of the liver. It was successful, he said, in reducing the blood pressure in 32 out of the 33 cases. In the average the patients who underwent the tests had been known to be subject to high blood pressure for six years before treatment. In every case but one the trouble yielded to treatment. Following the stopping of injections when normal treatment was reached, it was found that the pressures slowly returned to their high marks, but when the treatment was resumed a quick reduction was noted in less time with a smaller dose.

"We have patients whose pressures have been running over 200 for years, which are now being kept under 150 with one dose a week," Dr. MacDonald said.

NAVIGATION LAWS VITAL FOR MERCHANT MARINE

New York, May 7.—A complete overhauling of the administrative machinery of the government's navigation laws is one of the most vital needs for a powerful merchant marine, J. Walter Drake, assistant secretary of commerce, tonight told the American Merchant Marine Association at its annual dinner.

"The government's present loose-jointed organization consists of no fewer than 17 different agencies representing half of the executive departments, all of which have to do with various aspects of the shipping problem. This means a duplication of plant and personnel and a waste of money and effort such as would never be tolerated in private business," he said.

Under the direction of the president, Mr. Drake said, effective efforts are being made to improve and simplify the administrative machinery of the government. The solution Mr. Drake said, is the development of a activities under the direction of a single administrative officer.

Secretary Wilbur Guest of Stonington

Records Show an Ancestor Bought Farm on Preston Plains in 1770.

Stonington, May 7—Secretary of the Navy Curtis Wilbur, accompanied by Captain A. G. Gherardi and Commander E. J. King of the submarine base at Groton, was received here this afternoon by Warden C. B. Crandall and the board of burgesses at the borough hall.

Secretary Wilbur came here to look up his forbears. The records show that his great-great-great grandfather, Jedediah Wilbur, bought a farm on Preston Plains in 1770. In 1796 he sold the farm and was living in Worthington, Mass.

Before leaving here by automobile for Hartford where he was to be the guest of honor at a chamber of commerce dinner, Secretary Wilbur visited the site of the old fort with its cannons that were used in the war of 1812, and other points of interest.

WILBUR ADDRESSED CONN. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Hartford, Conn., May 7—Any reliance solely upon aircraft for defense purposes was declared insufficient by Secretary Wilbur in an address tonight before the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce.

"To defend America we must be prepared to defend its interests and our flag in every corner of the globe," he asserted. "The suggestion that the United States can be defended solely by aircraft operating from our shores is born of ignorance of what constitutes our nation and of its vast and world-wide interests, and also of an unwise enthusiasm for one feature of national defense."

An adequate navy is necessary for national defense, he declared.

"A Chinese wall around continental United States," he continued, "whether or stone, of coast defense batteries, or of bombing planes capable of attacking ships 250 miles from our coast, is no defense of the farflung commerce and interests of the United States. World-wide interests require a world wide defense.

"A Chinese wall around the United States would no more protect the United States that a Chinese wall around the state of Iowa would protect that state. An American child crying on the banks of the Yangtsee a thousand miles from the coast can summon the ships of the American navy up that river to protect it from unjust assault. Any nation facing the sea can be called to account by our navy.

"A wise and sane development of the army and navy, a reasonable advance along lines of progress in all means of national defense will remove serious thought of aggression by others. Let us seek peace and pursue it diligently, wisely and persistently, and may our peace redound to the peace an dsecurity of all men."

The navy secretary, speaking on "Commerce and the Flag," asserted that, "as our nation has been knitted together in its material and moral interests by its interstate commerce, so it has been joined by its foreign or international commerce."

"The ships of all nations entering and leaving our ports," he said, "are like shuttles weaving bonds of international interest and friendship.

"Americans have over twenty millions of tons of merchant shipping to carry the commerce of the world worth three billion dollars. We have loans and property abroad, exclusive of government loans, of over ten billions of dollars.

If we add to this the volume of exports and imports for a single year—about ten billion dollars—we have an amount almost equal to the entire property of the United States in 1850, and if we add to this the eight billion dollars due us from foreign countries, we have a total of 31,000,000,000 dollars, being about equal to the total wealth of the nation in 1874.

"These vast interests must be considered when we talk of defending the flag, x x x the World War with all its philosophical and historical basis, furnished a clear instance of violated commercial rights and of our defense thereof. We fought not because Germany invaded or threatened to invade America but because she struck at our commerce on the North Sea, and denied to our ships and to our citizens on the high seas the protection of our flag as she denied the protection of other neutral flags."

RIFFS MORE TROUBLESOME THAN FRENCH EXPECTED

Paris, May 7—The latest reports received from the trouble zone in Morocco are regarded by technical experts in Paris as showing that the Riffians are giving the French more trouble than was expected. This deduction is made particularly from the fact that the French General Colombat's column is still fighting in the region of Djebal Bibane, where it came to grips with the invaders a few days ago, and also from the fact, which developed from today's despatches, that several French posts in that sector, and farther east where Colonel Freydenburg's column has been violently engaged, still remain surrounded by tribesmen.

Airplanes are endeavoring to keep the detachments holding the posts supplied with water and provisions, and thus far, official despatches assert, the posts have shown no signs of distress. Water and munitions are the most urgent needs of the small groups. The airmen yesterday and today resorted to a new device for getting water to the beseiged garrisons by dropping cakes of ice upon or near the posts.

The turn taken in the hostilities during the past few days indicates that one feature of the tactics of the Riffians is trench fighting. This is considered likely to prolong the struggle and increase the chances for political complications at home. Already the socialist organs are asking pointed questions as to what is going on in the region of Ouergha.

TEN PERSONS INJURED AT CROSS ROAD RIOTS

Eldorado, Ark., May 7—The number of wounded in last night's riot at Cross Roads, in the Norphelt oil district, today was increased to ten when county officers, endeavoring to round up negroes who fled from a pipe line construction camp, found two who had been wounded. The death list remained at one, but two white men are seriously injured.

Cross Roads, a new boom oil town which was sprung up since the recent new oil strike in the Norphelt section, is quiet today but county officers remain at the scene. Several arrests are expected, officers said.

The trouble was said today to have grown out of alleged importation of negro laborers into the district by the Standard Oil company which is building a pipe line to the Mississippi River. It had been reported that the company was paying the negroes $3 a day instead of the $4.50 a day formerly paid, and last night 300 white oil workers met by agreement to run the negroes out of town.

J. E. Bottoms, of Normangee, Okla., in a statement today said that he had warned a group of negroes to leave the camp and was proceeding to another group when some one fired a shot. The shooting then became general.

PREFERS EXECUTION TO THE SURGEON'S KNIFE

Ossining, N. Y., May 7—Although he is already under sentence of death for murder, Julius Miller, negro, known as "Yellow Charleston" refused his consent today to an operation for appendicitis at Sing Sing hospital on the ground that he might die under the knife. When the doctors urged the operation after he was stricken last night, the prisoner first gave his consent but later asked if it were dangerous. Receiving an affirmative answer he declared: "Then I don't want it; I might die." Under the rules of the penitentiary, the operation cannot be performed without his consent.

CHASERS TIGHTENING BLOCKADE OF RUM ROW

A Call Has Been Issued For Between 400 and 500 Guardsmen Recruits For the New York District—Strength of Rum Fleet is From 15 to 30 Vessels—They Are at Anchor All the Way From 18 to 40 Miles From Shore—Patrol Boats Dart Out to Meet New Arrivals—Determined to Keep Them Isolated From Shore.

New York, May 7—New York coast guard officials claiming that their three-day-old blockade of the Atlantic rum fleet continued 100 per cent. effective, put the stamp of seeming permanency on this phase of the anti-wet war today by issuing a call for between 400 and 500 guardsmen recruits for the local district.

It became known, too, that the drive for recruits is more or less national, similar campaigns being in preparation at Norfolk, Va., Washington, Baltimore and Boston.

The blockade was tightened today, a score or more rum chasers leaving the local and other nearby bases for the line of action. Most of these boats were said to be replacements, being sent to the row to relieve some of the smaller boats which have been on the job since the blockade opened in heavy seas and bleak weather stirred by a near gale.

Almost simultaneously with the announcement of the departure of the reinforcements and replacements, the destroyer Cunningham returned to her base from the blockade zone to report that four new contraband carriers had joined the line of beleaguered ships at anchor all the way from 18 to 40 miles from shore. One of the four, towering above the others, was a big German steamer from Hamburg. All presumably had come unaware of the blockade and were drawn into the government's net before their captains could be warned.

Their anchor chains hadn't finished their clatter through the hawse holes before eight patrol boats, held in reserve for just such an emergency, had darted forward to greet them. Two of the 75-foot patrol boats attached themselves to each of the liquor carriers and settled down to the business of keeping them isolated from the shore.

Estimates of the rum fleet's strength varied from fifteen to thirty. Captain W. V. E. Jacobs, New York commandant of the coast guard, refused to discuss this phase of the subject, as well as most others, the policy of campaign secrecy, suggestive of war measures, which was inaugurated with the opening of the offensive Tuesday still was being continued.

Captain Jacobs denied, however, that any seaplanes had been added to the coast guards' fleet forces, but were unable, he said, to explain the presence of a number of government flyers over the blockade zones at various times yesterday.

Captain Jacobs said he was elated at the result of the blockade. No captures have been made, he explained, because there has been nothing to capture. The rum runners ashore and at sea are taking enforced holidays and the price of liquor was reported to be rising in New York as a result.

SEES GREAT POSSIBILITIES FOR COLLOIDAL CHEMISTRY

Cambridge, Mass., May 7—Dr. Herbert Freundlich of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute, Germany, who delivered the first of a series of lectures at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology today, declared after his lecture on methods of colloidal chemistry that this science is the basis of biology and that with its development will come a fuller knowledge of the mysteries of life itself.

The surface of this vast field has scarcely been touched, he indicated, but said that already practical application of colloidal chemistry was making itself felt in the life of the world. Colloidal chemistry, he said, undoubtedly dealt with the underlying chemical basis of living creatures—animals and plants. Hence, he declared, its study would result in vastly greater insight into the life processes of living organisms. And this in turn, he said, would lead to increasingly great power to direct their life and growth and evolution at will.

Through colloidal chemistry, the growth and size of microbes can be regulated or the germs checked and killed, Dr. Freundlich explained.

It would be difficult to indicate, he said, how far reaching its effects might become. It will affect the food supply, leading to the production of hardier and better grains, he said.

BELIEVES BROTHER IS HELD PRISONER BY HI-JACKERS

Riverhead, N. Y., May 7—Nathan Hill, brother of Prescott William Hill, who disappeared from Harvard Medical school on October 27, 1922, conferred with county officials today in an attempt to identify his brother with the "William Preston" whose name was signed to a note found in a bottle April 1, saying that "Preston" was held prisoner by hi-jackers in the old forts on Gardiner's Island.

Nathan Hill returned to his home in Providence, R. I., after failing to establish conclusively the identity. A letter written by his brother to his mother five days before he disappeared was compared with the note found in the bottle. The handwriting was not entirely the same, although certain similarities were discovered, Hill said.

Hill said that Preston was a family name and that his brother might have assumed it as he had previously spoken of changing his name.

Prescott Hill was graduated from Brown university in 1915. He was gassed and shell-shocked while serving with the 150th Field Artillery in France.

BRITAIN WOULD MAKE EXCEPTION OF WARSHIPS

Geneva, May 7.—(A. P.)—Great Britain dropped a bomb on Geneva tonight when she proposed before the international conference on the control of arms and munitions that warships be omitted from the category of armaments which will be the subject to international control. Japan and Italy supported the British move.

This action on the part of great Britain followed a move of another kind made earlier in the day, when Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, proposed an entirely new clause in the convention whereby international traffic in poison gas for war purposes would be prohibited.

Mr. Burton's appeal for favorable action on his resolution was warmly approved by the representatives of France, Italy, Brazil, Hungary, Poland and Chips. His resolution was subsequently referred to a committee of technical experts.

COURT DECISION WILL BE OF INTEREST TO MUNICIPALITIES

Lepore and the city of Norwalk, which is now on trial.

The jury will be asked to determine the degree of liability to which a town may be held in the event of persons suffering injuries from falling limbs from shade trees bordering public sidewalks.

Acquino, a dealer in vegetables, was driving his automobile on Chapel street, Norwalk, following a severe windstorm. A limb fell, crashed through the top of his car and injured him. He named as defendants, both Mrs. Lepore, owner of the property in front of which stood the tree, and the city.

Before the trial, counsel for Mrs. Lepore asked that she be relieved as a co-defendant, it being held the city alone was responsible for accidents in which were concerned sidewalk trees. The motion was denied.

Submission of evidence had not been completed when court adjourned this afternoon.

MRS. JULIE SHEPHERD FILES $5,000 RELEASE BOND

Chicago, May 7—Mrs. Julie Shepherd, co-guardian and foster mother of William Nelson McClintock, millionaire orphan, held on two charges of accessory to murder in connection with the death of her ward and his mother, Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, tonight furnished the $5,000 bond stipulated for her release pending presentation of the case to the grand jury.

William D. Shepherd, her husband, and young McClintock's principal heir under the terms of his will, had been indicted for McClintock's murder and has been recommended held to the grand jury for murder in connection with Mrs. McClintock's death.

The only other development of the day was the report by Miss Gladys Roberts, operative of a detective agency, that she had been assaulted and beaten by two men on the street last night. She had appeared at the coroner's inquest last week and testified regarding a meeting between Shepherd and the operative of the detective agency by which she was employed, at which time she said her employer told Shepherd to "stick to one story" and he would come out all right.

THREAD MILLS OPEN MONDAY—"STAND PAT!" SAY STRIKERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, May 7—Announcement was made from the office of the local plant of the American Thread company Thursday that the mills would be opened under power next Monday morning, the beginning of the tenth week of the strike and that the company, intends, as far as possible, to find employment for all previously employed at the mills.

The statement is signed by Agent Don H. Curtis and comes as a follow-up of the importing of a small group of men from Massachusetts to take up the work of the engineers of the plant who have been on strike.

When the strike was declared the firemen dropped their shovels, with the exception of a night and day shift of two men each, who remained on the job, in compliance with the laws. These men quit their posts early Thursday afternoon, when the imported employes walked into the boiler room. The men brought to this city Wednesday night by the company were housed at The Elms which has been set up to house the newcomers. There are still several girls occupying rooms there, but it is understood that they are making plans to leave. The imported workers were fitted up with overalls and other equipment before being sent into the mills to work.

"We stand pat," was the statement issued from the strikers' headquarters Thursday when the announcement of the opening of the mills was made known. "When the mills open and the whistle blows Monday morning," stated the leaders "we will all go to the gates—but no further."

The strikers are continuing negotiations with the employes of the Holyoke mills of the American Thread company to enlist them in their ranks. A meeting for that purpose was held in that city Thursday night.

JEWETT CITY

Two clippings from The Norwich Bulletin were sent to the correspondents on nearly the same day, one from Homer L. Lee, of Webster, and one from Charles Edward Prior, of Hartford. They were the same item and referred to the old stone church so long occupied by the Congregationalists, and then sold to the Catholic church. The item was written by Mr. Prior May 14, forty-one years ago. It is of added interest to the recent historical paper read at the one-hundredth anniversary of the Congregational church. The plate referred to was later given to the New London county Historical society. The item: "F. P. Partridge of this place has in his possession a brass plate seven inches square that was taken from under the corner-stone of what is now the Catholic church when it was enlarged and remodeled a few years ago. The plate bears upon the obverse the inscription: "This church was erected for the worship of Almighty God according to the rites and ceremonies of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States under the direction of the Rev. Ammi Rogers A. M., the first and present rector in this church—John Schofield, John Corning, Wardens; James S. Simmons, James Burnham, Ebenezer Latham, Christopher Avery, Calvin Rawson, vestrymen; Joseph Stanton, treasurer; Perry M. Herskell, clerk. And this plate was deposited under this stone September 14th, A. D. 1814." Upon the reverse appears the following

This corner stone was laid in ample Masonic form under the direction of St. James lodge in Preston, No. 23, on the 14th day of September, in the year of light and Masonry 5814, and of Christ 1814, by the worshipful Ebenezer Gere, master, Nathaniel Kimball, senior warden; Ebenezer Avery junior warden, James Cook, treasurer; Charles Smith, secretary, Adin Cook, Ralph Hutchinson, deacons; Joseph Stanton, tyler."

The pickerel season is open, with but few catches noted. Yet according to report, Meadow Brook trout fishermen are still returning with extra heavy trout. If one visits the big fish stalls in the Quincy or Faneuil Hall markets in Boston, during the close season for trout, he will see trout offered for sale. Each trout, however, has a brass tag clamped on its tail, which is to tell that these fish came from a private trout pond, where they were hatched and raised as a man does hens. Now comes Old Cluey Watson to the fore. Nobody knows the loan, flecked pools, and moss-green banks as he does. Only at such times as the law permits, will he take a selected angler, that has probably greased up the old man's palm a bit, to these secluded spots. Enthusiastic fishermen from the borough, in one case at least, have reported about the remarkable procession of trout the aged woodsman is able to call forth from beneath the sunken logs of his favorite pools. ## ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

The Palace theatre last night was the scene of wild enthusiasm and vociferous applause as each number was rendered by Paul Specht and his famous original orchestra.

After hearing them the first of the week it seemed hardly possible that anything could be added to their offering to further enjoyment; yet somehow the new group of numbers have a certain symphonic tang, that like old wine, improves with age.

Roy Smeck almost makes his Spanish guitar talk and his specialty was received with greatest acclaim. It is interesting to observe the manner in which Paul Specht conducts, absolutely at ease and seemingly unconcerned. A flourish of the bow and—they're off! Then you see the difference between bands and a band. Each phrase, every crescendo, the modulations, the perfect rhythm as this group of world renowned artists respond to merely a nod from their peerless leader is the answer to the reason for composers to remark "We Studied Better Than We Knew."

Specht and his band make their final appearance slightly earlier Saturday night in order that they can go to Dannaland, Ocean Beach for their dance engagement at that place.

The next feature act on the bill is "Flashes of songs and dances" which presents semi-classic songs and solo dancing of the artistic type. This act surpasses anything of its kind ever presented at the Palace. It is offered with special scenic effects which makes it the more pleasing. The "Flying Russels" openers for the bill execute some very sensational and thrilling stunts on the swinging trapeze and are well received for their efforts. Ford and Edison dish out a line of crook stuff that keeps the audience howling from start to finish. Jeff Smith, billed as the Southern Bronze furnishes a lot of snappy jokes and sayings and proved a great favorite with the audience at last night's performance. Together with the feature picture Captain January featuring Baby Peggy it is a bill chocked full of variety and should be seen by everyone.

Edward F. Cline, who directed Baby Peggy in "Captain January," the young star's first great production under the banner of Principal Pictures Corporation, has some of the screen's finest achievements to his credit. However, never has he accomplished such brilliant work nor created such a masterpiece as he has in this powerful and heart-gripping photoplay.

Cline, who was born in Honeoha, Wis., in 1892, is one of the youngest directors in motion pictures. He began his screen career with Keystone and later directed many of the Dennett-Paramount pictures. He has also been associated with Fox-Sunshine, Metro and First National.

It was Cline who directed Jackie Coogan in "Circus Days" for Principal Pictures. Other well known productions for which he handled the megaphone include "Convict 13," "Three Ages" and "The Meanest Man in the World."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Why Fairbanks Produced "Thief"

There is a touch of the fantastic even in the reasons I made The Thief of Bagdad—for it is a reason impelled by the unseen. It is a tribute to the lesson that I believe underlies the workaday philosophy of man; a recognition of the inner forces that belie the weariness of life.

There can be no doubt that the ruthless world's reaching for finer, higher, more ethereal things is intuitive and first manifests itself in a child's love of fairy tales and fantasy.

The dreams, longings, and roseate ambitions of childhood are relegated to the background of life by the struggle of existence, but stifling them does not kill them. They persist throughout the years. There are moments when we all "dream dreams."

Imagery is inherent in the human breast. The brave deeds, the longing for better things, the striving for finer thoughts, the mental pictures of obstacles overcome and successes won are nearer to our real selves than our daily grind of earthly struggle.

The Thief of Bagdad is the story of things we dream about; a tale of what happens when we go out from ourselves to conquer Worlds of Fancy. We set out to win our Heart's Desire; we diemesh ourselves bravely; our success is complete; our reward is Happiness.

I believe that this is the story of every man's inner self and that every man will thus see it.

That's the reason I made The Thief of Bagdad.

DOUGLASS FAIRBANKS.

The Thief of Bagdad will be shown again at the Bread theater today and Saturday. The tenth chapter of the Iron Man and the Pathe news will also be shown.

Broadway Theatre

All we will say that when you visit the Broadway Theatre today or Saturday you are going to see a wonderful show. Here are the acts that make it so.

Paiet & Wilson in "Bits of Everything."

Curry & Graham presenting "A Little Scotch & Irish."

Hicks Bros. "Pulling Stringz."

Harry White "The Twelve Minute Man."

Elsie May Gordon "The Travelling Hoosier Girl" presenting "Character Song Studies." Miss Irene Jones at the piano.

The Road to Vaudeville, song-dance and travesty.

Hal Neiman "One of the Four Horsemen."

Theodore & Swanson in an acrobatic offering "Five A. M."

Replete with all the wholesome ingredients that go to make up a really fine entertainment, "The Painted Flapper," which was seen last night at the Broadway Theatre, and remains for a stay of three days, will be remembered by many for its delightful cynicism in a cleverly picturized burlesque on the present day American girl, topically termed the flapper.

Every phase of modern gloom destroyers is injected into the story, such as Mah Jong, The Camel's Walk, and other eccentricities that are essentially necessary for the younger set to qualify for the Sacred Order of Flappers and Sheiks.

In this extremely difficult characterization, Pauline Garon adds infinite glory to fame as an accomplished actress. James Kirkwood, who plays the part of the man from abroad, is ever prominent with his brilliant personality. Others eminent in the cast are Claire Adams, Crauford Kent, Johnny Harron, Maine Geray, Kathlyn Williams, Hal Cooley and Al Roscoe.

Four Buicks to be Given Away

An event that is sure to prove of exceptional interest to every resident of Norwich will take place on May 11 and 12 at the well-known store of Preston Bros. on Main street according to an announcement by Preston Brothers stated that he had succeeded in arranging with Devoe & Raynolds Co. Inc., the oldest paint concern in America, to hold one of the famous Devoe demonstrations on these dates, and that in connection with the demonstration a contest will be held with four brand new, late model Buick automobiles as prizes. The automobiles, which will include, as first prize, a Buick master six five passenger coach; second prize, a Buick five passenger master six touring; third prize, a Buick standard six touring; third prize, a Buick standard six five passeger coach; and fourth prize, a Buick five passenger touring car will be given away absolutely without any cost to any contestant.

The conditions are very simple. All you have to do is go to Preston Bros. store during the Devoe demonstration and secure contest blanks and complete information about the Devoe Home Improvement plan, by which you can paint your home and pay for it in ten monthly installments. After watching the demonstrator, all the contestant has to do is to write a simple phrase of five words or less describing the Devoe Home Improvement Plan.

The contest is being held on a national basis. It will be decided and winners announced Friday, the 13th of June at Devoe & Raynolds Co., Inc., 101 Fulton street, New York on July 15th. A committee of five competent judges, consisting of nationally known advertising men, will decide the contest and award prizes.

Devoe Demonstration Educational

In addition to the contest feature, the Devoe demonstration offers a free course in Interior Decoration. The Devoe Factory Expert, who will be present in Preston Bros. Store, will help in the selection of color schemes and give instructions in the newest methods of finishing floors, walls, woodwork and many more. The help given at this demonstration in addition to the various prizes, makes this event a most interesting one and certainly well worth while attending.

DANIELSON

St. James' band is to step out this season and give the people of Danielson some free band concerts. This will bring cheers from the multitude. It holds the promise of some delightful evening hours at Davis park, where there is an ornamental stand almost entirely devoted these past few summers to echoing lovers' tales, delightful enough music, be it said to the ears of the infatuated, but of no special entertainment to the general public.

It was said Thursday by a member of the band that the organization, realising that no funds are available to pay for concerts, has decided to give them free. Danielson will surely appreciate this decision as a very gracious thing to do.

Over and above this the band likely will make an impression by its appearance as by the quality of its concerts. The band is to be newly uniformed this month. The uniforms are expected to arrive here not later than May 25, and the bandsmen will make their first public appearance in them on Memorial day. The new uniforms are to be of navy, with braided coats and classy caps. There will be a special uniform for the drum major.

These are days of great moment for mere man. Perhaps it hasn't occurred to the average person that official straw hat day for men is just ahead, just a week from today. In fact. Now there appears to be no adequate explanation as to why May 15 has been arbitrarily fixed for the official opening of the straw hat season, but that's when it opens and no one disputes it. Of course, all men do not wear straw hats, so those who do not are not interested parties. The point is that the men who do wear straw hats are not given to doing it prior to May 15—mark the date—nor after that other arbitrary date—September 15—when the straw hat season as arbitrarily ends. The great issue here is—why? This slavery to tradition should give the ladies a laugh—the ladies who are supposed to be so fickle in their pursuit of fashion.

This particular week straw hats for men are not a subject of great interest but wait until next week! The boys will have them if they have to buy them fur-lined. A week from Sunday will witness the spring hat parade of the sterner sex.

Doris Monday, aged 20 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delor Monday of Attawaugan, died at their home in that place Thursday.

Suspended jail sentences of 30 days were imposed upon two men who were before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court, Thursday morning.

Shriners resident in this territory have plans for attending a Shriners' gathering to be held Saturday at South Manchester.

William C. Pierceman of Worcester was a visitor with friends here on Thursday.

Not all the motorists in Danielson applauded when they read Thursday of the action of the House at Hartford in voting an additional cent a gallon tax on gasoline, making the state tax two cents per gallon after July 1. There is compensation for them, though, in the knowledge that the state plans to make the registration fees for motor vehicles less beginning with next January, so the man that uses the highways most will pay for the privilege.

Secretary John H. Corbett of the Windham County Y. M. C. A. said while here Thursday that the finance drive underway this week is progressing well and that it is anticipated that the final reports will be gratifying. Like all other projects requiring the raising of money, the Y. M. C. A. in the country is meeing the handicap imposed by a season in which business is not too good.

One of the highway abuses that has been largely checked by the vigilance of the state officers at the Danielson barracks is that of overloading heavy motor trucks, in violation of the law. Constant watch for such trucks is kept by the officers, a fact that is now generally known by truckmen who have been inclined to carry overloads if the chances of escaping detection appeared favorable.

Amadee Geulet has an injured left hand, the result of having the member caught in a machine at the local plant where he is employed.

Franklin D. Crosby, Antonio Poirier and Francis Cayen were at Wesleyan university at Middletown to attend the house night sessions of Alpha Chirho fraternity.

Several good catches of pickerel have been taken from the lakes hereabouts during the past two days.

Light frosts were reported early Thursday morning in some sections of Danielson, but no damage therefrom.

Workers here in the interest of the Woman's board of the Day Kimball hospital have been engaged in a membership drive.

Borough assessors have given the usual notice relative to filing lists of property taxable within the borough.

Some discussion is heard of the desirability of having 24-hour attendance service of the gates at the Main street railroad crossing as has been the rule in Dayville for several years. Being a section of two important trunk lines Danielson's Main street carries much traffic after 9 o'clock at night, when the gatesman goes off duty for the night.

Henry F. Richmond of Providence is visiting Providence friends for a few days.

Henry F. Richmond of Providence is visiting friends for a few days.

Rapid work will be done by the selectmen in covering the surface of Danielson's streets as soon as they are oiled. Distribution of ample quantities of sand already has been made. The oiling will be undertaken at the first favorable opportunity.

ALL WOMEN WHO WORK

Whether in the home, store, shop, mill or office, they alone know how often they are really unfit for work. It may be a headache, backache, pain in the side, nervous depression, cramps or those dreadful dragging-down pains, all of which symptoms have their origin in some feminine ailment that is making life a burden. In almost every such case these ailments will yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For a great many years this simple root and herb remedy has been restoring women to health and strength, and it will pay every suffering woman to try it.

BIG BUILDINGS PLANNED FOR EASTERN DAIRIES, INC.

(Special to the Bulletin)

Practically immediate action is to be expected, in carrying out plans of the Eastern Dairies, Inc., for the construction in Danielson of buildings to be used as the eastern Connecticut distributing, storage and refrigerating center of this new $5,000,000 corporation engaged in several New England states in the manufacture and sale of ice cream. The Dolbey Ice Cream company of Providence, with a distributing station here for several years, is one of the concerns that make up the new Eastern Dairies, Inc., the largest concern of its kind in the east.

Samuel Dolbey, head of the Dolbey company, announced here Thursday Thursday that the Eastern Dairies, Inc., has acquired a 12-acre plot of land at the head of Reynolds street, opposite the Gollup farm. On this sightly tract, which for years was the property of William J. Young of Winter street, the company will erect the structures it has planned for Danielson.

The main building will be of bungalow type, with a frontage of approximately 58 feet. It will be a sightly structure with something of the appearance of a club house and will be placed in a setting of shrubbery. Landscaping that is planned will add to the attractiveness of the grounds and the approaches. In the rear of the main building garages with a capacity of eight motor trucks will be erected. The plans call for a boiler house adjoining the main building.

The plant will be equipped for storage of ice cream and for refrigeration. No manufacturing of ice cream at the new plant is anticipated. The plan now in force of manufacturing the product in the Providence plant and sending it out by motor trucks especially designed for this service will be continued.

Mr. Dolbey was in conference with a contractor Wednesday. He said that he hoped to have excavating for the foundations underway as early as today (Friday) and to have the new plant completed in well under sixty days.

The Eastern Dairies, Inc., which recently took a lease of the property known as the Mechanic street garage, owned by Leonard Morrisson, with an option of purchase will abandon their plan to buy that property, though retaining it under lease for a year.

No estimate was given out Wednesday as to the amount of the investment that will be represented in the land and new buildings to be erected at the head of Reynolds street, but it will be very considerable.

The site selected is in a commanding locality. It borders the state highway to Providence, and from the standpoint of publicity the new plant, to be built in specially attractive style with that very point in view, will be a great asset to the corporation.

PUTNAM

Hector Duvert, 59, a long-time resident of Putnam and prominent in civic affairs died at nine o'clock Thursday morning. He has been in poor health for two years, due to heart trouble and an acute attack a year ago almost proved fatal. He recovered so as to be about again. For the past week he has remained at home but Wednesday he seemed better, was out walking and ate a hearty supper. At ten o'clock his heart began to fail and Thursday morning he died. He was conscious to the last.

His wife and children survive. Blanche, is the wife of Edward McKenna, Sister Fabiola, of the Sisters of Mercy at a New Haven convent, Irene, wife of Merrill Fish, and Arthur Duvert, owner of Duvert's Fabric Shop.

Mrs. Duvert fell and broke her hip last December and was in the Day Kimball hospital for many weeks. She is now at home but can only get around with the aid of crutches.

Mr. Duvert was born in Canada but has lived in Putnam for many years. He served in the city council for several years and for three terms was a representative to the General Assembly from Putnam. He was elected the last term in 1922. For 44 years he was a clerk in the Hat and Shoe store of the late Jerome Douty, the store now owned by Jesse E. Rich.

E. C. Rogers has reassumed the management of the Putnam Inn. It was leased the first of the year to the Knott Hotels, which operates a number of hotels in New York city and two in Connecticut. The destructive fire a few weeks ago of the Crocker House in New London, of which they were the lessee, resulted in some disorganization in their management of their Connecticut houses. A suggestion on the part of the Knott Company that they might surrender the lease was eagerly accepted by Mr. Rogers, who had been its manager for twenty years and who is also the owner of the property. He was festive at being out of harness.

At the regular meeting of the common council, it was voted to purchase 1,500 feet of fire hose from Boston. This is to be a hose of medium quality, with a three year guarantee against imperfection of material and workmanship and will cost $1.00 per foot. There was a representative of this company and one from another company at the meeting.

Both salesmen told of the merits of their hose. Chief R. E. Thurston of the fire department was of the opinion that the city ought to purchase 2,000 feet. Mayor Chapdelaine and some of the aldermen thought that 1,000 feet could suffice for the present considering the financial state of the city government. A compromise at 1,500 feet was effected.

The matter of discontinuing from January, 1925, the practice of paying hydrant rentals to the city water department, and of exempting the water department from city taxes beginning with this year, was taken up, after being tabled at the last meeting and was passed with no opposition.

Alderman Ames, chairman of the street light committee, recommended the installation of one light on Powhattan street. The light committee was empowered to act with regard to placing a light on this street and also on Van den Non street.

The police report for April showed twenty arrests, of which seventeen were for intoxication, one for breach of the peace, two for motor law violation, two for liquor law violation and one for securing goods under false pretenses. Five were sent to jail, 2 were continued, 2 were placed on probation, 2 discharged, 2 turned over to other officers, while ten paid fines and costs, totaling $1139.68.

The superintendent of streets gave a list of streets which are to be oiled this year. These are the same as last year, with addition of Walnut street from Farrows to the city line, Canal street and Harris street.

Petitions for building permits were read as follows and referred to the highway committee: Edward Fisher, brick house on Prospect street; Alphonse Lacroix, barn on Sabin street; William E. Davidson, garage on Alpha street. There was also an application for a gasolene filling station on Bridge street from Morgan H. Delaney, which was referred to the highway committee.

A notice for a special meeting May 14, was voted. At this meeting voting will be by ballot on the questions of appropriating $2,000 for oiling the streets and $100 for reimbursement of the Sisters of the Holy Ghost and of Mrs. Alice Flagg for curbing laid. Polls will be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

If pending by fifteen minutes the next meeting of the council will be a special meeting at which a successor to Simeon Larose as democratic alderman from ward 4 will be elected. Mr. Larose is moving away.

A Ford car coming up Pomfret St., Thursday noon ran into the Springfield bus near the silent cop on Main street. Of course the bus withstood the shock and the little Ford, not to be outdone by his larger brother, proceeded on its way apparently undamaged.

The Putnam, Y. M. C. A. financial campaign started by the twenty-five workers meeting at a supper at the Putnam Inn. Hugh D. Maydole of the town and country department of the International Y. M. C. A. being present, also the county secretary, John H. Corbett and the local chairman, Ernest C. Morse. The workers themselves first made their own subscriptions towards Putnam's quota which is $1,600 and then started to canvass the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto E. Wulf have gone to Pasadena, California, where they will visit their son, Oliver. They expect to be gone about three weeks.

Miss Elizabeth Rafferty, who has been in the office of State Highway Commissioner Macdonald is now with the Day Kimball Hospital as bookkeeper.

Prof and Mrs. Charles Wagner of Ann Arbor, Michigan, were called to Putnam by the death of Mrs. Wagner's father. Prof. Wagner is a member of the faculty of the University of Michigan and was formerly a resident of Putnam.

The bill increasing the pay of officials of the city court of Putnam was passed by the house of representatives Wednesday. The bill was favorably reported by the committee of both houses. It gives the judge $750 a year, the deputy judge, $450 and the city prosecutor $750.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE A GO-GETTER FOR THE TOWN

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, May 7—The following has been issued by the Putnam Chamber of Commerce.

What is the Chamber of Commerce, what has it accomplished?

The Chamber of Commerce is a non-sectarian, non-political organization working for the advancement of the civic and business interests of Putnam. Directly or indirectly it aids every citizen of this country. It is a highly desirable organization in times of prosperity. It is an imperative need in times of adversity or when a crisis arises, such as the stopping of trolley car service in 1920 and its threatened discontinuance a year later.

The achievements of the chamber in its twelve years of existence is an outstanding page in the civic history of the city.

Through the efforts of the chamber one new industry located here during the past year. An empty factory building was utilized and the industry is now a going concern, giving employment to near 100 Putnam people. This in itself is justification for the maintenance of the organization for the past twelve years as well as for the next twelve.

Every year has seen something attempted; something accomplished. A summary of the most notable achievements of the Chamber includes the following:

Three new manufacturing plants brought to Putnam through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce.

Persistent efforts to try to induce others to come here.

The men who reorganized the Chamber of Commerce twelve ago backed Senator Archie Macdonald, when he was endeavoring to have a State Trade school located here. The school is here, an asset to the city.

It also assisted Senator Macdonald to secure the paving of Union Square, Main, Pomfret and Grove streets.

The Building and Loan Association, now a flourishing institution, one of Putnam's most valuable assets, is an achievement of the Chamber of Commerce.

When the New Haven railroad curtailed train service through Putnam, the chamber secured the restoration of certain passenger trains.

When the trolley service was discontinued in 1920 the Chamber kept a line of busses operating between Putnam and North Grosvenordale.

It arranged and carried through plans for the big reception to returning soldiers.

During 1917-18 all the directors were members of the Council of Defense and supervised and carried out the immense amount of work entailed.

It was the medium through which the first strike at the Manhasset Mfg. Co. was settled. It brought together strike leaders and mill officials and work was resumed next day.

It maintains rooms, centrally located, which are used continuously without cost for all kinds of public meetings.

During the past year, besides securing one new industry, it staged Come Back Days with the first Manufacturers' Exhibition ever held in the city, in recognition of the opening of two new banks.

It provided a suitable welcome for the convention of the Franco-American Societies held in Putnam last year.

It illuminated the business section during the holidays.

It provided band concerts on Union Square.

It put over two Dollar Days.

It sponsored two Clean-up Weeks.

It conducted, through its Merchants' Committee, a Trade-in-Putnam campaign. It saved local merchants hundreds of dollars, when an attempt was made to foster a questionable advertising scheme on storekeepers.

It has taken up matters concerning highways and state parks with state departments.

It was instrumental in having a sealer of weights and measures appointed.

It was also instrumental in having Memorial Day properly observed and bringing about the making of the new bridge over the Little River a Memorial to soldiers of the World War.

It has carried on a great deal of detailed business, answering inquiries and furnishing information to individuals and organizations, all of which helps in the progress of our city.

The above is but a small percentage of the activities of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce and yet members of the Knockers' Club are constantly asking: What does the Chamber of Commerce Do? ?

TONIGHT'S CAUCUS

Called for tonight is the caucus of the republicans of the city for the purpose of nominating candidates for the city offices to be filled at the election next month.

This marks the opening of the city campaign the importance of which cannot be overlooked when consideration is given to the fact that so much rests on the selection of candidates whose ability and judgment will appeal to the voters of the community.

In the choice of city officials the aim must be to get the best possible administration of city affairs. Much therefore depends upon those who are placed before the voters for city officials, and therefore upon the party caucus, for it is there that the decision as to candidates must be made.

The fact that this is the so called off year in city elections, because no mayor is elected this June, does not justify a laxity of interest. All elections are important and it is for the welfare of the community that there should be a representative gathering of republicans at tonight's caucus for the purpose of naming and giving endorsement to those who will seek the votes of the electors of the city.

Tonight there will be nominated two aldermen, four councilmen, city treasurer, city clerk, tax collector, two city sheriffs and a member of the water board. The making of such nominations is a duty which ought not to be left to a few. Important services are involved for those who hold such offices. They will act as the representatives of the people in directing public business and the need of putting up the best possible men is obvious.

Tonight's caucus should mean the assembling of all republicans who can get there, whether there's a contest or not. The desirability of having the first gun of the campaign heard around the city should be insisted upon through the assumption of individual responsibility. It is a time for republicans to give their support, their voice if necessary, in the selection of candidates and to follow it up through election day. It is one of the duties of good citizenship.

SOUNDING FIRE ALARMS

Holyoke is the latest city to wrestle with the idea of abandoning the ringing of fire alarms. In that city alarms have been sounded as a matter of custom but the proposition which has been advanced now is that first alarms should not be sounded henceforth, that the fire stations alone should receive the alarm and the public should not know in which direction the fire is or in what locality except from what might be observed from the course taken by the apparatus. In other words the companies would respond to their respective boxes in the same manner that they go now in response to telephone calls.

One of the chief reasons for this change is that Holyoke is experiencing the same trouble as many other cities with motorists racing with the fire apparatus and clogging the streets in the vicinity of fires and the belief is that if there were no first alarms this condition would be greatly overcome.

While there is the desirability of keeping the firemen from being handicapped as much as possible any such effort is certain to raise objections, even as it has in Holyoke from those citizens who believe that they are entitled to know whether the fire is in their neighborhood, whether it is in their factory or store or in the schoolhouse where their children attend, as is indicated by the sounding of alarms, especially when there are private boxes in use.

With laws which provide against racing or interfering with fire departments it would appear that much trouble at the fires might be relieved through better enforcement, while it is recognized that the sounding of alarms whether by bell or by whistle, indicates to the street traffic which direction it can be expected the fire apparatus will go.

There always has been and there always will be much to be said against the idea of abandoning the sounding of fire alarms. The situation in Holyoke is typical of most places.

RUSTING OIL TANKS

Under the terms of the oil lease entered into between government officials and E. L. Doheny, which lease the government is now endeavoring to have annulled, it was required that Doheny should build for the government a large tank station for oil at Pearl harbor, Hawaiian Islands. This work had not only been undertaken before the suit was started by the government but the tanks have been completed and some of them have been filled with oil. There are other tanks which are empty and because they are empty they are rusting. There is oil which might be placed in them, which would stop this corrosion, but the legal tangle is such that no one is prepared to go ahead to deal with this situation for fear of the effect that it might have upon the annulment suit.

This situation is fully understood by the government as well as the Doheny interests. Everyone realizes that the empty tanks could be flooded by gravity from an elevated tank without expense, for protective purposes. With neither side willing to do anything to prejudice its interests, an offer has been made by Doheny to fill the tanks with oil for the purpose of stopping the deterioration.

Regardless of the merits of the annulment suit, this would appear to be a reasonable proposition, one which would meet the situation and check a large loss to somebody whatever may be the outcome of the suit. What is necessary is for both sides to come to an agreement upon this point and through submission of it to the court to have authority given without prejudice for the preservation of the empty tanks.

The folly of permitting the extensive outlay to go to waste, when it can be stopped without expense and without either side overstepping the rights of the other, makes a strong appeal. Great wastes are tolerated with no better excuse, but whether the suit results in favor of the government or the oil company common sense points to the advisability of applying the simple method of preservation.

STOPPING CHEMICAL WARFARE

When it is declared by Congressman Burton at the conference for the control of traffic in arms at Geneva that President Coolidge would approve the proposal he advanced for the prohibition of the exportation of poison gas for war purposes, there is little reason to suppose but what this country would likewise give its approval, and lend its support for its adoption, were there a chance for an expression on such a subject.

The desirability of stopping the use of poison gas in warfare has a broad appeal. It would be desirable if there could be an agreement between all nations which are in a position to manufacture it, and which are prepared to bring it into use in case of necessity, barring the use of such a material in waging future wars. The Washington agreement set the right example in that respect, but the importance of getting restraint applied to others is apparent.

The conference at Geneva is not empowered to deal with that phase of the matter. It is concerned with the traffic in war materials and it is impossible to consider such without including the gases and liquids which are employed for striking down the enemy, regardless of the effects, whether combatants or non-combatants are concerned.

The reception given to the proposal was by no means unfavorable. A better idea of the reaction will be gained when the committee report upon it is heard, but it is a matter which applies to all alike and it is through a general agreement that mutual benefit can be obtained. Anything that will reduce the horrors of war while efforts for world wide peace continue in force is commendable.

THE LEAD GAS TEST

While efforts are being made abroad to get the nations to prohibit the traffic in poison gas for war purposes, it is quite proper that there should be an exhaustive test made to determine whether tetra-ethyl lead gas when used in internal combustion engines becomes dangerous to human beings.

This deals with an every day, peace time situation. This chemical is utilized for the purpose of giving greater efficiency to motor fuel and a large corporation has been formed to produce and distribute it. It was long under development but when it was reported that five lives had been lost in the New Jersey plant because of it there was a recognized need of giving protection to the public and in some instances the sale of it was forbidden.

It is quite evident that no chances should be taken. If it is actually dangerous and if the exhaust fumes blow out lead particles which menace humanity there should be no toleration of it, and the corporation producing it takes the right attitude in stopping its sales until it has been determined whether it can be used with safety.

However much the value of such a chemical may be to motor vehicles there can be no thought of permitting it if it is going to mean a large loss of life. On the other hand if it is right as contended that it is not dangerous, now is the time to have this thoroughly demonstrated. The test should therefore be a complete one for there is no desire to have the highways filled with a death dealing substance, any more than there is a desire for the employment of a slow or quick agency of that type in warfare.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Republican caucus tonight.

May could relieve a lot of worry by producing a generous amount of rain

Is your favorite team keeping up to expectations at this stage of the season?

All republicans should remember the caucus tonight and the importance of being there.

Just one more week and the legal restraint on the wearing of the straw hat will be removed.

"Coolidge back of Houghton," says a headline, and back of Coolidge is, of course, the country.

When Ambassador Houghton has anything to say, he says it clearly and without wasting words.

The newspaper correspondent named as minister to Albania should find it an interesting assignment.

May shows no evidence of forcing the straw hat wearers to break out before the middle of the month.

The man on the corner says: Much difficulty is being experienced this year getting acquainted with May.

The prospects of a merger of concerns in the asbestos industry indicates the checking of the fires of competition.

Dr. Todd has discovered a steadily growing spot on the western edge of the sun. But does that prove the Einstein theory?

The demand has been for better enforcement and apparently the authorities have selected the coast guard to provide it.

Figures show that the number of bad order cars has increased in the past month, but they don't get that way by standing still.

HOPELESS PITFALLS

"Let's have somebody to dinner," said the social husband. "Let's have the Goodwillies and the Antlers and the Plummis and play bridge afterward!"

"Your idea is all right in the main points," agreed the supertactful wife, "but otherwise it wouldn't do at all! Mrs. Goodwillie and Mrs. Plumm are not speaking these days and Mr. Antler won't do a single thing, so his wife says, but sit twirling the dials of the radio. Why, it was three days before Mrs. Antler got his attention sufficiently to impress upon him the news that his uncle out in California had died and left him $900! As a bridge player these days he is worse than a total loss. Just as his partner gets her first good hand of the evening and is all set to stick at notrump till the cows come home Mr. Antler's eye goes kind of wild and he says, 'Please pardon me, but this 's the time the Fraxxie Sisters are on XYZW and I just want to see if I can get 'em'—and when he does get 'em he never thinks of the card table and three persons waiting till he takes off the earmuffs, notes that all the lights but one are out and that the cat has gone to sleep on his new felt hat."

"Well," persisted the social husband, but slightly abashed at being let into the inside gossip of the day, "we haven't had the Lemericks for a long time. And there are the Ransacks and Dillybells—that'd make a nice bunch and sort of liven things up"

The superartful wife sighed. "It certainly would," she told him emphatically. "I am surprised at you! You know what John Dillybell is like—he is just as apt as not to put a lampshade on his head, twist a table runner around his waist and dance the Seven Veils and I expect if he did Mrs. Ransack would get up and go home! She is a life-is-earnest person and is always reading reports full of large figures and percentages and can tell you right off at what age the criminal tendencies inherited from your great-grandfather are likely to break out on you—and her sense of humor has been kind of strangled out. Mr. Ransack would enjoy the lampshade dance very much only when his wife is present he has to restrain his interest and frown faintly or she tells him all the way home that he does not sympathize with her higher aspirations and he must be getting tired of her. And if you ask the Lemericks you must be very careful about whom you ask with them. If the other women are very pretty Mr. Lemerick will get slushy and his wife always spits fire when he does and if they are homely he goes to sleep."

"I see, I see!" the social husband interrupted hastily. "I expect this is why so many times I notice dinner parties are rather strained and the hostess looks as though about to burst into tears! Picking the right kind of guests is really quite an art, isn't it! Now listen—how would this do? Ask Reginald Oomp and his new fiancee, Daisy Muggins; the Clinkers and Lily Waters and that fine young man Lambwell Smythe—anything the matter with that?"

"I sometimes despair of you, dearie," the tactful wife shuddered. "Do you mean to say you've forgotten the violent case Sally Clinkers and Reginald had before she married Clinkers? Sally is Daisy's immediate predecessor, than whom no one is more hated! Any engaged girl just curls up and dies at the mere thought of the girl her darling thought he was in love with before he met her! And no matter how indifferent a man may be to a past love he takes an abiding interest in whatever she does ever after and Reginald would watch Sally, which would make Daisy furious and enrage Sally's husband, who has a trigger temper. And Lily Waters is beautiful but dumb and Lambwell is far too nice to put in her clutches for an evening. He is a trusting young man and deserves much and he'd get little with Lily, who is nice to look at if you are on the other side of the fence! I don't think—"

"Well!" snorted the social husband. "Is something wrong with everybody? Aren't we ever going to be able to have anw more dinner parties for fear of having to call in the police to straighten out the resultant bolshevik row? Hey?"

The supertactful wife thought very hard and then looked brave and resigned. "Well," she said, "We'll just ask the Goodwillies the Antlers and the Plumms and duck the fireworks set in—it just doesn't make any difference who you ask nowadays!"—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

King Ferdinand of Roumania, who is reported as likely to abdicate for reasons of health, succeeded to the throne in 1914, following the death of his uncle, King Charles. Ferdinand is the son of Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen and belongs to the older line of the Hohenzollern family from which the ex-Kaiser William is descended. He was born at Sigmaringen in 1865 and received his military training in the German army, with which two of his brothers fought as generals in the late war. Queen Marie, the consort of King Ferdinand, was a Duchess of Saxe-Coburg Gotha and a granddaughter of the late Queen Victoria of Great Britain. It was at Berlin in 1892, when she was just 17 years old, that Marie met the handsome young Crown Prince of Rumania. They were mutually attracted, and without objection they were married early in 1893. In the event of the abdication of King Ferdinand he would be succeeded on the throne by his son, Crown Prince Charles, who is now in his thirty-second year.

Stories That Recall Others

Her Conscience

Shortly before noon one day the primary teacher told the class the story of Joan of Arc and was trying to get the children to understand the meaning of the word "conscience." She asked whether any of them had ever heard that little voice.

Anna raised her hand and then said, "I have—just a little while ago it seemed like I heard a voice saying, 'Come to dinner. Come to dinner!'"

Glad It Was a Girl

They had been anticipating the arrival of the stork and the coming of a boy. When the wonderful bird arrived it left a baby girl instead. Of course it proved to be the dearest and sweetest baby ever brought to a home, and her father confessed a few hours later to his mother in law as follows:

"Well, do you know, I don't believe I ever could have stood the noise of a boy anyhow."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

SALINA CRUZ

Salina Cruz, Mexico's Panama, is open again to larger vessels, according to news that has gone forth to Pacific shipping.

"This west coast Mexican port is an example of how an important happening in world economics can wreck the prosperity of a remote community," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society, "and how Nature—aided by man's neglect—can overcome in a few years the millions spent on great engineering projects.

"Salina Cruz looks important on a map, 'sitting pretty' at the Pacific end of Mexico's 100-mile ocean-to-ocean railway across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. Note from statistics that a great British engineering firm spent $40,000,000 constructing there some of the world's best port facilities, and Salina Cruz looks important financially. But there is an economic 'merger in the woodpile' that doesn't show up in the picture; the Panama Canal, 1,000 miles to the southeast. Its completion burst Salina Cruz's bubble of prosperity.

"The port works at Salina Cruz were completed in 1908 and immediately sprang into existence. Thousands of tons of Hawaiian sugar which formerly had made the slow voyage of many days around South America, poured into Salina Cruz to be whisked across to the Atlantic in a day. Numerous big ships came too with miscellaneous commodities. The wharves were piled with boxes and bales; batteries of electric cranes bent over and rose like members of a slave culture class; switch engines shooted and train after train pulled out for the short trip to the Atlantic. At one time freight trains moved in each direction daily on such close schedules that the locomotives almost bumped into the cabooses of the trains ahead.

"Then a new regime was in control in Mexico when Salina Cruz jumped into activity. The Mexican revolutions that began a few years later interfered somewhat with the business of the port but the traffic still managed to go on in spurts. Then almost simultaneously came the World war and the opening of the Panama Canal. Salina Cruz became a sleepy little seaside village with the unused equipment of a city. Only a few small ships came in; the cranes stopped their tireless bobbing and became gaunt, dead machines, their arms fixed like abandoned semaphores. Railway equipment dropped from 10,000 to barely 3,000.

"Engineers had known from the first that sand brought in by the coastal current was Salina Cruz's great enemy, and that continuous dredging was the price that must be paid for a port that could accomodate deep-draft freighters. After the great slump in traffic, dredging was carried on only intermittently and sand soon blocked the harbor entrance to all but small boats. The recent opening of the port to large craft may mean a new growth for the town, for while it can never rival Panama, there is an excellent opportunity under stable conditions for building up a business in goods requiring such quick transit that the elimination of the extra mileage by way of Panama is worth while. There is also possible, in the future, the development of a considerable business in the exchange of goods between the two Mexican coasts.

"Salina Cruz was a made-to-order town and as a consequence is healthier than most tropical ports. When the port site was selected a small village existed on a little lagoon. It was a deadly fever hole and was completely wiped out. The stagnant lagoon was dredged into a harbor basin and connected with the sea. A wide massive wharf was built across the seaward side of the basin with a ship entrance 100 feet wide. On this huge wharf six tremendous warehouses were built, each more than 400 feet long. Railways were built along the edges, and a battery of 18 large electric cranes was installed. From the ends of the wharf curving breakwaters were built out into the sea, almost enclosing an outer harbor of several hundred acres.

"Just as the breakwaters enclose the harbor, Salina Cruz is itself enclosed by a semicircular ridge of high hills whose ends meet the sea to the east and west, forming a little basin about three-quarters of a mile wide and a little over a mile long. This basin is a barren desert, and in the middle of it, half a mile from the sea, is the town. The climate is very hot and dry, and all of the inhabitants who can do so keep themselves secluded until after sunset. 'Northers,' which blow to about twice a week during the dry season, furnish a relief, but they create sandstorms which are a trial in themselves. So prevalent are these winds that the few trees in the park have a permanent slant to the south, and a large sand dune exists in one of the principal streets, springing back into existence each time it is removed."

New Industries in Peru.

The government of Peru is reported to be considering the issuance of several "patentes de introduccion," which constitute a recent innovation," which ru. Under three grants a company or individual undertaking the establishment of a new industry in Peru, that is, the manufacture of some article not previously manufactured in the country, is assured by the government that no one else may start a competing industry within a term of years, although importation of the article may continue. The purpose of course, is to foster the development of new industries.

Smallest Visible Objects.

According to Sir William Bragg of London, the tiniest things which the human eye can see are the black spots and patches sometimes visible in soap bubbles. These black areas are so thin that if the soap bubbles could be magnified to the size of the earth and the thickness of the envelop film increased in proportion, the fils would then be only the thickness of a sheet of glass.

STATE HOSPITAL HAS 31 ACRES OF POTATOES PLANTED BY PATIENTS

Spring planting activities are under way on the farm at the Norwich State Hospital under the direction of James J. Moore who is acting as boss farmer and the hospital has taken the lead among the big potato raisers in this section in getting the potato crop planted. The potato lot is on the west farm where 31 acres, all in one field, have been planted to Green Mountain and Irish Cobbler seed. There are five acres of the latter named variety and the rest in the first named.

The seed was all cut and planted by hand entirely by patients at the hospital who took a great interest in getting the crop in. It is anticipated that the yield may be anywhere from 200 to 300 bushels per acre.

An innovation this year is made in the planting of the crop of peas as three acres have been planted in double rows with white birch brush between the rows. Formerly only the dwarf varieties were planted but it is calculated that the double rows of brushed peas and the greater number of pods per vine on the tall variety will result in a much larger yield for the same acreage than if the dwarf variety were planted.

The experiment made last year in planting beans for canning and doing the canning at the hospital proved so successful that 6,000 poles for Kentucky Wonder beans are to be planted, an increase of 2,000 poles over last year. From that crop the hospital secured a supply of 1,500 ten-pound cans of beans, the last of which are just being used in the kitchen.

The strawberry acreage has been enlarged a little and the plants are in blossom now. Last year 8,500 quarts were picked.

The crop of asparagus from 2 acres is just beginning to come in and is of fine quality.

Beets and onions are all planted, the carrots are going in, and as soon as the right time arrives 60 acres will be planted with ensilage corn.

On the livestock side, the hospital's farm is providing eight pigs weekly for butchering. These weigh about 75 pounds apiece. The poultry department has at present 1,400 Barred Plymouth Rock pullets from which an average of 600 eggs daily is secured, while there are 4,000 chicks ranging from a day old to eight weeks. The hatch was unusually successful this year.

Voyageur Oat of Norwich has been appointed publicity chairman and Conducteur Anderson will have his 743 wrecking crew put on the degree work. Outside arrangements are to be made by Chairman Whitmer of Norwich and Vice Chairman Lathrop, Norwich, assisted by other Voyageurs which they will select.

At the meeting to be held at the rooms of Robert O. Fletcher post, American Legion, of Norwich, on May 12th, final plans will be made and candidates made ready for the big time.

Voiture Locale, No. 743, is composed of members of American Legion posts of New London county and has a membership of nearly 100 at the present time and is going strong. It is expected that fully 50 candidates will be received at the Norwich ceremonial which will be one of the best held by the Voiture since its institution.

JUDGE DIRECTS RELEASE OF MAN WHO TRIED BRIBERY

Salvatore Sabillo, who some time ago was sentenced to serve a six-months jail sentence in New London, for attempting to bribe a juror and who has served four months of his sentence was released Wednesday by order of Judge J. H. Booth, who so ruled after Public Defender Chas L. Stewart in the superior court made a plea for his release, stating that the man, whose family consists of a number of children, was entirely destitute.

State Attorney Arthur M. Brown stated that he also had received many requests for the release of the man and said that he believed that the family needed the man's support. Federal Prohibition Agent Joseph F. Fitzpatrick was one who brought the matter before the authorities. Judge Booth was called upon to decide as Judge Peasely, who sentenced the man, is now off the bench.

Booth and was given a jail sentence of six months, the execution of which was suspended and the accused placed in the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. The accused was represented by Public Defender Charles L. Stewart.

WOMAN IN JAIL FOR YEAR FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Mary Venditto of New London, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death there of Mrs. Mary Colsandne, upon whom the state charged that she performed a criminal operation, was sentenced to one year in the county jail and given a fine of $300 without costs, when presented before Judge John R. Booth in the superior court at New London Thursday. Michael Colsandne, husband of the dead woman, also charged with manslaughter, was fined $300 without costs.

State Attorney Arthur M. Brown told the court that the case was another sad one as was the Winch case. He stated that the dead woman could not be brought back by anything which might be done in court and that the case contained many extenuating features. He recommended that the woman be given a sentence and fine and that the husband be given a fine. The accused both pleaded guilty.

Attorney John C. Geary, counsel for the woman, stated that the case was one in a thousand and that the woman had done what she had out of friendship for the dead woman.

Attorney Morris Lubchansky for Colsandne said that the man should not be thought of as being connected strenuously with the crime, as it was the wife who made the arrangements and that the husband could do nothing but as he did. He stated that one child of the accused must be maintained and stated that his client was by no means a menace to society and would be as lenient as possible. Neither Detective Sergt. John J. Cavanough nor Sgt. Nelson S. Smith, who made the arrests were summoned to testify.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH WILL BUY GILBERT PROPERTY

At a special business meeting of the Central Baptist church Thursday evening at which the pastor, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., presided, it was voted unanimously to buy the Gilbert property on Union street, next adjoining the church property on the north. This was recommended by the board of managers after an investigation by a special committee of which Shepard D. Palmer was chairman.

Before the vote was taken, C. D. Noyes, president of the board of managers, Mrs. F. A. Mitchell, C. L. Stewart, F. D. Vergason, F. E. Sage and others spoke in advocating the purchase of the property and it was brought out that the church had no immediate plans for its use but that eventually it would be adapted in ways to accommodate the Sunday school with more room which has become a necessity with the growth and development of the school. As an opportunity was presented now to buy the property the church officers and members felt that the opportunity should not be allowed to pass. It was considered especially desirable that the church should own the property as a protection against other ownership in the future which might build on the lot and shut out light and ventilation on that side of the church edifice.

By vote of the meeting the church clerk, George A. Ashbey, was instructed to write a letter of appreciation to S. Alpheus Gilbert for his very kindly attitude towards the church in connection with the sale of the property.

At the meeting reports from the New England Conference on Evangelism, which had been held in Boston this week, were made by Rev. Dr. Pitt, Mrs. Pitt and Miss Edith Ellis, the pastor's assistant.

AGGIE TEAM WILL PLAY AT SPRINGFIELD TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, May 7.—Coach Dole's Connecticut Aggie baseball nine faces a tough assignment tomorrow when it travels to Springfield to play the Springfield College nine. The Physical Directors have got away to a good start this season, winning three of four games played, and flashing a consistent brand of play at all times. "Bob" Berry, a member of the Aggie football basketball and baseball team in 1921-22 will be at short stop tomorrow for the Springfield nine, playing against several of his former teammates.

Dole plans to start Oscar Nanfeldt, for New Haven High twirler on the mound for the Aggies, with Wells in reserve. The Aggies went through a long session of batting practice here this afternoon in their final preparation for the game tomorrow. Yesterday against Trinity, the Storrs boys connected for seven base hits, and what looked especially good to Connecticut followers was the fact that five of them were for extra bases, and they came at opportune moments. This year's Aggie team has shown steady improvement in its hitting, and if the team can come through again tomorrow the game should be a close one.

Springfield defeated Wesleyan 4-3 and Trinity 12-1, has 1-1 tie with Providence College and lost to Middlebury 8-4. In a three game series with the Springfield Ponies prior to the opening of the regular season, the Physical Directors lost two and won one. Springfield's victory over Wesleyan apparently gives the Physical Directors the edge over the State College team, which was unable to make better than a tie game on the jaunt to Middletown. Such advantage as may exist, however, can only be counted a slight one. Gates, Springfield's slow ball artist is expected to start against the Aggies, with the veteran Hanson doing the back stopping. The lineups:

Connecticut: O'Brien ss, Makofski 2b, Ahearn (Capt.) 3b, Wardle c, Schofield 2b, Seymour lf, Tiernan cf, Gilbert rf, Nanfeldt p.

MISS COLLETT PLAYS HER BEST GAME IN ENGLAND

St. Annes, England, May 7—Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, R. I., former American golf champion, gave a reassuring demonstration today that British seaside weather, with its changing winds, cold driving rains and other vagaries cannot put her off her game. In two rounds of foresomes of the northern tournament, paired with Mrs. Allan Macbeth, she showed the finest form with both wooden and iron clubs, and especially with her putter, that she has displayed since her arrival upon this side of the Atlantic.

That she and her British partner lost this afternoon, and were thereby eliminated from the tournament, is incidental. Their opponents were conceded a stroke on each of eight holes, and this was too sizeable a present for either Miss Collett and Mrs. Macbeth to give for although they went around the course in an even 80, playing only two or three faulty shots, yet on the home green they found themselves beaten by one hole.

Miss Collett and Mrs. Macbeth reached the turn in 39, despite a five on the short ninth, where Miss Collett overdrove the green. Yet they were only one up after the nine holes. They came home in 41, but their opponents, Mrs. Crosadale and Miss Higham, of St. Annes, made the same stretch in 43, and having received strokes on four of the homeward holes had a net score of 39.

Miss Collett's first nine holes both this morning and this afternoon were played in cold driving rain, while both return journeys were played in a curious mixture of sunshine, showers, gusts and calm. She fared equally well in all weathers, changing her clubs and her shots to fit the climatic conditions of the moment.

In Mrs. Macbeth, Miss Collett had a reliable partner. The English woman missed only two approach shots and one short putt during all the day's play. She had many bunkers to conquer and numerous difficult lies on the rough, but always she was well out and on toward the hole.

Only one well known pair survived for tomorrow's semi-finals. They are Miss Leitch and Miss Greig. Others, like Miss Collett and Mrs. Macbeth have found the handicapping burden too heavy for them to bear.

Miss Collett and Mrs. Macbeth will go to Troon in a few days, both having the rather unpleasant prospect of facing Miss Joyce Wethered Early in the women's championship. Mrs. Macbeth is matched with the champion in the second round, and Miss Collett is due to face her in the third round.

GIANTS POLE OUT NINE RUNS IN NINTH

Philadelphia, May 7—Trailing by six runs when they entered the ninth, the New York Giants pounded three Philadelphia pitchers out of the box and scored nine runs on 11 hits, nine of them in a row, to win by the final count of 11 to 8 today. Ring, Decatur, Couch and Pearce were sent against the Giants. Nehf, who was knocked out of the box in the fifth inning by the Phillies, was followed by Greenfield, Huntzinger and Scott. Score:

STRIBLING KNOCKS OUT ROMERO IN FIRST BOUT IN HEAVYWEIGHT CLASS

Boston, May 7—William L. (Young) Stribling of Atlanta, Ga., tonight won his first fight in the heavyweight class when he was awarded a technical knockout over Quintin Romero, Chilean heavyweight champion. Although Stribling weighed in at only 179 to Romero's 192 3-4, he sent the Chilean to the mat twice in the third round with blows to the face.

It was Stribling's fight throughout. The bout opened with the Southerner sending long swinging lefts to the head to good advantage. He varied this attack with left jabs and right crosses to the jaw. The Chilean's work in the first round was ineffective.

In the second round Stribling sent Romero to the ropes with a left hook to the head and followed this with rights to the head at will. In the third round Romero was knocked down twice, taking a count of four after Stribling's hard right to the head, and being saved by the bell when the youngster's fast left hook floored him again.

The fourth round saw the Chilean staggering and boxed into his own corner. He was again knocked down this time for the count of one, and then rushed at his opponent, swinging wildly. Stribling sent a left to the face in the center of the ring, and the referee, seeing that Romero was unable to continue, raised Stribling's hand, and awarded him the decision.

DWYER PITCHES GOOD GAME AGAINST PRINCETON

New London, May 7—After having defeat three times at the hands of Holy Cross, Pennsylvania and New York University all in the space of eight days, Johnny Dwyer, New London's contribution to the collegiate baseball world, staged somewhat of a sensational comeback to win from the strong Princeton nine Wednesday. Fordham won by a score of 5 to 2, and Dwyer's stalwarts as one of the outstanding twirlers in the collegiate world was re-established after a short decline. The victory is all the more gratifying, for the Princeton pitching ace Charlie Caldwell opposed the New London boy on the mound. This same Caldwell with Dwyer and Dennis Carroll of Holy Cross rank as the three best twirlers of the present day.

One of the real helps to the Maroon cause against Princeton was the double by Dwyer's battery partner Feaster. It came with two on the bags and gave Fordham an early led which they steadily increased. The hit by Feaster is interesting enough, for he had but connected for one hit in 28 times at bat prior to the game with Princeton. His strong work behind the bat however has kept him in back of the plate although he is but a freshman and supplanted the veteran McPeak who is now a senior.

Dwyer's return to form broke a bad spell of defeats. But that list of black marks against the Whaler is due to overwork more than anything else. A twirler such as Johnny needs more rest than he received between assignments, and the fact that he was worked three times against hard teams is one of the signs of his unfortunate poor box work of late.

SIXTEEN FACE BARRIER IN PREAKNESS RACE TODAY

Baltimroe, May 7—Sixteen finely trained three year olds are scheduled to face the barrier in the eighteenth renewal of Old Hilltop's famous classic, the $50,000 Preakness, the fifth race on tomorrow's card.

This year's runing of the event is perhaps the most open in five or six years. The ailments which prevented Master Charlies and Stimulus from entering, and the death of Sunny Man, took from the struggle three of the most brilliant of last year's two year olds.

The H. P. Whitney entry, Chantey and Backbone, are likely to be installed the favorite. Chantey, especially is to be reckoned with. In his only start of the season, at Havre de Grace, two weeks ago, he shattered the track record for a mile and seventy yards, and pulled up breathing easily. Ivan Parke will have the leg up on Chantey, Backbone will be ridden by L. McAtee.

Earl Sande will have the mount on Swope, Bud Fisher's candidate for a second straight victory in the event. Fisher's filly Nellie Morse captured the honors last year.

Maid at Arms, the Glen Riddle farms Miss by Man O'War, and the only filly on the list, is conceded an excellent chance. Maid at Arms easily captured the Pimlico Oaks, and today went an easy mile in 1:47 3-5. Johnny Maiben will pilot the Maid.

Another well regarded entry is the Zalapa farm's Prince of Bourbon.

Conn. A. C. Team Challenges.

The Connecticut A. C. baseball team would like to arrange games in Norwich and New London with teams averaging 18 years of age. They would especially like to hear from the Vagdels or Orioles. Games can be arranged by writing Howard Eldridge, 21 Grove street, New London, Tel. 3492.

J. B. MARTIN TEAM TO OPEN SEASON ON SUNDAY

The J. B. Martin team will open its 1925 season Sunday against the fast Ashland A. A. club of Jewett City at Martin Park. The Velvetmakers had almost successful season last year winning 25 out of 32 games and was the only team in this section to defeat the fast Riverview club 2 out of three games and it took the invincible Tony West to turn them back 1 to 0.

Lemieux, who did the bulk of the 1923 pitching, will again appear in the box this season. Lemieux, after undergoing a serious operation last summer, says he is fit to meet all comers. The rest of the lineup will include Jimmy Murphy c; J. Joubert 1b; Bob Cardie or C. Krauss 2b; F. Gley 3b; DeCelles ss; W. Gley, Eddie Murphy, J. Dona and Eddie Joubert, outfielders.

Hal Chase, a veteran of many games will pilot the team from Jewett City. Their lineup is: Roberatson c; Leo Jarvis p; Zuraviski 1b; Zwicki 2b; Surda ss; Gilbert 3b; L. and R. Jarvis, Pfeifer, Raile and Liberty outfielders. The Martin team has been putting in some stiff practice session during the past week and the boys are confident of a victory.

JOHNNY COONEY PITCHES BRAVES TO VICTORY

POLLUTION BILL WILL COME UP FOR ACTION IN HOUSE NEXT WEEK

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, May 7—Representative Allen B. Lincoln, of Ashford, asked the privilege of speaking on a matter that he considered of interest to all the members of the house today. He then arraigned the judiciary committee, claiming that it had infringed upon the powers of the house. After speaking for several minutes in a desultory manner apparently getting nowhere, Acting Speaker Sturges called his attention to the fact that there was no motion before the house and that if he had a resolution to offer, requested him to do so, otherwise he was out of order. Mr. Lincoln insisted that he was within his rights in leading up to the resolution which he proposed to offer. The speaker again called him to order but he continued in a vehement manner ignoring the demands of the speaker that he comply with the rulings of the speaker. House Leader Alling moved the adjournment of the house and this was done despite loud protestations from Mr. Lincoln.

A lively time is anticipated in the house next week when the Bridgeport tax bill will be up for action. The New Haven bill that was passed in the house two weeks ago that provided that the school budget must be placed before the city board of finance and was recommitted in the senate will again be before the house.

The first section of the state budget carrying appropriations for the two fiscal years beginning July 1, 1925, aggregating $31,384,455, was on the calendar for action today. The bill was explained by Representative Clark of Haddam, chairman of the appropriations committee. It was passed without discussion.

It is rumored that considerable may be developed in the senate when the "pollution bill" reaches that body. It will be starred for action by the house on Tuesday next. The pollution bill provides:

Section 1. Terms used in this act are defined as follows: The term "commission" shall mean the state water commission and the term "commissioner" shall mean a member of said commission. The term "waters" shall mean all tidal water and all waters of any river, stream, pond or lake. The term "sewage" shall mean any substance, liquid or solid, which may contaminate or pollute or affect the cleanliness or purity of any water. The term "pollution" shall mean the contamination or rendering unclean or impure of any water by reason of any sewage, waste or other material which shall be discharged or deposited by any public or private sewer or otherwise so as to directly or indirectly, immediately or ultimately, mingle or come in contact with any water and which may thereby tend to render or in fact renders such water unclean or impure. The term "corporation" shall mean any municipal corporation or any private corporation organized or existing under the laws of this or any other state or country.

Sec. 2. On or before the first day of June, 1925, the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint a state water commission consisting of three members, one of whom shall hold office for a term of six years, one for a term of four years and one for a term of two years from June 1, 1925, and biennially thereafter, on or before the first day of May, the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint one commissioner who shall hold office for six years, and each of such appointees shall hold office until his successor shall be appointed and qualified. If any vacancy shall occur in said commission, the governor shall fill such vacancy until the third Wednesday of the next regular session of the general assembly.

Sec. 3. Said commission shall elect from its membership a chairman and it may employ such assistants as shall be required. The compensation of the commissioners shall be fixed by the board of control, which, with the expenses of the members of the commission, shall be paid from the appropriation made for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this act.

Sec. 4. The comptroller shall furnish office accommodations for said commission, and said commission may make use of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station and the facilities of said station, and may co-operate with any other public or private agency in carrying out the provisions of this act.

Sec. 5. Any commissioner or any assistant or employee of said commission may, at any reasonable time, enter any premises for the purpose of carrying into effect the provision of this act.

Sec. 6. Any person, firm or corporation causing the pollution of any water, or alleged to be causing the pollution of any water, may be cited to appear not less than twelve nor more than thirty days from the service of such citation, before said commission should not issue an order regulating such pollution. Such citation may be issued by the commission or any member thereof and may be served and returned in the same manner as process in any civil action, or it may be served by sending a copy or notice thereof by registered mail addressed to the person, firm or corporation causing or alleged to be causing any pollution of any water. Any commissioner may issue any subpoena, administer oaths and cause the attendance of witnesses, the production of evidence and testimony in any proceeding before the commission, subject to the same conditions as is provided by the general statutes for the attendance of witnesses, the production of evidence and testimony in civil actions, and the commission may punish any person for contempt in the same manner as a court may punish for contempt in a civil action.

Sec. 7. If, upon hearing, the commission shall find that any person, firm or corporation is polluting the waters of the state, it may make an order directing such person, firm or corporation to use or to operate some practicable and reasonably available system or means which will reduce, control or eliminate such pollution having regard for the rights and interests of all persons concerned, provided the cost of installation, maintenance and operation thereof shall not be unreasonable [illegible] means to be [illegible] such order shall specify [illegible] operated, provided, if there shall be more than one such practicable and reasonably available system or person, firm or corporation the right to choose which one of such systems or means shall be used or operated. Such order shall specify the time within which such system or means shall be used or the operation thereof shall be commenced and such time may be extended by the commission upon application made to it by the person [illegible] order shall become effective [illegible] appeal as hereinafter provided, and shall remain in force [illegible] modified by the commission in any other particular not inconsistent with the provisions hereof. If any such person shall not specify the system or means to be used or operated, the person, firm or corporation against whom such order shall be issued shall, before proceeding to install any system or means, submit to the commission a plan or statement describing the system or means which is proposed to be used or operated. If any person, firm or corporation shall desire to make any substantial change in any system or means used or operated, such person, firm or corporation shall, before making such change, file with the commission a plan or statement describing such proposed change and the commission may, upon application of any person, firm or corporation, at any time, enter an order approving any such system or means which shall have been adopted or which it may be desired to adopt. Any order of the commission may, at any time after at least twenty days' notice in writing to any person, firm or corporation affected thereby and after a hearing thereon, be modified or revoked by an order passed by the commission. The commission shall forthwith cause an attested copy of each order passed by it to be served upon the person, firm or corporation affected thereby in the same manner as writs or summons in civil actions may be served. The commission may cause the enforcement of any order issued by it to reduce, control or eliminate pollution of any water, by application to the superior court, or to any judge of said court if the same shall not be in session, to enjoin any person, firm or corporation from continuing such pollution, which application shall be brought and the proceedings thereon conducted by the attorney general. No order shall be passed and no injunction shall be issued against any municipal corporation which shall prevent or be intended to prevent such corporation from discharging into any water any sewage which shall contain any industrial waste or material, which waste or material shall have caused each person, firm or corporation causing such waste or material to be discharged into such sewage to eliminate the same from [illegible] sewage or to render such waste or material free from any polluting effect to such water.

Sec. 8. Any person, firm or corporation aggrieved by any order of said commission may, within thirty days after notice thereof, appeal from such order to the superior court which appeal shall be served by filing a copy of such appeal with the commission and by service by any proper officer or indifferent person of a copy [illegible] appeal upon each other [illegible] appeal shall [illegible] the court [illegible] pollution shall originate, or the [illegible] return day or the next but one. Said court shall hear such appeal and re-examine the legality of the order appealed from and the reasonableness and expediency of such order, so far as said court may have cognizance of [illegible] subject, either itself or by a committee [illegible] appointed, and shall proceed [illegible] on in the same manner as upon complaints for equitable relief, and such appeal shall have precedence in the order of trial in accordance with the provisions of section 5763 of the general statutes. The superior court may render such judgment upon such appeal as it shall find will accord with the public welfare and may tax costs in its discretion.

Sec. 9. No person, firm or corporation shall create, establish, cause or maintain any source of pollution not existing at the time this act shall take effect, provided said commission, after hearing and investigation, upon application of any person, firm or corporation, may issue such order relating to any pollution as it shall find will best serve the public interest.

Substances working on plants much as vitamins A and B do on animals have been studied by Dr. Florence A. Mockeridge of University College at Swansea, England. The materials she found stimulating the growth of plants were associated with certain soil bacteria. In her experiments Dr. Mockeridge used small, green water plants called duckweeds. One lot of duckweeds was put into dishes of water containing merely all the needed minerals. A second lot was put into similar dishes with a small amount of a killed culture of soil bacteria in addition to the minerals. At the end of nine weeks there were about twice as many plants in the second lot as in the first. Moreover, the plants that received the small amount of bacterial material averaged larger and were more healthy in appearance. The increase due to the bacterial culture was apparently out of all proportion to the actual substance added. Furthermore, increasing the amount of dead bacterial culture did not appreciably increase the remarkable benefits to the plants, in this way acting differently from an addition of mere food material. The bacteria contributed something that behaved like a vitamin, enabling the plant to utilize to greater advantage food material already available.

Rheuma—The One Safe and Quick-Acting Remedy for Rheumatism—Money Back If It Fails

Thousands of sufferers have freed themselves from the bondage of rheumatism; rid themselves of the torturing pain; reduced the swollen joints; thrown away canes and crutches, and from helpless beings became able to work and to be of use to themselves and their families.

They took Rheuma, the modern enemy of rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, arthritis, gout and chronic neuralgia.

Don't be sceptical about Rheuma. You will know in a few hours after beginning the treatment that the poisonous uric acid is leaving your system through the natural channels. You will feel better in a day; you will know you are going to be helped in less than a week.

Don't think because Rheuma is not expensive that it won't bring you back to health. There is no poor work about it. That's why Lee A. Upson Co. and good druggists everywhere sell it with guarantee of money back if it does not give quick and

FOOD SEED CORN

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

I mustn't forget to pass on the warning about poor seed corn.

Last year happened to be an unusually poor one for the development of corn. It grew, to be sure, and in most cases produced ears of a sort. But it wasn't up to snuff in lots of ways. Those who have grown testing it for germination find that fertility is one of its failures.

The selected seed ears may look bright and the kernels seem full and hard. Just cutting them in two discloses what appears to be a normal "chit." But test shortlight develop that they are weak in germinating power. In one test of what had all the outward seeming of good seed fourteen kernels out the twenty-one failed to come up at all and three of the remaining seven made but a feeble and sickly start.

I don't suppose that many eastern Connecticut farmers grow much corn, more's the pity. But such as do want the seed they put in to grow. It's no fun replanting a corn field, either in whole or in part. To say nothing about the loss incurred by the delay. So it might be well for those who contemplate putting in a patch of corn to test out their seed, whether home-grown or bought-in. Of course there are "high-brow" ways to do this, but a perfectly simple and sure one is just to put a carefully counted number of kernels in a shallow box or pan of wood dirt on the kitchen mantel or behind the kitchen stove, see that they're watered regularly, and note how many come up. Then you'll have some basis to go on in planting. At least, you'll know whether you ought to put five or ten kernels in a hill to insure four healthy stalks—which is as many as one hill ought to have, if you're looking for ears. If you find your 1925 seed pretty bad, hustle along and use it any from 1924 in lieu. I've twice had to fall back on five-years old corn from my seed and there in both cases found it perfectly good. I know there's a prejudice against it. But, for myself, I'd rather trust to it than to perhaps poor last-year old seed.

In fact, unless you're unconditionally sure of the seller from whom you buy seed, it is not wholly improbable that what you buy for last year's crop may be at least one or two years older. Seed sellers are no more rigidly honest than other folks and, when there's a scarcity of tested corn from 1924's crop, the tendency to substitute or fill in from 1923's is pretty strong. So if you've got any left-overs from '23 which your past year's planting showed to be germinant and vigorous, the chances are you'll do as well to plant it as any you'd buy. Of course, if your own 1924 seed tests up O. K. that's the sort to use. Banking on a certainty is better than taking a chance, any time.

Talking about seeds leads me to express a feeling of wonder as to how old some of the things we buy really are. This present spring, when I came to sow my cabbages, cauliflowers, etc., in the cold frame, I discovered that I'd forgotten to order from my regular seedsman any new beets. We like to put a few bushels into the cellar and my garden is a "hoosier" at growing them of large size. It used to be a favorite "joke" with me, when some customer asked for a pack of, rutas, to put on a look of seeming disdain and say how sorry I was that I couldn't sell so small an amount. This was apt to produce a more or less indignant demand to know why not. To which I would respond, with a perfectly unconscious face, that I couldn't sell 'em by the peck because one wasn't quite a peck and two were a good deal more. But to come back to the seeds.

Finding that I had somehow omitted to supply myself from the regular source, I toddled off to the nearest store and brought a packet of ruta bags seed from one of those boxes left "on sale" with country store keepers, every spring. The packages bore the imprint of some seed house, new to me, but evidently one regularly engaged in supplying seeds this way. I sowed them rather thickly, so as to make allowance for the possible failure of a part.

Not one out of ten—I doubt if one out of twenty,—came up. Instead of having to thin them out, I had to hunt up a second package and resow, in the hope that, between the two, I might get enough plants to be worth transplanting. Thereabouts, we have to transplant rutas, if we want any turnips. Sown broadcast or in drills, as in some other places, they make big enough tops, but resolutely refuse to form roots.)

Now, just as a matter of scientific curiosity, I should like to know how old that turnip seed actually was. I have demonstrated on this same farm that home-saved turnip seed, twenty years old of the common strap-leaved variety, will grow to the last kernel. From which it would appear that the seed I bought must have been more than twenty years old. I'm wondering if, by any chance, it is some discovered in King Tut's Egyptian tomb, saved from the crop of 1782 B. C.

There's a lot of fol-de-rol talked, printed and believed about seeds. When the ideal farmer comes and practices ideal farming, he will save all his own seeds. He won't buy any, unless in case of some unusual emergency.

Of course saving your own seed makes some trouble. But that's just the respect in which the ideal farmer will differ from too many actual farmers of today,—he will expect to take trouble, will take it as a matter of course and as part of the day's work. If the taking of it insures better results.

If we buy a team of Western horses, they have to be acclimated before they can be put to hard work on a Connecticut farm. If we buy Connecticut-raised horses, we don't have to take that bother and run the accompanying risks. Same way with seeds:—Those grown on our own fields, under our conditions of local climate are, other things being equal, more likely to do well than exotic seeds, produced under unlike climates and out of different soil.

There are numerous queer beliefs among farmers about the behavior of seeds. In my part of the country, it used to be the practice of even the better farmers to sell or eat the bigger potatoes and plant the smaller ones for seed. As a result of this violation of the first law of plant heredity, their potatoes invariably "run out" after a few years, and they were completed to buy seed potatoes from outside, if they hoped to raise anything better than "mired" nests."

Between 40 and 50 years ago, my father discovered a kind of early potato which seemed to do well on his peculiar soil. I have just planted a patch of that same variety which we have kept growing, year after year, from that day to this. They produce as well now as 60 years ago, are as early if not a bit earlier, cook up just as mealy, and keep quite as well. The only explanation is that we have planted such potatoes as we wanted to have reproduced,—not whaling big ones nor insignificant little ones, but good-sized, good-shaped, amply-eyed tubers good enough to eat or sell. Nature has done the rest. Like has produced like, as it usually will, if given a half-way decent chance.

Another idea which I find is quite prevalent among a certain sort of farmers is that seed will rot in the ground if planted early. Well, I can't deny that it may. But for nearly 30 years I practised truckgrowing, seldom having less than a hundred varieties of vegetable seeds to look after. I got my seeds from a seedsman who tests all his output before putting it on the market, barring such few as I was able to save myself. In a garden where so many varieties have to be grown, side by side, the danger of seed mixing has to be avoided very sedulously.

And I never yet had any seeds "rot in the ground." Of course, as a trucker, eager to get his goods upon the early market when prices were highest, I sought to get the seeds in at the very earliest possible moment. Many a time I've had passers stop, when they saw me drilling in peas or onions or beets or similar crops, and ask me if I didn't know my seed would "rot in the ground." At first, I'll admit that I was a leetle shaky, myself. It seemed as if there must be some basis for a belief so widely and firmly held. But I had to "take my chance," like any other gambler,—for that's what all we farmers really are. And, as experience accumulated, I came to feel a rather hearty contempt for all such prophets of evil, as talked about the danger of seed "rotting in the ground." For, as I've said, I've never yet had such a thing happen.

This very spring has given me a powerful argument against that queer superstitution. I'm in my neck of woods it came off rather early and warm. The mud dried up, the ground mellowed, the sunlight was warm and broody. I got my small garden patch ready, two weeks earlier than normal, and promptly put into the dirt such seeds as wrinkled peas, onions, spinach, beets, carrots, lettuce, etc. Hardly were they covered up when Miss Spring went into a tantrum. She withdrew her sunlight, spaked the sodden soil with cold east rains; covered it with swirling snow-squalls; in fact scowled and gagged so obstreperously that even the quack-grass began to turn yellow and "spindle." In spite of my rooted optimism, I began to fear that I should, at last, have my seeds "rot in the ground." But they didn't,—not a blessed one of them. Cold and soggy and sour as April was, they came up, slowly and straggligly, I'll admit, but with grit enough to make the best of the mud they emerged into. They aren't growing with the zeal they would show if the weather were more timely. But—they didn't "rot in the ground,"—not even the sugary-wrinkled peas which we are always warned mustn't be planted too early.

When seed is tested and proved germinant, and when the soil is reasonably warm and mellow is a good time to plant such frost-resistant crops as I've listed. Don't lose any sleep from fear they'll "rot in the ground."

IN THE HIGHLANDS.

In the highlands, in the country places,
Where the old plain men have rosy faces,
And the young fair maidens
Quiet eyes;
Where essential silence cheers and blesses,
And forever in the hill-recesses
Her more lovely music
Broods and dies.

O to mount again where erst I haunted;
Where the old red hills are bird-enchanted,
And the low green meadows
Bright with sward;
And when even dies, the million-tinted,
And the night has come, and planets glinted
Lo! the valley hollow
Lamp-besfarred.

O to dream, O to awake and wander
There, and with delight to take and render,
Through the trance of silence
Quiet breath!
Lo! for there among the flowers and grasses,
Only the mightier movement sounds and passes
Only winds and rivers;
Life and Death.

SUB-BASE MAIL CLERK'S THEFTS REPORTED TO NEW LONDON POST OFFICE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 7—Robert Steiff, mail clerk, stationed at the submarine base where the federal government maintains a post office, is being sought by the authorities. It developed today that Steiff had disappeared, also that $450 of the funds of the government were missing. The local post office department has notified Boston headquarters of the government of the alleged defalcations of Steiff and has requested that an inspector be sent here to conduct an investigation for the purpose of determining the exact amount of the alleged defalcation. The inspector will probably arrive in this city tomorrow forenoon.

Steiff, who is an enlisted man, had been in charge of the base post office a number of days, because of the absence on a furlough of the regular clerk. During Steiff's handling the post office funds he is alleged to have appropriated $450 to his own use for with the disappearance of Steiff today the shortage was discovered and reported to the New London post office officials.

The alleged defalcation of Steiff is the second such offense to occur among the personnel of the navy stationed here within a short time; for a few weeks ago, Paymaster Thomas Farrell of the U. S. S. Redwing was sentenced to jail, for absconding with $750.

It is stated that the special committee of the city council, appointed to determine the efficiency of the police department, which committee concluded its examination of about 75 witnesses, including every member of the police department, will hand over its report to City Manager William A. Holt next Tuesday, the day following the regular meeting of the city council. The report was promised to be turned over to the city manager last week and as soon as it is in his hands, he will give it consideration before making any recommendation to the council.

There is no material change today in the condition of Arthur Martin, of Graniteville, Waterford, who was knocked from his motorcycle on Bank street yesterday afternoon by an automobile owned and driven by Louis Itzkowitch, 93 Squire street. The patient is still under treatment at Lawrence hospital where his condition is considered critical, although it has not been determined whether Martin has sustained a fractured skull.

In the police court this morning the case of Itzkowitch, charged with reckless driving, was continued a week, under bonds of $1,000, the continuance being made to await decision as to just how serious Martin's injuries prove.

August and Theresa Dittman have sold to Annie Sauerzopf a parcel of land on Whittlesey street.

An automobile owned by Donald Depew, stationed at the submarine base and with R. McMurray, another sailor as a passenger, overturned, late last night on Pequot avenue, both Depew and McMurray being injured, but not seriously. Depew was operating his machine in a northerly direction and when it was about to pass the corner of Thames street, a car owned and driven by Dr. K. O. Johnson, of Lyman court, was about to emerge into Pequot avenue. Depew in order to avoid a collision operated his car to the left hand side of the road and with such abruptness that it struck the curbing with considerable force, causing the machine to overturn and hurl its occupants to the sidewalk. The automobile was considerably damaged. The men were taken to Lawrence hospital and had their wounds consisting of lacerations, dressed, after which they went to their ship, U. S. S. Chewink.

James F. Murphy, familiarly known as "Dutch" Murphy, a former brakeman in the freight service of the New York, New, Haven & Hartford railroad, who has been a frequent offender against the law and has a long police record, was taken into custody again last night, when he engaged Patrolman Clarence Martin in battle after Martin had been called to a Bank street dance hall to quell a disturbance which Murphy started. Murphy was not in the police court, however, this morning, for he forfeited the bond of $100, which his father had furnished.

Murphy, who is of the opinion that he possesses pugilistic ability, and who has been arrested several times for engaging in fights and for intoxication, went to the dance hall late and when he arrived there he showed signs of trouble. He was partially intoxicated and when he caused a disturbance Patrolman Martin was requested to take Murphy from the hall. When Patrolman Martin started to eject Murphy, the latter attacked the officer, but the attack was of short duration for Martin dealt Murphy a couple of solid blows upon the head with a nightstick and the fight was then all out of Murphy. The fighter was taken to the police station where City Physician George P. Cheney administered to the prisoner, after which Murphy was sent to the Lawrence Memorial Hospital, where several stitches were necessary to close the wounds. Upon Murphy's return from the hospital his father furnished bail and this morning Murphy showed his gratitude by not appearing in court, resulting in the bond being forfeited, an act he has done before.

The sale of the Marsh building in State street to the Mariners Savings bank yesterday brought a tidy sum to the party who negotiated the sale. It is declared today that the amount such sale brought him is $1300.

Shirley Lee, a young woman who has been about this city for a short time, has resolved to get away from this city and from the friends she has made here. She has been unfortunate in selecting her male companions and in that she attracted the attention of the police. She was in Riverside park yesterday with several sailors, so some neighbor called on the police to investigate. When the woman proved to be Miss Lee she was taken into custody and was presented in the court as a person of lewd and lascivious carriage. There was no evidence to convict the woman, so the case against her was nolled. But she has concluded that she would be better off if she left town and that she has decided to follow that course. There was not the slightest evidence today that Miss Lee was not conducting herself as a woman should.

Frank Heinsky, 210 North Bank street, complained to the police this evening that his son, John, 6, had been inhumanly treated by a trio of youths, so inhuman being the treatment that the child was forced to submit to indecent assault this afternoon, the father of the victim asserting that the assault occurred at Williams Memorial park. The parent also supplied the police with the names of the alleged culprits. The information being turned over to Patrolman Clarence Martin, the three youths were taken into custody. Because of the boys being minors, they were given into the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. They will be given a hearing in juvenile court next week.

Alvin D. Spiker, 29, of 33 Colt street, chief motor machinist at the submarine base, died yesterday afternoon at the base hospital following an operation for appendicitis. Complications developed that caused Mr. Spiker to fail rapidly. Mr. Spiker, who had been stationed at the base but three months, is survived by his widow.

CORONER BEGINS INQUEST IN SAILOR BERGEN'S DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 7—Coroner J. J. Desmond started his inquest today to ascertain whether criminal responsibility resulted in hte death of Jack Bergen, sailor, stationed at the United States Coast Guard local section base, state pier. Last Tuesday night, Bergen was struck by an automobile owned by Frank A. Smith, 188 Central avenue, Norwich, and knocked beneath the wheels of a five ton truck, owned by Nathanael Avery, Groton and driven by William Starwesky, 11 Meridian street, Groton, Bergen sustaining a crushed skull, which resulted in almost instantaneous death. A finding will be rendered in a few days.

SIXTEEN PATROL BOATS START TO ROUND UP RUM CRAFT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 7—Tonight, about 16 boats from the local section base of the United States Coast Guard, are in Long Island, Fishers Island and Block Island sounds. They have formed a cordon about the rum-supply ships that are at anchor off Montauk Point in an effort to bring to an end the supplying of liquor through power boats and steamers, which have been transporting the liquor and alcohol through the sound and delivering it to ports along the New England coast.

For weeks destroyers and patrol boats have tried to put a stop to the rum traffic, but without success. With a fleet the size of the one that started patrol duty today it is believed that it will be next to an impossibility for the trafficking by water to continue.

Early this morning the destroyers Jouett and Cassin and the cutters Beale, Downs and Redwing and 12 patrol boats of the 75-foot type, left the state pier and proceeded down the harbor in single file, the boats, through Fishers Island sound and to the vicinity of the English and Belgian schooners that have supplied craft with cargoes for nearly two years.

COTTAGE AND GARAGE BURNED AT HAMMOND'S, WATERFORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 7—Fire tonight from an undetermined cause completely destroyed the cottage and garage owned by Edward C. Hammond in Waterford, directly opposite the rear of Ocean Beach. The two buildings valued at $10,000 caused a big blaze, which indicated that a serious fire was in progress. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters here resulting in the Nameaug engine company responding. Residents at Ocean Beach caused an alarm to be pulled in from Box 515 located on Bentley Avenue, corner of the Boardwalk. The alarm brought to the fire six hose apparatus and one hook and ladder. By the time of the arrival of the companies, the buildings were doomed to destruction. There were no automobiles in the garage and furniture which had been stored in the cottage, a new structure, was removed by employes of Mr. Hammond.

A Norwich Town resident read with interest the admirable record of Rear-Admiral William L. Howard, published in Wednesday morning's Bulletin. Many years ago, his mother was an esteemed resident of Town street, having occupied rooms with the late Mrs. Mary Friedenberg, in the former Goodell house, on Town street. At that time, which was about thirty years ago, Mrs. Howard took great delight in speaking of her son's achievements, although speaking with modesty when quoting incidents in his brilliant career.

PROVIDENCE MEN BUY GOFF'S PAWTUCKET MILL

The old D. Goff & Sons, Inc., worsted and braid mills, a business landmark of Pawtucket and one of the larger Rhode Island manufacturing establishments, was purchased Wednesday by Edward Radding, Allie Zura and David Leand, all of Providence, in a transaction approaching $1,000,000.

The sale may mark the end of the establishment as an entity after a union of 85 years, as the new owners intend to sell the group of buildings separately as soon as opportunity offers.

The property including 15 buildings, was bought through the "bondholders' protective committee," representing a large number of bondholders who purchased the plant for approximately $650,000 last summer.

The "bondholders' protective committee" took over the establishment Sept. 10, last, and operated it under the name of the Pawtucket Falls Manufacturing Company. The plant is not in operation at the present time but was in partial operation up to a week ago. The new owners, Mr. Radding said, will make no attempt to resume operation of the mills.

After enjoying prosperity until the close of the World war, the mills have been in difficulty during the past few years. The company was adjudged bankrupt on Feb. 13, 1924, and went under the hammer at a public auction sale June 5 and 6 last. Three parcels of property were bid in for $287,000 and machinery sold for $21,077.

The referee-in-bankruptcy refused to confirm the sale, and the offer was raised to approximately $650,000 on the entire plant. The United States Federal court approved the acceptance of the offer early in July. The payment of 20 per cent. on obligations to creditors was authorized in the fall. This concluded the bankruptcy proceedings.

Located on Main, River and Elm streets, within about 100 yards of the heart of the business center of Pawtucket, the plant has long played a conspicuous part in the life of the community. Its career has marked the rise and decline of the great Goff fortune. Darius Lee Goff, 85-year-old patriarch of Pawtucket, was its guiding genius.

By a curious coincidence inventions paved the way both for the prosperity and downfall of the plant. Darius L. Goff, who inherited the plant from his father, revolutionized the mill business with his early inventions. The establishment enjoyed a mushroom growth during the World war, and many buildings were added. The Goff fortune increased by leaps and bounds.

Following the war, Mr. Goff experimented with his new invention, a tricoline process, but large sums of money were sunk in the venture. Mr. Goff resigned as head of the plant on March 25, 1921. A $1,250,000 bond issue was later authorized for the reorganization of the company. It is estimated that the Goff fortune dropped $6,000,000 after the war.

The business was started by Darius Goff about 1840 as D. Goff & Sons. In 1861, the firm name was D. Goff & Son. D. Goff & Sons was incorporated in 1884. It was reorganized in 1918 under the name of D. Goff and sons, Inc. The output in late years has been bonivia cloth for cloakings, wraps and capes, cotton warp and wool filling, worsted warp with wool and artificial silk filling.

Normally, from 3000 to 4000 workers were employed at the plant.

The sale included the valuable water privileges, power plant, machinery and equipment. Located on the Blackstone river at the head of tidewater, the plant develops about 700 horsepower. The property includes about 170,000 square feet of land, two groups of substantial brick buildings and a stable lot with buildings.

The "bondholders' protective committee" appointed last summer comprise Luther C. Baldwin, Webster Knight, J. J. Bodell and L. C. Gerry.

Yowler the Bob Cat Forgets His Hunger

Even appetite gives way to fear
When danger seems approaching near.
Old Mother Nature.

Yowler the Bob Cat knew that only a few others knew, and this was that Mrs. Lightfoot the Deer had this year chosen to live in the Green Forest, beyond the old road that wound through it. And Yowler knew why. He knew that she had chosen to live there this spring because very few other folk were living there, and she had done this for the same reason that Mrs. Grouse had chosen to build her nest across that road. Yes, sir, the reason was the same in both cases. Mrs. Lightfoot and Mrs. Grouse each had a secret she wanted to keep all to herself as long as possible. The secret of Mrs. Grouse was that nest and the ten beautiful eggs she had hoped would hatch to ten beautiful babies. You remember what the Red Terror did to them. The secret of Mrs. Lightfoot was the hiding-place of two beautiful, dainty, spotted babies.

With a whimper of fear, Yowler bounded away

Yowler had missed Mrs. Lightfoot in that part of the Green Forest where she had been in the habit of living. He guessed that she was trying to keep out of sight, and why. So he did a great deal of hunting for her. He couldn't find so much as a fresh scent or a recently made footprint.

"She has gone way off somewhere," he grumbled. "I wonder if she has gone up on the Big Mountain."

Then he thought of that part of the Green Forest which lay beyond the old wood road, and how few people, furred or feathered, hunt there. It would be just the place to hide with weak helpless babies. The yellow eyes, the fierce, hungry eyes, of Yowler gleamed. Thereafter for a part of every night he prowled about over in that part of the Green Forest. It wasn't long before he knew that Mrs. Lightfoot was somewhere there, for he found where she had been eating, for he found her footprints in some soft earth, and once or twice his keen nose found a wee bit of her scent.

On this day Yowler hadn't waited for dark. He had gone over in the late afternoon for he was certain that those babies, those little spotted fawns, were hidden not far from there he had been looking the night before. What a dinner they would make him! His mouth fairly watered at the thought. He could think of nothing else. Like a shadow he moved soft-footed, snaking, listening, watchful. At last he reached a place where he could watch with little chance of being seen. He was quite sure that those fawns were hidden quite near, and if he was patient they would appear sooner or later, for they were big enough to travel about a little.

Gradually a feeling of uneasiness crept over him. What caused it he didn't know. It was a feeling that something, what he didn't know, was wrong. The feeling grew. He was afraid—afraid of nothing, for there was nothing to fear. And then it came to him, the smell of the Red Terror. He had smelled it before, and he knew it and what it meant. He lifted his head and sniffed. The breath of the Red Terror, the smoke, made his nose smart. He got to his feet and glared toward the old road. The breath of the Red Terror, the smoke made his nose smart. He got to his feet and glared anxiously toward the old road. The Red Terror was coming straight toward him!

With a whimper of fear, Yowler bounded away, and as he did so Mrs. Lightfoot, with her beautiful spotted babies at her heels trotted out from behind a pile of brush almost in front of him. Yowler hardly glanced at those fawns he had come there to get and had been lying in wait for. He passed them as if he had no interest in them whatever. Nor did Mrs. Lightfoot show fear of him. Neither had a thought for aught but the Red Terror in a common fear they were no longer enemies.

MARKET WAS ACTIVE

New York, May 8—Heavy buying of the public utility issues, a score of which bounded upward to new high levels for the year, again featured today's active stock market. Re-awakening of public interest in the power and light company stocks was based on reports of high current earnings and rumors of recapitalization, increased dividends and new combinations.

Standard industrials disclosed some irregularity as a result of extensive profit-taking in some of the recently strong issues. Rails displayed a firm tone on publication of a report that gross earnings of Class 1 roads in March totaled $436,484,000, or $18,-896,846 below the same month last year, a better showing than some of the individual railroad returns had indicated.

Utah securities, which sold as low as 41 1-8 less than three months ago, continued its sensational advance by soaring seven points to 127 1-2, but subsequent profit-taking resulted in a cancellation of most of the day's gain. Montana Power jumped more than seven points to the highest price in five years at 83 7-8, closing just below the top. Federal Light and Traction established a new high at 168 and then slipped back to 163, up 1-2.

Other public utility issues to break through their previous maximum quotations were American Telephone, Abitibi Power, American Water Works, Brooklyn Union Gas, Electric Power Certificates, the three Market Steel Railway preferred issues and Electric and Pittsburgh Utilities Philadelphia Company, Pacific Gas preferred.

American Can showed a net loss of 2 1-4 points at 184 5-8 as a result of heavy realizing sales. Baldwin showed a slight fractional loss at 114 3-8 after selling more than a point above heavy buying of Mack Trucks just before the close, based on reports of an impending split-up of the stock, sent it up nearly four points to a record high at 153 1-2.

Low-priced railroads were in good demand, Ann Arbor common soaring six points to 23 and the preferred 4 3-4 to 59 1-2, both new 1925 highs. Seaboard Air Line common and preferred touched new peak prices at 34 and 48, respectively. Wabash common and preferred A and Gulf, Mobile and Northern common, also attained record prices.

The announcement that the Standard Oil Company of New York had met the gasoline price reductions of its competitors in New York city had a restraining effect on the trading in the oil shares which moved within narrow and irregular limits. Receivership proceedings against the American Sumatra Tobacco Company apparently had been discounted as both issues closed higher on the day Dodge Brothers stocks were traded in separately for the first time, the common closing at 35 after fluctuating between 24 1-8 and 35 1-2 and the preferred closing at 74 5-8 after selling between 73 1-2 and 75.

Good buying was noted in American Tobacco common and preferred, Willys-Overland common and preferred, American Ice, Ginter Company and Advance Rumely preferred, all of which sold at the year's best prices. Heaviness cropped out in American Express, Brunswick Balke Collander, the Commercial Solvents issues, Pierce Arrow preferred, Remington Typewriter, United States Cast Iron Pipe and Worthington Pump, which showed net declines of 3 to 5 points.

Call money opened at 4 per cent. but eased to 3 3-4 and thence to 3 1-2, where it closed. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were slightly reactionary. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.84 3-4 but French francs ruled about two points lower around 5.13 1-2 cents and Norwegian kroner broke about nine points to 13.75 cents.

TUBERCULOSIS RESEARCH IS EXTENDING INTO CANCER

Although the laboratory research work of the state tuberculosis examination has covered an examination wide scope the past decade, it has been expanded into the field of cancer, in which an entirely separate branch of investigation has been undertaken nationally.

Recently the surprisingly large number of patients who have either had both cancer and tuberculosis or who have been sent to the state various tuberculosis sanatoria, with a diagnosis of that disease, only to be found later by the medical staff to have cancer instead have caused the research work to be begun and it has already proved faithful in results and has taken rank with the most important of the original laboratory research which has been done in the tuberculosis sanatoria of the state.

One branch of the investigation, which has covered already a period of two years, the establishment of a possible definite relationship or kinship between cancer and tuberculosis, was taken up at the monthly medical meeting of the commission just held. This is, of course, a starting question or problem in itself, and reports of progress in its investigation are of not only technical importance, but of fascinating popular interest.

The meeting of the medical staffs of the five state sanatoria at which the investigation was described in detail was held at the Laurel Heights sanatorium in Shelton, where Dr. Edward J. Lynch, superintendent, and his staff have conducted it.

The researches, he said, were prompted by the fact that a number of cases which were sent to the sanatorium as tuberculous proved, on investigation and under treatment, to be cancer of the lungs. Dr. Lynch demonstrated at the medical meeting, by bacteriological research, animal experiment and x-ray pictures, the points of similarity between the two diseases that so often deceive the general practitioner, and he made clear the points that distinguish the two diseases.

In both diseases, Dr. Lynch showed that the patients frequently experience loss of weight, have hemorrhages of the lungs, suffer from pain and the misery of an almost uncontrollable cough, but the treatments which are indicated or prescribed for the two diseases are so diverse and different that the proper diagnosis is of prime importance.

Yet not infrequently, Dr. Lynch pointed out, both diseases occur in the same patient. Recent statistics were read which show that, in approximately twelve per cent. of

TAFTVILLE

Mrs. Jane McSheffery of St. Francis Training School, Hartford, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. McSheffery over the week end.

The Thursday Evening basketry class held its regular weekly meeting in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tarbuck and family of South Fourth avenue are to move soon to a house on Germania avenue.

Miss Anna Raymond of Msonnerchor avenue attended the alumnae meeting at St. Anne's Academy at Marlborough, Mass., last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Mathewson entertained a party of friends Wednesday evening at their home on South A street.

Miss Bertha Monty of Riverside Grove is an appendicitis patient at the William W. Backus hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Brierley and Miss Louise Klump of South Fourth avenue expect to move soon to the house at 13 North B street.

Both man and beast are being afflicted these days, man with whooping cough and dog with distemper. Whooping cough is quite the rage in the Merchants avenue section and many adults are reported to have fallen victims to the disease. Distemper, which died out a little during the early spring is back with all its troubles, and many of the village dogs have had to be destroyed because they had contracted incurable cases of the disease. At present many of the finest dogs of the town, some of them registered and for which the owners paid good prices, are distemper patients.

Mrs. Mary L. Sigrist of Merchants avenue has left town to spend the summer at Easthampton, Conn.

The class of 1925 of the Wequonnoc school went to Hartford Thursday to spend the day. They visited the state capitol and various other points of interest in the capital city and were accompanied by Miss Martha Reynolds, principal of the school, and teacher of the eighth grade.

Miss Yvonne Bouffard is enjoying a short vacation.

Philip Gouin who has been obliged to remain away from his work because of an accident to his arm, has returned to his work in the Ponemah mills.

Rehearsals are going on for a play which the Camp Fire groups of the Taftville Congregational church plan to present in the near future.

Theodore Belval of North B street has started work on his new residence at Riverside Grove.

Laying his troubles to the cold and damp weather, a local poultry raiser said Thursday that he had lost 150 out of a flock of 350 chicks.

WELLS SHOOTING CASE IN MYSTIC GOES ON TRIAL IN SUPERIOR COURT

The first jury trial of the May term of the criminal superior court in New London was begun Thursday afternoon when John D. Wells of Mystic went on trial before Judge John R. Booth and a jury on the charge of assault with intent to murder. He is accused of shooting his father-in-law, William Lamb, on April 2, at Lamb's home in Mystic.

State Attorney Arthur M. Brown called Civil Engineer George E. Pitcher as the first witness for the state. Mr. Pitcher presented plans of the house and furniture in the rooms where the shooting was alleged to have taken place.

William Lamb, who is a carpenter about 54 years old, also testified before court adjourned for the afternoon. Wells is married to Lamb's daughter, Mildred, and it is the claim of the state that the shooting was the outcome of an agrument that arose when Mrs. Lamb, Mildred and Wells came home at night from an automobile ride. It is alleged that as they entered the house Lamb was engaged in picking up the fragments of a gold fish bowl that he had knocked off the table. An argument started and Lamb made some remarks that Wells apparently resented. It is alleged that Wells went out of the room and when he came back a shot rang out and a bullet clipped through Lamb's left ear. Wells then backed out of the room into a dark room, it is claimed, but Lamb went after him in the dark and a second shot was fired. This time a bullet lodged in Lamb's shoulder. He still kept after Wells and a third shot was fired, the bullet hitting Lamb in the upper lip. Lamb wore a heavy moustache, which with the teeth that were knocked out by the bullet so much reduced its force that it lodged part of his throat from which he spit it out. The bullet also imbedded several teeth in the back of his throat, which the physicians removed from there with considerable difficulty.

Attorney G. Curtis Morgan is defending Wells and the jury in the case consists of Edward F. Hand, Frank E. G. Douglass, Ralph Atkins, Fred W. Rudd, Charles D. Avery, Frank B. Keene, John A. Marr, Robert T. Baker, Samuel Holdredge, Joseph A. Clark, LeGrande Chappell and Alfred S. Howard.

OLD TIME TELEGRAPHER DIES IN ILLINOIS

Mendon pioneer telegraph operator, was buried Tuesday morning at Mendota, Ill., according to advices received by friends in New London. He died at East Moline, Ill., on Saturday.

Mr. Powers was born in New London about 71 years ago, the son of Patrick and Ann Powers. He had the unique distinction of being the first telegraph operator in this vicinity to take wire messages by sound, the messages being taken generally in the old days which were just after the Civil war, on tape, in much the same manner as the ticker service is conducted today. That was before the Western Union Telegraph Co., had even purchased the New York and New London Telegraph Co., conducted the New London office, which was on State St.

Mr. Powers in 1869 was operator at the old Pequot House being sent there during the summer that President Ulysses S. Grant, General Sheridan and other dignitaries were guests there and the volume of important wire business was unusually heavy.

At the age of 16, Mr. Powers was a skilled operator and when the Western Union Telegraph Co., was organized he was placed in charge of the dispatcher's office in Dubuque, Iowa. Later he removed to Mendota, where the company sent him to school to secure further technical knowledge. Later he went to California for the company and remained there about 11 years, afterwards going to Chicago, where he married Miss May Wells of Beaverdam Falls, Wis. With his wife he again returned to California and remained there until after the earthquake when he was sent by the telegraph company to New York.

His last visit to New London was about six years ago. In June of last year, he suddenly disappeared from sight, and was found in a small town in Ohio with his memory totally lost following a severe mental shock. At the time he was located he had $2,250 in his pocket and kept talking of more. But his trunks and bags were never recovered, and he was unable to remember anything regarding his personal affairs and effects. He was brought to Mendota, where he suffered a stroke of paralysis.

MYSTIC LEGION IS NOT TO DECORATE GRAVES

The officers of Richard William Morgan post, No. 55, American Legion at Mystic decided at a special meeting that owing to a lack of funds, no steps would be taken towards decorating the graves of the deceased World War veterans on Memorial Day. This does not mean that the graves will not be visited, but that there will be no poppies, the official flower of the Legion, purchased, as this would be an expense the Mystic post can ill afford at this time.

There has been a serious drain upon the treasury for the past year in looking after disabled ex-service men in the vicinity and also in giving assistance to those from other places who have become stranded in town and for whom meals and other assistance has been cheerfully given whenever requested and the proper credentials shown.

FATONE TO JAIL ON SENTENCE OF 6 MONTHS

Fatone and Barker were caught at the Norwich fairgrounds where County Detective William Lewis, Sergeant Mathew Delaney and Officer P. Murphy of the Norwich police force lay in wait for their arrival in an automobile.

STATE PRISON SENTENCE GIVEN TO BARTLETT

William C. Bartlett of New London, accused of manslaughter in connection with the death of Miss Marion (Dolly) Winch of Hartford, changed his plea from not guilty to guilty in the superior court at New London Thursday and was quickly sentenced by Judge John R. Booth.

The crowded court room found little sensation, except when John R. Wood, familiarly known as Pete, broke down and sobbed bitterly at the mention of his engagement to the dead girl. Bartlett was sentenced to not less than one year and not more than two years in the state's prison at Wethersfield. Wood was sentenced to six months in the New London jail, while Michael A. Day, charged with manslaughter as were the other two, was given a fine of $300 without costs.

Attorneys George Curtis Morgan and Morris Lubchansky, counsel for Wood made strong pleas for the their client. Attorney John C. Geary for Day, also touched upon certain incidents which were connected with his client's participation in the case, stating that the punishment would of needs come upon relatives rather than the youth. Attorney Clinton R. Smith, who with Attorney Charles H. Hull represented Bartlett, spoke briefly.

State Attorney Arthur M. Brown said that the case was a sad one. He said that Miss Winch died in New London Feb. 17, from general peritonitis following a criminal operation performed by Bartlett. He said that the girl was engaged to Wood and that the latter was anxious to marry her. He said she did not desire to marry Wood while in her delicate condition. He said that she wanted something done for her and that her mother agreed. The attorney stated she went to a doctor in Hartford and that he refused to have anything to do with the case and that then Wood met his friend, Day, and the latter put Wood in touch with Bartlett.

He stated that Bartlett agreed to perform the operation. The state attorney pointed to the fact that the three young men had no previous records. He said that he could not find that Bartlett was in the habit of doing this sort of thing and could not understand Wood's participation. For a time he said the mother and Wood tried to cover the matter up but finally Wood told the whole story. He said that Day was the least involved and recommended that he be given a reasonable fine. He said that Wood had already been in jail since his arrest in February and asked that a sentence to make up the balance of a year be given. In Bartlett's case he recommended a prison term of not less than one year or more than two years.

Attorney Smith stated that he joined with the state's attorney and expressed the desire that the court consider the recommendation of the state's attorney.

Attorney Geary stated that Day was a boy of 19, whose family was of the best and that Day himself up to the present matter, possessed a first class record. He stated that Day's friendship for Wood made him lead the latter to Bartlett.

Speaking for Wood, Attorney Morgan said that he believed the recommendation of the state's attorney to be excessive, and unusual and that in proportion to others in the case, it was out of joint.

"What more could Wood have done?" asked Attorney Morgan. "He begged to do the right thing."

Continuing Attorney Morgan said Wood was not the prime mover in this. Technically and legally, of course, Wood was wrong, said the attorney. Attorney Morgan maintained that Wood had acted as 99 out of 100 men would have done under the same circumstances.

Attorney Lubchansky stated that Wood had up to this time enjoyed an excellent reputation and said that Wood for a man of his type had a most surprising number of friends and that some of the city's most ... citizens had been most solicitous of his welfare. Attorney Lubchansky said that Wood's mother and sister would suffer severely if Wood was given a long confinement for they were in need of his support. He said that a local concern stood ready to give Wood his job when he was released.

Attorney Morgan again arose and stated that he would receive no money for his services and that he had represented Wood out of friendship for him and that he believed it to be his duty. He stated that he believed Attorney Lubchansky would not receive money for his services either.

In passing judgement on Wood Judge Booth said that he believed Wood had suffered a great deal as it is.

Bartlett took his sentence without the slightest outward emotion. He has maintained a stoical attitude since his arrest. County Detective William E. Lewis and Detective Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh who with two Hartford police officers made the arrests in the case were not summoned to appear in court.

BOSTON FRAUD SENDS MEN TO NEW LONDON FOR WORK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 7—A fellow named Fanning, colored, who claimed he was a chief in the employ of the Boston & Albany railroad, seems to have a poor conception of a joke, or else he is seeking to get a little money by the most discreditable of means. He got three men in Boston to register with an employment agency each paying $5 for a job that Fanning promise them was awaiting them in New London and he sent the men here. He told them they were to be employed at the Oswegatchie house in Waterford and that they were to stop at a hotel here till they were sent for. The men did as requested, but they did not get any nearer to the employment for Fanning was simply a prevaricator and a fraud. He left word with the employment agency to forward 15 women to the Oswegatchie house also. Mrs. Manwarring was told of what was going on and she immediately got in touch with the Boston employment bureau and told them they had been deceived. That cost Mrs. Manwarring about $3 for telephone charges. Now she is wondering how the negro got the information he possessed and why he resorted to that scheme to get a little money.

MRS. JOS. McFEE DIES ON HER WAY TO WORK

New London, May 7—Mrs. Mary McFee, 46, wife of Joseph McFee, 107 Howard street, employed by the R. & J. Waist company, Armstrong building, Bank street, died suddenly of heart disease this forenoon while on her way to her employment. Besides her husband, Mrs. McFee is survived by a son, Robert McFee, of Hartford, and a daughter, Miss Anna McFee, this city. Mrs. McFee was entering the Armstrong building when she suffered the heart attack. She had reached a point on the stairs leading to the third floor, when she suddenly collapsed and fell. Other workers of the establishment went to Mrs. McFee's assistance and a physician was summoned, but before the latter arrived Mrs. McFee had died. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman conducted an investigation and pronounced death due to a valvular disease of the heart. Mrs. McFee had been a sufferer from a weakened condition of the heart for a considerable time. It is believed that her exertion in ascending the stairs brought upon the attack.

MOVEMENT TO RESTORE NEW ENGLAND PROMINENCE

E. P. Blanchard, advertising manager of the Bullard Machine Tool Company of Bridgeport and chairman of the New England Co-Operative Committee, described the progress thus far of a new movement to bring New England to the forefront economically when he spoke Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of the delegates to the 26th annual convention of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce in Hartford. This movement was definitely started as a result of the New England Advertising Convention held in Hartford last Fall and attended by 700 advertising people from all parts of New England. Mr. Blanchard said, in part, as follows:

"For the past few years, New England citizens, business men and "well-wishers" have been conscious of a muted chorus off-stage; almost inarticulate; yet whose doleful melody has sounded like a dirge or swan song the theme of which crept out occasionally in unison.—What's the matter with New England? Those of us who are blessed with a patriotic abundance of sectional pride have been satisfied to answer—nothing. We have at times listened to solo parts on why New England industries can't succeed and yet have seen them still succeeding, advancing toward greater development. But this general theme, perhaps by constant repetition and added volume, has finally made an impression. It crystallized into definite form by another of those letters of a self-made merchant to the sons of New England.

Edward A. Filene pointed "The Way Out for New England" at the Advertising Club Convention held here last November. He acknowledged a lack of progress equivalent to other sections that would hold for us our relative position of industrial leadership and he suggested re-organization on the mass production and mass distribution plan. The action which followed developed into a "Forward New England Movement."

Now, New England sons are loyal. When aroused their power of enthusiasm and persistency of purpose surpasses even the 1925 model Florida land agent and their love of the native heath and pride in its product is tolerant of California propaganda and effervescence, secure in a deeper emotion tempered with sound reasoning. Snap judgment and stampeding were never the methods of New England business men and we have, therefore, paused first to make a study of the situation.

A first analysist shows several individual movements on foot; each with a specific objective that would aid the general plan and in becoming a part thereof, would enlarge its own calibre and scope. Cooperation was therefore our first main objective. But in order to co-ordinate the various activities, it was necessary to classify them to some extent.

Primarily, of course, our subject is a study of New England's Industrial Economics. There are certain well established essentials to successful manufacture, which, by comparison with other communities or locations, determine in their aggregate, the advantage or dis-advantages under which we must operate. A survey of the actual condition existing in several of our leading industries determines the relative importance of each of these essentials in the respective industries. Factors of climate, property expense, material, power, equipment, labor, supply, the market, transportation, and specialized facilities should all be considered to determine their relative bearing on economical manufacture in each industry. Then the industrial interests can be combined for more effective attention to the important essentials which are common to any one group.

We are, of course, through local associations and Chambers of Commerce now giving attention to the more general problems of transportation and power, but we hope that a closer study of conditions will check any static or downward tendency in the equipment, labor, or market essentials before the situation becomes acute.

To this end, certain business men and representatives of engineering and business institutions in and about Boston have brought together, committees from all over New England, each in similar industrial lines for surveys which deals with the shoe manufacturing industry. Others which are in process deal with the cotton textiles, the rubber industry and foundries and machine shops.

Looking toward the development of our natural resources, they have also surveyed the fish industry and agriculture in New England with additional lines to be undertaken as fast as their plans can be carried out nI this work there are certain interesting facts which have already been brought to light such as the general condition of equipment in many New England plants and general policies of management deemed expedient by trustees in charge of a legacy enterprise.

We have to consider further, that New England is not self-supporting in raw materials but obtains a greater part of her supply from the outside. This we know, yet aside from fishing and agriculture we have considerable development in granite and marble quarrying; reforestation for lumber, and better than marginal opportunities in several minerals. Within the past three days I have had information of extensive chromite deposits covering several thousand acres,—private enterprise which has none of the earmarks of stock promotion. It is interesting to note, however, that the principals considered it necessary to take their financing to New York city

In labor we still have a residual margin of advantage but this factor is migratory. New England's skill and ingenuity produces the machinery required for her own processes, the highest grades of labor saving equipment known,—but this equipment too often is sent to other parts of the country to those industries with whom we must compete and those of our own shops who make the loudest complaints are often the ones who have overlooked this factor.

The factors of power and transportation are continually before you through the work of your own committees while a study of individual markets and an analysis of the cost of distribution is receiving the special attention of Secretary Hoover and the department of commerce.

The New England Cooperation committee is taking a keen interest in all of these activities. It is organized for cooperation with these industrial activities. It is particularly interested in the marketing problem and in a determination of logical New England markets. Progress in our own mercantile interests forms another division of our activities, and the promotion of New England's products as New England products to the consumer, either within our own section on a national scale or in export trade. We hope to enlist the interest of financial institutions back of our industries. We have already made contact for publicity through newspapers and other periodicals and we are trying insofar as possible to cover every avenue of analysis and promotion. Being a part of, and working with the typical New England temperament we are carefully constructing the ground work of this whole plan by which we hope New England's superiority can be maintained, through which her inherent skill and ingenuity may be rewarded by greater gain for all her people and in which every New Englander individual, institution and association must take a definite part for ultimate success."

FIRE IN FAMOUS QUINCY PUBLIC MARKET, BOSTON

Eighteen Firemen Were Overcome by Smoke While Fighting to Save the Historic Building From Destruction—The Blaze Was Confined Principally to the Unoccupied Half-Story Attic—Four Alarms Brought All the Down Town Fire Apparatus Into the Congested Market District.

Boston, May 9.—(A. P.)—Eighteen firemen were overcome by smoke in a successful battle to save the historic old Quincy Public Market building from destruction by fire early tonight. The fire started under the roof of one of the 170 foot ells of the building, ate into the central tower and burst through the roof along the entire length of the ell before being checked. The loss was $125,000.

Four alarms brought all available down-town apparatus into the congested market district behind Faneuil Hall and dense clouds of smoke generated in his stuffy attic attracted thousands of spectators. Half a dozen police and hospital ambulances were unable to handle the stream of injured firemen carried from the building and the police commandeered private machines to take unconscious men to hospitals.

Several times men on the roof were caught between fires, but were saved by water curtains thrown up from the street.

Although the damage by fire was confined almost entirely to the unoccupied half story attic, half a hundred small fruit and provision stalls offices of the Boston fruit and produce exchange and several store rooms were ruined by water.

The building was given to the city of Boston by Major Josiah Quincy and is nearly 100 years old. Ground was broken in 1824 and a year later the cornerstone was laid. The building was opened on August 26, 1826, and has always housed the city's public market. The original cost was $150,000 and the cost of the entire development was placed at $1,141,272.

OLYMPIA MACRI STATEMENT TO BE PRESENTED TO JURY

New Haven, May 9—Judge Christopher L. Avery late this afternoon ruled that the statement made by Olympia Macri to Coroner Ell Mix shortly after she shot to death John Bagnano on last February 26 may be presented as evidence to the jury that will determine whether or not the girl is guilty of first degree murder.

The testimony of witnesses who were present at police headquarters and the argument of Joseph Koletsky, defense counsel who bitterly opposed the admission as evidence of the alleged confession of Miss Macri, consumed almost the entire day's session. He claimed that the statement should be excluded on the grounds that the girl had not been properly warned that she did not have to talk and that what she said might be used against her. Defense Attorney Koletsky also claimed that Miss Macri was so excited at the time she made the statement as to be incapable of coherent speech.

Judge Avery in his ruling held that Coroner Mix had properly warned Miss Macri at the opening of the questioning when she was told "I am the coroner of the county and John Bagnano is dead. I can't compel you to say anything unless you want to and you are not obliged to say anything unless you want to, but I have a statement from other parties. If you want to make a statement as to it and you are willing to do it, we will take it down. You will answer my questions."

The transcript of the statement which will be presented to the jury next Tuesday shows that Miss Macri replied: "Yes, I will." All of the officials who were present at the time declared on the witness stand that the girl was apparently calm.

Coroner Mix testified that the statement had been obtained in the regular way on the afternoon that John Bagnano was shot.

NATURAL GAS FLAMES UPSET NATURE'S FLOWER SCHEDULE

Calgary, Alberta, May 9—Nature's schedule for the blooming of wild flowers has been entirely upset this spring in Turner Valley, near here, where a big flame burns continously at two outlets for superfluous gas from the Royalite 4 oil well.

Within the radius of the flames' heat a wild flower hothouse has been created, and the blooms are opening four to six weeks ahead of their normal time. Crocuses bloomed and passed on their long sleep before they appeared in the adjacent prairie, and lilies that usually bloom late in June are now in their full glory.

Wild strawberries were picked in the vicinity this week.

AUTHOR MAXIM GORKY WORKING FOR MASTERPIECE

Gorky refuses to discuss the nature of the work and has refused to grant interviews to special correspondents who came here from England, Germany and elsewhere to interview him.

Even Gorky's son asserts that he does not know the subject on which his father is writing.

BOOTLEGGERS ASHORE HURT BY RUM BLOCKADE AT SEA

New York, May 9—American bootleggers ashore—the higher ups in the international whiskey chess game—are the big losers as a result of Uncle Sam's blockade of rum row, coast guard officials said today.

It isn't the foreign liquor traders who ship the liquor here who lose, for they're playing almost a sure thing, according to the government officials, who today ended the fourth day of the country's most effective rum blockade since the prohibition law was passed.

Investigation based on their rum chasing experiences of the past few years has proved that when a deal is arranged with foreign rum sellers for the shipment of a cargo of liquor to this country, the purchase price is first deposited in banks abroad, the coast guardsmen said. The contract signed before the liquor starts its trans-Atlantic trip states that the contraband must be taken off the ship within a fixed period.

If by any chance, by virtue of government blockade or otherwise, the consignee cannot get "the stuff" ashore, that's his lookout, for the shipper has lived up to his end of the contract by keeping his contraband carrier on rum row for the stipulated period.

The coast guard officials reported that the capture of a number of operators of rum boats between shore and rum row with but a single dollar bill in the possession of each has revealed that necessity had mothered a rather ingenious practice. The serial number of the bill already has been sent abroad to the shipper of the liquor, the guardsmen said they learned, and given to the rum boat captain. On presentation of the bill to that individual he knew that he was dealing with the party to whom his cargo, or a part of it had been consigned. Later, said the guardsmen, the bootleggers arranged that the cabled serial number of the bill should also provide a code number for the quantity of contraband to be turned over to the consignee at rum row.

Members of the local fleet on the blockade returned to their Staten Island base today to announce that it had been erroneously reported that the rum runners' mess was living "off the best" when the blockade opened Tuesday were there today, they said, in addition to four new ones which arrived yesterday, unaware of the net they had sailed into.

Thirteen of the rum chasers, 75-footers of the patrol type which have been placed like watch dogs about each of the contraband boats, returned to Staten Island today for overhauling. They had been on the job ever since the blockade opened. They were replaced by other boats that had been held in readiness.

Coast guard officials said the blockade had been tightened a bit today, in anticipation of desperate efforts on the part of the shore-to-ship rum runners to smuggle liquor into the Metropolis for the relief of the week end aridity. But the guardsmen who came off duty today reported they had observed no signs of activity aboard the enemy ships nor at the numerous litte shore centers where the shoreforces.

Coolidge Opens Nat'l Oratorical Contest

Talked About Organizing Nations and People in the Ways of Peace.

Washington, May 9—President Coolidge, opening the National Oratorical contest with an address here tonight, declared that the United States has "a weighty responsibility, not only for maintaining its own welfare, liberties and peace, but for the utmost possible contribution toward organizing the nations and peoples in the aspirations and ways of peace."

"Here is a field for institutional development to which the thoughts of men and women everywhere are turned as they never were before," he continued. "Though their scale is greater, yet the problems in this realm of world organization are essentially the same as those to which mankind has been addressing itself from the beginning of society.

"These are the problems of assuring justice alike to the weak and the strong; of assuring peace with honor, of enthroning conscience in places of authority too long usurped by mere force. The same humanity that has been able to erect the rule of law and liberty on the scale of great nations and mighty federations will at last find institutions by which to place international relations upon the same sure foundations."

Recalling that he had delivered an address when a similar contest was held here a year ago, the president reminded his hearers that he had observed then that "there never was a time when our institutions were so universally being subjected to intimate scrutiny and close consideration as they are today."

"I urged the special importance of closely studying our institutions in order that the people might be equipped intelligently to defend them. Since that suggestion was advanced, we have literally taken a national referendum on the subject of our constitutional system, and I am glad to be able to report that the verdict was overwhelmingly in favor of sustaining that system and going on to perfect it.

"The voice of the nation has been heard. It spoke with emphasis that none could possibly misunderstand. It declared for ordered liberty, for constitutional procedures, for the maintained sanctity of the courts, the rule of law, the security of property and the sacredness of human rights."

Mr. Coolidge said he had been amazed to learn that the seven school children in tonight's finals were the survivors in a nation-wide competition in which the number of boys and girls taking part had reached the total of 1,400,000. Referring to the subject of the orations, the federal constitution, he added:

"Turning our eyes to the future, who can doubt that these studies of the underlying elements in our government constitute a pledge of security for those institutions in all the years to come?"

The finals, which were held in Washington's new auditorium with an opening address by President Coolidge, were judged by Chief Justice Taft Justices Van DeVanter, Butler and Sanford of the supreme court and attorney General Sargent. All of the orations dealt with the federal constitution.

The winner, who was 15 years old, was the youngest of the seven contestants. Eugene F. McElmeel of Los Angeles, aged 16, was rated second; Max N. Krolpff of Sioux City, Iowa, third; Miss Flora Longenecker, of Illion, N. Y., fourth; Miss Asenath Graves of Washington, D. C., fifth; George Stansell of Chicago, sixth and Philip Gialfelter of Columbia, Pa., seventh.

Both of these girls were 16 years old, and all of the boys, except Sessions and McElmeel, were 17.

APPEASE ALCOHOL CRAVING BY EATING RICH FOODS

Sacramento, Cal., May 8—"Food drunkards," who appease their craving for alcohol by eating rich foods containing a great amount of sugar, have replaced the heavy drinkers of pre-Volstead days and as a result diabetes is claiming hundreds of new victims, Dr. Richard F. Tomlin of San Francisco, declared in an address today before the convention of the California State Homeopathic Medical Society.

"These persons love the flesh pots, but try to convince their physicians that they are light eaters," he asserted. "They are just as much drunkards as the man who drinks liquor to excess and the consequences are equally serious. The Volstead law had lured the dissipation to the sugar-coated products, and diabetes is on the increase."

25 Drowned In Mississippi River

When Tow Boat Sank 25 Miles South of Memphis—Victims Were Excursionists.

Memphis, Tenn., May 8—(A. P.)—Twenty-five or more excursionists, members of the Mid-South Association of Engineers, were believed to have perished when the United States engineering corps tow boat Normand sank in the Mississippi river, 25 miles south of Memphis this afternoon.

News of the disaster was meager, the statements telephone to Memphis by a man who escaped being virtually the only thing available.

Every available speed boat in the Memphis harbor and ambulances were dispatched to the scene.

The government steamer Choctaw which also had taken a group of excursionists down the river, started back with doctors from the Memphis City hospital as soon as she had landed her passengers here.

The Normand and the Choctaw, both owned by the United States army engineers corps, had been put at the disposal of the engineers for an afternoon outing to Cow Island Bend. They were returning with the Choctaw in the lead, when the Normand went down. Persons on board the Choctaw did not know of the disaster until they reached Memphis.

The scene of the reported sinking is isolated and virtually impossible to reach except by water, it was said.

The boiler of the boat is supposed to have blown up. The location is just opposite Coahma Landing, Miss., and not far distant from the head of Josie Harris Island. The river current here is swift and treacherous, old river men say.

Just how many passengers escaped could not be learned as every one reached by telephone had only second hand information. The gist of this, however, was that only two or three men, one or two women and some children escaped.

George Foster, a Memphis engineer, gave the first word to the outside world of the sinking of, the government steamer Normand with a possible loss of more than 25 lives in the Mississippi river south of here. Appearing at the home of K. R. Armistead on the river near Lake Cormorant, Miss., he told of the disaster.

Foster told Miss Mary O'Donnell, at the Armistead home, that the boat capsized without warning. He was so excited, Miss O'Donnell said, that he could not give details except to say he could not ascribe a cause for the boat turning over.

Negro laborers on the Armistead plantation who were eye-witnesses to the accident said that the boat apparently was running smoothly when it stopped suddenly and careened and completely turned over, disappearing quickly. When the water reached the boilers, it sounded like "an automobile running" one of the negroes said.

No one was able to say whether the boilers exploded at this juncture, but they positive there was no explosion before the boat turned over.

PREDICTS ACCORD BETWEEN RELIGION AND SCIENCE

New York, May 8—Dean Inge of St. Paul's cathedral, London, at a farewell luncheon in his honor attended by prominent editors and literary men, today voiced his belief that the quarrels between religion and science would soon be healed. He said that in England the disparity between the Catholic and Protestant adherents of the established church is disappearing.

"Nor do I believe England will ever cease to be Protestant," the "gloomy" dean said.

Regarding the modernist tendency, Dean Inge said he did not believe the founder of the Christian religion would want anyone to outrage his intelligence by accepting tenets in which he had no faith.

Dean Inge deplored the extinction of the old American stock, saying it was noted for its plain living and high thinking. He expressed the hope that Latin immigration would be curtailed, and predicted America would continue Anglo-Saxon in its traditions and speech.

RECRUITING FOR EXPANSION OF COASTGUARD IN BOSTON

Boston, May 8—Recruiting for expansion of the coastguard dry fleet is proceeding briskly in Boston. Since Feb. 15, when the drive for increased personnel was begun, 200 men have been enlisted for two and three year terms, most of them for duty with the prohibition patrol, according to Ensign P. F. Gilkey, enlistment officer. Ensign Gilkey today challenged insinuation against the calibre of men being enlisted with an offer to skeptics to come to the recruiting office to look over men accepted.

"We demand, first of all, certificates of moral character from every applicant," he said, "then I carefully investigate a candidate's mental fitness. If I am satisfied with that, the prospective recruit then goes to the doctor for a rigid physical examination. If a man comes through the test he is a pretty good man."

Why Are Americans So Far Ahead?

Wherever world travelers come together the amazing comforts of Americans are sure to come in for discussion. Why is it that the average American lives like a king?

To be sure he has more money to spend than any other person in the world, but then he insists on spending it to bring better living to himself and family. Who knows what a subtle, but influential, part advertising plays in putting the American people ahead?

Advertising, by showing us new and better things, keeps us from being satisfied with "well enough."

Advertising, by making us want more, wakens the springs of action within us to get more. American advertising is a pretty substantial explanation of American advancement.

BRITISH WEEKLY REVIEWS APPROVE HOUGHTON ADDRESS

Publications Continue to Announce That Ambassador Houghton's Pilgrim Dinner Speech Was a Direct Warning For Europe to Mend Its Ways—Comment Holds That the Ambassador's Declarations Should Have a Salutary Effect in France and Germany—Address in Accord With British Views.

London, May 9.—(A. P.)—Mature consideration the address by Ambassador Alson B. Houghton, before the Pilgrim's society in London on Monday night, as expressed today by the weekly reviews, continues the tone of the earlier newspaper editorial comment, to the effect that the announcement made by the newly installed American ministers to the court of St. James was a direct warning for Europe to mend its ways.

With the exception of the weekly Westminster, all of the reviews comment upon the speech, and the Outlook, Spectator, New Statesman, Saturday Review and the Nation consider it should have a salutary effect, particularly in France and Germany. The general comment is that Mr. Houghton's views are more or less in line with those of the British in regard to the European situation.

The Outlook after praising the absence of "conventional platitudes and pious humbug about Anglo-American relations," and "evangelical righteousness about America's unselfishness," declares that "America's attitude does not differ signally from our own." It concludes with the declaration that Ambassador Houghton was wise to issue a definite hint that the continent must give up destructive motives and policies. There is a phrase that "the and guns, or by bellicose alliances."

The New Statesman characterizes the speech as the most important event of the week in the field of international policies, and says that the Ambassador's refusal to fill up his address with the usual phrases such as "blood is thicker than water" and "hands across the sea," was a wise act.

"Founded upon an unusual measure of understanding," says the New Statesman, "the French journals which saw a reference to France in Mr. Houghton's plea for "peace from within" furnished a "remarkably native example of getting on the cap that fits."

The Spectator says that Europe will do well to "ponder carefully" Ambassador Houghton's thoughts, and concludes that his plain meaning is "that security cannot be won by the material means of armaments, ships and guns, or by bellicose alliances."

The conservative Saturday Review also characterizes the address as an important event and says that it will have a salutary effect both in Germany and France, while in England it will "encourage efforts to solve the problem of security as the problem of reparation has, we hoped, been solved

STATE POLICE ARE CALLED TO PROTECT STRIKE-BREAKERS

Willimantic, May 8—The gates of the Willimantic mills of the American Thread Company plant, especially in the vicinity of The Elms, where the imported firemen have been housed, was the gathering place of hundreds of strikers and curious citizens Thursday night and Friday. The picket line was swollen to threatening proportions and several officers of the police department were about Thursday evening, in the event of any disturbance. Minor individual clashes took place between some of the strikers and the strike-breakers. Regarding these, Miss Mary Kelleher, in charge of the local strike, stated Friday that a disturbance was entirely against the policies of the strike which have been and will be to maintain a passive, but determined attitude. It was reported from The Elms that the telephone wires had been cut, sometime during the evening or the night.

The attitude of the gathering induced the officials of the plant to arrange for stronger protection for any of the employes entering the mills and the state police department was called upon Friday. Superintendent of State Police Robert Hurley came here about noon and met with a detachment of about ten state police officers coming from the Danielson and Stafford Springs barracks. The officers took their posts at the mills during the noon hour and at the closing time of the plant in the afternoon. The strike-breakers were smuggled into and out of the mills through gates which were the least protected by pickets. Other employes coming out of the plant were greeted with cheers with a suspiciously sarcastic undertone and some of the workers were escorted to their homes by bands of strikers. There was no evidence of bodily conflict Friday and the leaders were making every effort to avoid any repition of the incident of Thursday evening.

Horace Riviere, national organizer is in this city and will remain during the crisis of the strike next Monday when the mill whistle will be blown and all employees will be invited to return to work. The professional firemen will be on duty and have the plant under power.

While considerable excitement prevails among the workers here since the coming of the firemen the local committee, in conjunction with the national organization of textile workers is making every effort to induce the American Thread employe of the Holyoke and Fall River mills to join their ranks. It was stated Friday by the local leaders that the progress of the work is gradual and indicates eventual co-operation.

JEWETT CITY

When the night operator at the local telephone exchange threw in the gears at 2 o'clock as is her custom, Thursday evening, for the daily test of the big fire whistle, it was discovered that on account of short circuit or broken electric connection, the mechanism failed to function. Chief Thomas Wakeley of the fire department was notified and he, with E. F. Nichols, boss mechanic for the Ashland Cotton Co., perfected emergency arrangements, whereby if a fire occurred in the night, the Ashland mill whistle would blow the station numbers. A further safeguard was seen to by the chief whereby the Baptist church bell would have been rung, as is days of yore.

Local amateur botanists are of the opinion that it has remained for a small boy, one of Miss Alice A. Brown's pupils in the Riverside grammar school to discover blue hair bells in local woods. Heretofore, 20 years of search in this section have never been rewarded by success.

The house to house searchers, not being sure of their classification, E. F. Burleson has sent the specimen to a state botanist for positive opinion.

This beautiful and delicate blossom is said by people who have picked it amid Scotland's heather, to be almost identical with the bluebells of Scotland.

Evidently little affected by the cold, tent caterpillars have made an early and determined start. Fruit tree owners were burning them with long pole torches Thursday evening. One year with fine results, the school children took a hand in destroying these pests.

Like activities would again be doubtless availing and as certainly welcome to fruit growers.

Jeffers invited them to drive with herself and Mrs. Alice Anthony to Pequa-tanuck and spend the day with Mrs. Annie L. Frost. In their absence several of their friends entered the house through the cellar and when Mr. and Mrs. Cheney unlocked the house door they were more than astonished, especially as Mr. Cheney had very positively affirmed that they very positively affirmed that they him.

For once he was dumfounded. They found the table set with ham, potato salad, pickles, rolls, brown bread, cake, jello and whipped cream, coffee and candy. The favors were bon bon caps and as has happened before, the place cards were the result of several brain storms. Whist was played, an ice cream dish going to Mrs. Anthony as first prize. Mrs. Grace Webster received a fancy dish as consolation award. Gustave Greenwood took the gentlemen's first prize, a comb case, and Raymond Cheney the consolation which was a handkerchief. The company presented Mr. and Mrs. Cheney a mahogany Seth Thomas clock. Tyler Gilbert making the speech. The party included Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Cheney, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Gilbert, Mrs. H. T. # PLAINFIELD

Mr and Mrs. Daniel Connell, Fred Walsh, Teresa Sullivan and Harold Burke made up one of the many theatr' parties to Norwich Thursday night.

Friday proved a cold, bleak day. Winter overcoats are still in fashion.

The eighth grade pupils of the grammar school spent Friday at the high school. The visiting students were shown around the school by the seniors. The freshmen girls' domestic science class cooked a luncheon for the pupils.

A few Norwich Academy girls were playing tennis on the Community House courts, Thursday afternoon.

Director LeRoy Dessenger is winning praise, for the way he is conducting athletic sports at the Community House. All the youngsters of the village call him a regular scout. Baseball, tennis, swimming, golf, basketball are at their height at the Community House. Interest is being taken by the whole village and the townsmen are at last appreciating the full value of such a building.

The cement on the highway is completed up to the grammar school. Work is speeding right ahead and the hopes of the contractor will probably be realized as there is but one more mile to be laid, which will be complete by July.

There was excitement over a blow out on a Ford sedan owned by John C. Williams, of Providence, Friday afternoon. The front tire of the car blew out, hurling the tire bolder twenty feet away, up against the plate glass window of the Spokaloo Press Shop. No damage to the window resulted. The report was similar to the shot of an overloaded rifle.

The annual meeting of the officers and executive committee of Plainfield Community Association was held in the Community House Wednesday night.

The Plainfield Brass band held a regular rehearsal Wednesday night.

Ernest Sturthers, Homer Jolicoeur, Walter Kelly and Edmond Radcliffe lead in the pinochle tournament at the Community House.

A group of boys of the village will get into serious trouble if they continue to play around the steam boiler of the automatic cement, sand and gravel mixer near the railroad station. For the past week the boys have been putting the fire out in the boiler, delaying the crew of men on the mixer for an hour or more. Tuesday night the boys drained the boiler of the water which resulted in almost blowing up the engine-room. The local police officer has been notified of the boys' pranks.

Lester Salisbury, George O'Neil and Theodore Dayon went fishing down to Beach Pond Tuesday, returning with a big catch.

Work on the new gasoline filling station on the main highway is almost complete. This station will be one of the most up to date in this section.

Zeckland Polasher while driving home from a dance in Packer, left the road with his Ford sedan, Wednesday night. Very little damage was done and after being towed out of the ditch the car returned to Plainfield under its own power. Mr. Polasher was severely shaken up but required little medical attention.

People of the village are wondering what the work Spokaloo means. No one seems to know; it has even the cross word puzzle sharks stuck.

John J. Fitzgerald who has recently visited many of the mill towns in New England, states that of the many villages visited none can compare with Plainfield. He states that this village is neater, cleaner and in every respect surpasses the other mill towns. The Community House is something which the townsmen feel proud of. It is a building equipped in the best manner known and he states that very few large cities can boast of a place like it. The Lawton Inn too, is superior to any mill village inn in New England. Mr. Fitzgerald stated that he was very glad to get back to Plainfield.

Plans for the big Memorial day celebration moved forward considerably Wednesday night, at the army and navy post meeting. Commander Fred Provovst addressed the ex-service men. He stated that in the past few years all the work of decorating the graves of veterans was left to a few. Plainfield has held no exercises for almost ten years. This Memorial day, he declared, would be entirely different. The parade will form at the local post and march to the Catholic church Honor Roll Statue; thence to the Episcopal Church Honor Roll Tablet, and to the Congregational Church Honor Roll Tablet; moving from there to the cemetery. The post is trying to get all ex-service men of the town out for the big parade, together with the societies, lodges of both men and women and the churche members in the village.

National Park in Africa

An Albert National Park in the Belgian Congo will be created in the near future by royal decree. The region selected is a high table land between Lake Kivu and Uganda. Protection will be given to both animals and plants and hunters will be forbidden to penetrate into the region.

Further evidence that the antarctic continent was discovered in 1820 by Bransfield has been published, thus giving credit to J. G. Boss, who sighted South Victoria Land in 1841, was not first in the region.

MOTHERS DAY PICTURE AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY

The seven reel feature motion picture, "Boy of Mine" portraying the human interest story by Booth Tarkington will be shown in the large gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. on the coming Sunday at 4 o'clock, daylight time. This marvelous story by moving pictures is one of the most impressive, telling, as it does the experience of modern home life, where the boy and the Father seem unable to get along together, and though he is a good husband, he fails as a father. The mother love is demonstrated in an impressive manner, as she endeavors to heal the breach between the lad and the father. This picture has been shown in churches and schools with great success, and always leaves a deep impression upon the hearts of those who see the wonderful production. Admission is free to the public, except that boys and girls under fourteen must be accompanied by adults: fathers, mothers and sons are specially invited.

Slater Hall Musical Course.

The word Flonzaley is a combination of Italian and old French, which may be translated as "Brooklet"—"flon" in the Swiss Baudois dialect meaning river, and "Flonzaley" being its diminutive. The name as applied to the Flonzaley quartet, which is to play at Slater hall on Monday evening, May 11, under the auspices of the Norwich Free Academy, was taken from the "Ville Flonzaley," the Swiss home of the man who founded this ensemble, the late E. J. de Coppet. The following programme will be rendered:

Quartet in B Flat Major, Op. 18, No. 6
Allegro con brio
Adagio ma non troppo
Scherzo
La Malin conla (Adagio)
Allegretto quasi allegro
Beethoven

Andante cantabile Tschaikowsky
A short suite for string quartet (from the piano pieces "Pictures at an Exhibition.")
Promenade
An Old Castle (a minstrel serenade) gossiping and quarreling on a French market place.
Moussorgsky-Pochon

Andante con variazioni (Death and the Maiden) Schubert
The Pixy Ring—a fairy miniature suite Waldo Warner

At the Breed

With John Gilbert, Eleanor Boardman and Aileen Pringle in the leading roles, Metro-Goldwyn is offering a picturization of Cyril Hume's sensational modern novel, The Wife of Centaur at the Breed theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Like the fabled animal referred to in the last word of the title, that was half beast and half man, the herd of this story is an author with a dual nature, who vacillated between the ideal and manly side that found expression in his marriage to a devoted young woman, and the appeal of passion as exemplified in the fascination for a worldly woman who sought to win him.

John Gilbert is dashing and romantic and gives a vivid performance as the Centaur, a Sheik of old. There is plenty of dash and action and a thrilling journey down a snow-covered mountain by the hero. Altogether, Wife of the Centaur should provide better than the average entertainment.

First Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Broadway Theater

F. Scott Fitzgerald who writes so cleverly about flappers and philosophers has tried his hand at a movie story with the very best of results. In Grit, the Hodkinson picture playing at the Broadway theater, Sunday night, Mr. Fitzgerald has blended a corking good crook-story and an appealing romance of young love.

It is reported that Mr. Fitzgerald wrote Grit, especially for Glenn Hunter and it surely seems that this must be so, for the part is ideally suited to Mr. Hunter's aptitude for faithfully portraying youth. The story is about Kid Hart, son of a gangster, who is brought up by the gang to be "the best lookspicker on the East side." The "Kid" has inherited a fear of guns, and Smith, leader of the gang, takes advantage of this to force the "Kid" to do his bidding. It is his love for Orchid McGonigle, who is not afraid to leave the gang and "go straight," that finally makes the "Kid" find his better self. We're not going to spoil the climax for you but we want you to know that it is a climax with real, honest-to-goodness thrills.

A word of praise should be given to the Film Guild for the fidelity of its production. As a picture of the underworld alone, Grit is worth seeing. It is also worth seeing as a crackerjack Fitzgerald story. Taking all

DANIELSON

Relatives and friends, members of the bar, members of the legislature and representatives of the official bodies of the state, county and town gathered with members of the family for the funeral services of Mrs. Honoria Morris Darbie, wife of Charles L. Darbie, Friday at noon. The services were held at the home on North Main street and were conducted by Rev. Leonard J. Richards, rector of St. Alban's church, of which Mrs. Darbie was a member. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Judge Sabin S. Russell, Postmaster Edwin H. Keach, Francis E. Storer, Frederic O. Armington, Alfred L. Reed and Frank E. Kennedy. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements. The floral tributes were magnificent. From the members of the house at Hartford, where Mrs. Darbie's son, Attorney E. L. Darbie is speaker, came a beautiful arrangement of 263 roses, one for each member, representing every town in the state. Among those who attended the services were Rev. Arthur F. Lewis, chaplain of the house and rector of St. Michael's church at Naugatuck; Judge Benjamin Alling, house leader, George R. Sturges, of Woodbury, who of New Britain, and Representative has been acting speaker since the death of Speaker Darbie's mother. There was also a delegation of members of the house from Windham county towns.

Surprising and entirely unexpected to her friends here was the death Friday afternoon at the Day Kimball hospital, in Putnam, of Mrs. Nana M. Puize Bennett, 45, wife of Frank Bennett of Providence. Mrs. Bennett came here last Sunday for a week end visit with her mother. During her stay, not feeling well, she visited a physician to ascertain her condition and was advised to consult a specialist. His advice was that she immediately undergo a surgical operation for the relief of a very serious condition. Mrs. Bennett was operated upon Tuesday. The operation revealed a condition even more serious than had been anticipated. During Friday her condition even more serious than had her death occurring about 4 o'clock. The body was later removed from Putnam, in charge of Undertaker A. F. Wood.

Mrs. Bennett was born in Providence, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Alfred Pulse. Her father, dead several years, came here when Mrs. Bennett was a very young girl and for many years was proprietor of a barbering business. Mrs. Bennett attended Danielson's schools and remained here until she had grown to womanhood. She had made her home in Providence, where her husband is employed, for years, though she returned to Danielson and lived for a time about two years ago.

Mrs. Bennett is survived by her husband, by her mother, Mrs. J. Alfred Pulse, of Carter street, by a brother, Wilfred Pulse, who is engaged in business here, and by a sister, Mrs. Dora MacCaughern, of Stamford.

State officers from the Danielson barracks hurried over to Willimantic Friday morning in response to calls from that city asking their assistance in quelling the disturbance arising out of the American Thread company introducing imported workers to take the places of the strikers who have been out the past ten weeks. Practically the entire force of state officers stationed here was on duty in Willimantic during Friday afternoon, as more fully set forth in the Willimantic news Friday morning.

The initial work for the development of the Eastern Dairies, Inc., Danielson plant was done Friday morning on the 12-acre tract the concern has acquired at the head of Reynolds street. The storage and refrigeration station is to be located about opposite of the Gallup farm. The necessary excavating will be hurried with a view to beginning the actual construction operations within a few days. It is hoped to have the property ready for occupancy prior to July 1.

There is gratification in the privilege of recording the recovery of Deacon A. C. Greene in such degree as to permit his to receive again the calls of his many friends and acquaintances. Deacon Greene, resident on North Main street, is one of Danielson's oldest citizens and is nearing the century figure. He has been ill the past five months.

Friday morning discredited the reputation of May by being so cold as to do injury to the icemen's business and the same holds for the vendors of ice cream and other cooling things. The temperature was down to 28 degress in Danielson at 6 a. m., and ice formed on water left out over night in small vessels. There was some damage to early plants and to the temper of that part of the populace who would like to experience real spring weather.

Secretary J. M. Corbett of the Windham county Y. M. C. A., expressed his encouragement Friday with the result of the week's drive to finance the county organization for another year. Great strides have been made toward reaching the goal of $6,600. Friday morning's reports showed that Putnam had raised $1,343 of its quota of $1,500, this regarded as a remarkably fine showing. Plainfield reported $815; Woodstock, $715; Killingly, $457; Thompson, $145; Eastford, $60; Pomfret, $105, the reports from the three last named towns being incomplete. Putnam appears to be in position to be the first town to go over the top. Killingly also is apportioned $1,500 and the workers for the fund are striving hard to get it. Twenty-six men are assisting in the drive and are doing very good work.

This (Saturday) afternoon, Killingly boys who are to compete in the county field and track meet to be held at the fairgrounds in Brooklyn, in the near future, are to have their trials and workouts. The provision now is that the board of directors shall not be less than seven nor more than eleven members, all of whom must be stockholders.

TWO TELEPHONE LINEMEN SAVE CLARK'S CORNER HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, May 2—Joseph Meunier and Walter Keeler, Jr., members of the plant department of the S. N. E. Telephone company, were largely instrumental Friday in saving from destruction by fire, a house in the vicinity of Clark's Corner, where they were engaged at work on the company lines. Their attention was attracted by a man who came running down the highway, waving and shouting at them for aid. They responded immediately and worked like Trojans, hauling water in a bucket and squirting it on the blazing oil with a hand pump. The fire eventually was extinguished and the house saved from destruction. An aged couple were occupying the premises and serious consequences might have resulted for them, had it not been for the activity of Messers Meunier and Keeler, both residents of Danielson, and the man who sought them out.

An empty can may not point a moral, but it frequently adorns a tail.

SYSTEM FOR FEEDING BABY CHICKS

Chicken mortality is the greatest single expense or loss in brooding chicks. A small proportion of mortality may normally occur during the first few days, before any feeding has become effective, one way or the other. The greater part of the mortality that may be traced to feeding occurs during the second and third weeks. Any practices that will help to reduce this early mortality and get the chickens well started toward feathering out, is worthy of careful consideration.

Chicks, when hatched, have a liberal supply of egg yolk in the body cavity, which is absorbed into the digestive tract and used for food during the first few days. Heavy feeding before this egg yolk is used up is almost sure to cause trouble later on. Chicks should be kept confined in the incubator, or kept in chick boxes until they are 48 to 72 hours old; then placed in the brooder and fed.

Chicks that are purchased by mail are usually held at the starting point so that they will arrive at the proper age for feeding. Chicks should be given a small amount of feed—when placed under the hover—else they will fill up on sand, litter, or whatever may be available.

For several years the poultry department at Storrs has been recommending the following ration for starting chicks: Bran, 200 pounds; corn meal, 100 pounds; middlings, 100 pounds; ground oats or ground oatmeal, 100 pounds; beef scrap, 50 pounds; bone meal, 25 pounds.

Scratch grain: Cracked corn, 150 pounds; cracked wheat, 150 poubds; and cut oatmeal, 100 pounds.

At a conference of representatives from all of the New England agricultural colleges, a uniform ration for this territory was worked out and accepted as a standard. The changes as compared to the ration above, are to reduce to an units of bran and corn meal in the mash, and in the scratch grain, to add 50 pounds, to the cracked corn and reducing the wheat 50 pounds.

With these rations, the chicks should be fed sparingly on the chick feed during the first week. Sour skimmed milk should be kept constantly before the chicks. The mash should be started at the end of the first week and kept before the chicks from then on. The amount of the scratch grain and dry mash from the second week on, should be just about equal. Early in the season there is no necessity for giving water, if milk is provided. Later in the season, it is better to provide both milk and water because of the danger of the chicks drinking too much water when it is first given.—Roy E. Jones of Connecticut Agriculture College.

VETCH AC-A COVER CROP

Vetch as a cover crop and soil enricher for sweet corn increased the yield $200 per acre, or about double it, according to reports from New Jersey growers. The experiment was conducted on a 95-acre farm. The county agent reported that part of the field where vetch had been plowed under produced twice as much sweet corn as it did where it had not been used. The difference between the yields where the vetch had been grown and plowed under and the field where had not been planted to this cover crop was striking.

"Since sweet corn will make a gross return from $200 to $400 per acre," says the county agent's report, "it is conservative to say that by doubling their yield these growers increased their income by $200 per acre."

THE CULTIVATED ORCHARD

Orchard cultivation should include the plowing of the orchard once a year, at least three or four thorough cultivations, and the growing of some kind of cover crop. The cultivation should be started early in the spring as the chief advantage of cultivation is believed to be the liberation of nitrogen in the soil. The time when nitrogen is most needed by the tree and also the time when it is most difficult to obtain is early in the spring when the soil temperature is low.

Cultivation in the apple orchard should usually be discontinued by the first of July, at which time some cover crop should be sown which will make a rapid growth during the latter part of the summer for plowing under in the fall or the following spring. Among the more desirable cover crops for Connecticut may be mentioned buckwheat, dwarf essex rape, Timothy, red clover, sweet clover and winter vetch.

CARE OF CHICKS PUT OUT ON THE RANGE

When chicks are put on the range from the permanent brooder house or when a colony type of brooder moved to the range, remove the brooders from the pullets and put only the pullets on the range, unless they are to be grown to the roaster stage. Be sure that the chicks are put on clean land that has not had hens or poultry manure on it for at least two years. If this is impossible be sure that the land has been thoroughly limed and seeded to some crop such as rye, oats, corn or grass. A sod land is excellent.

Place these range shelters low and stretch one inch chick wire underneath to prevent huddling. Do not put enough chicks under one shelter to cause crowding. If it is impossible to keep enough green feeds in the chick yard, grow dwarf Essex rape or other green feeds nearby and throw in some daily. Be sure to provide for adequate shade on the range. Remember, chicks do not grow while panting in the hot sun. Use natural shade if you can, otherwise, provide it by growing corn, sunflower or asparagus.

Feed the same as for baby chicks. The mash should be: 100 pounds bran, 100 pounds flour middlings, 200 pounds corn meal, 100 pounds ground oats, 100 pounds meat scrap, 25 pounds bone meal and 25-50 pounds of powdered milk, if other forms of milk is not used. For scratch grain, the following: 200 pounds cracked corn, 100 pounds wheat.

Chicks in hoppers, the dry mash and the scratch grains, before the birds at all times, unless they must be kept in crowded conditions. In this case, the scratch grains should be scattered in a litter to give the birds exercise. Plenty of fresh water is absolutely essential. If possible pipe the water to the range. If not get a molasses barrel or tank and fasten it on a couple of skids and then let the water drip into troughs as needed. Remember to keep pullets back from laying rather than forcing them to production. They will lay more and larger eggs throughout the winter months if you do. To do this give three times more scratch grains than dry mash.

HOW TO GROW YOUR OWN VITAMINES

Closely associated in our minds with the vitamins that supply are the vegetables that can be grown in almost any home garden—spinach, cabbage, lettuce, carrots, string beans, peas, rutabagas, tomatoes, all the lowly vegetables known as "greens" and many others. We also obtain necessary minerals from these vegetables—iron, calcium, phosphorus—and depend on them for bulk, or "roughage." But our first thought is apt to be—vegetables for vitamines!

The advantages of growing vitamins in our gardens are many and obvious. To begin with, there is the matter of freshness. No matter how near the market may be to the home, it is usually a long way from the farmer who produced the vegetables. Garden products that have been carried over a dusty road, and perhaps exposed for hours before they were sold, can not be compared in desirability of flavor or condition with those just off the vine or out of the earth. The vitamin content of vegetables is also dependent to some extent upon freshness.

Again, when the vegetables are actually at hand in the garden, waiting to be gathered the chances are that they will be used oftener, and in larger quantities, than when some one has to go to a store to get them. The price often influences the quantity bought when the housekeeper goes to market, but when she steps into her garden she is apt to bring in as much as she believes her family will consume.

The convenience of having a garden frequently leads to a beneficial change in the proportions of the family diet. Vegetables are served more abundantly because they are available, and they satisfy the craving for bulk, lessening the desire for other foods which may be unnecessary or harmful. Almost automatically the garden tends to increase the use of vegetables.

The garden must, of course, be carefully planned so that it will yield an adequate supply of the kinds of vegetables the family likes and needs, both for table use and for canning or storing. If some sort of record is kept from one year to the next to show the quantity of each vegetable grown and the use made of it, a garden budget can be adjusted more easily.

Fresh fruits are also important sources of vitamins, and should be considered in connection with the garden plan. Many orchard fruits and berries grow well in all sections of the country, and others are best suited to certain localities. While the citrus fruits—oranges, lemons, grapefruit—are among the best sources of vitamins, they are produced only in warm climates, and must be purchased in other sections; local fruits, however, may be depended on also to supply vitamins, and when the latter are lacking, tomato juice, either fresh or canned, may be used instead. It goes without saying, therefore, that it is a good thing to include tomatoes in every garden plan.

TIME FOR PLANTING THE EARLY CORN

This is a good time to plant early sweet corn, to be harvested early in the fall. Probably the golden bantam is the best variety for commercial purposes. This early variety should be planted closer together than the later larger growing corn. Three to five kernels should be planted in hills 18 inches apart in rows 30 to 36 inches apart. The depth of planting should be about 1 1-2 inches. At this rate of planting it will take about one pint of corn for every 200 hills or about eight quarts per acre.

If crows have bothered in the past they should be treated with asphalt tar before planting. Warm the tar then use a stirrup. First put the stirrup in the tar, then in the corn with it. Keep the corn covered with tar. When the tar has dried on the kernels they are ready for planting. The crows do not like the odor of the tar and will not touch the corn so treated. Be sure also to cover the seed so that the crows can not see that the field has been planted.

If possible from 10 to 15 loads of barn yard manure should be applied to the acre with about 200 pounds of 5-8-7 fertilizer in addition. 800 pounds per acre should be used on land when no stable manure is available. The seed bed for corn should be smooth and free from turf and stones where possible so that a smoothing harrow or weeder can be used to keep down the weeds. Under these conditions this implement can be used up to the time the corn is 6 to 8 inches high. This harrow should be used, however, only when the corn is dry in the afternoon so that the stalks will not break off.

There are not ten members of the British parliament who speak or write English properly, in the opinion of Dr. E. C. Graham, member of parliament himself for the London University, in a recent address Dr. Graham raised his voice against the "woeful neglect" of the study of English, which he called the finest language in the world.

"Eczema broke out on my face in a rash of pimples, itching and burning so that I could not sleep nights. The irritation caused me to scratch my face and then blisters appeared. This went on for a few weeks till a friend advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a free sample and after using it I got relief. I purchased more and after using five cakes of Cuticura Soap, and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) George E. Cesar, 248 W. 36th St., New York City, Oct. 30, 1924.

Your dollars always do what you tell them to do. They'll work, they'll run, they'll lie idle, and even "melt" away. But if they could talk — you'd hear them say, "Put me to work"—"I want to multiply—Take an interest in me and I'll make it interesting for you."

SLASHING THE EXPENSES

When congress meets next December it will be a new congress and it will have before it the appropriation bills for the fiscal year of 1926. Appropriation measures have been getting very careful scrutiny for the past few years. There has been a demand for the elimination of extravagance, for getting down to a sound business basis in government operations and for providing the means for cutting taxation by reducing the debt and the expenditures. In other words the aim has been to give the people of the country the benefit by stopping the waste that has been practiced in the past. And as might be expected it produces appreciation. What is more gratefully received by burdened taxpayers than government policies put into operation in such a manner as to accomplish two tax cuts and to give promise of another?

Estimates which have been made for the various departments during the fiscal year 1926 reach the total of $3,297,561,000. It is the belief of President Coolidge, who has the hearty support of the budget director, that this sum can be cut by $300,000,000 without cramping the work that needs to be done. This would mean bringing the running expenses of the government down below the three billion mark.

This desire means that a careful study is now being made with such an object in view, and it means that the president is to remain on the job until it is known what can be accomplished. It is only fair to presume that there is good basis for his belief that it can be accomplished, and from the fact that reduced government expenses means reduced taxation for the people, the result of the study will be awaited with keen interest.

Some idea of what has already been accomplished through the cutting of expenditures and the lowering of the national indebtedness is furnished by the statement that government expenditures can be slashed in 1926 to the extent of $60,000,000 because the lowering of the debt has cut the interest requirements that amount. This indicates how favorably the good work is being pushed and how desirable it is that it should be permitted to continue. The president's aim to give the people the chance to use the money which has been going for taxes for other purposes has a genuine appeal.

HOW MEXICO STANDS

One of the great endeavors of the soviet government is to get recognition from this country. It has been told on what terms diplomatic relations might be expected to be resumed, but it has not met those conditions and its aim appears to be to accomplish it without doing so.

Not only did Secretary Hughes set forth our position explicitly but his successor and the president have considered it necessary, in view of the Russian attitude, to let the country and the rest of the world, including Russia, know that the change in secretaries does not mean any change in the government's Russian policy.

How Russia seems to have planned a campaign for the purpose of winning recognition here is indicated by the action which has been taken by President Calles of Mexico in calling a halt to bolshevic agitation in the republic to the south of the Rio Grande. This agitation was directed against the United States and it is significant that much of it had its origin in the Russian legation. President Calles makes it plain that he is in no way disposed to tolerate any such conduct toward a neighbor. He isn't going to permit Mexico to be used as a base for striking at Uncle Sam.

This is a disclosure which not only reveals the subtle plans of soviet Russia, but it displays a gratifying spirit of friendship on the part of Mexico toward this country. The latter means much. President Calles has held the office but a short time. He is the successor of Obregon, who set an excellent example in this direction, and while he hasn't been regarded as a second Obregon, but rather to have radical tendencies, his action in this instance creates a most excellent impression. It is needless to say that he gives indications of recognising the importance of cultivating and maintaining the friendship of the United States, and it is to be most sincerely hoped that this is only the beginning of manifestations of a similar character for the future. It means much for both countries.

STOPPING ALIEN PESTS

This country has taken a most commendable stand for its own protection in establishing restrictions barring the undesirables. It is properly figured that we have enough of such kind without opening our doors to the nibble from other countries. But while we are doing our best to maintain such a policy in regard to human beings, we cannot ignore the importance of keeping away undesirables of other kinds.

The department of agriculture has called recent attention to the situation which has been created by the importation of pests with the large quantity of seeds and bulbs that are [illegible] country, there is no all kinds of havoc with vegetation. Those who are brought in contact with them in any way know the desirability of elimination. But what is more important is that we should guard against lending encouragement to these ruinous worms and diseases which threaten production in this country by being brought from abroad. We have enough of all varieties without importing any more, and we are sufficiently well supplied without adding to the number of those particular types which have gotten in.

What can be done by the department of agriculture in denying admittance to such bother is desirable. It is calling particular attention at present to the European oelworm, of which we unfortunately have some in Pacific coast states but of which we want less instead of more. We need no new importations and when it is realized that we import more than 175,000,000 bulbs and roots in the course of a year much vigilance is required to see that they do not carry such alien pests with them.

When California points out that unless the oelworm is curbed it will ruin the bulb industry in that state there is registered a complaint that calls for early and determined action. There is need for vigorously fighting such pests as we have, but there is also required just such preventive work as the department is engaged in. It cannot be too successful for the benefit of one of the important industries of the country.

MOTHERS' DAY

Sunday will be only the 17th anniversary of the institution of the second Sunday of May as Mothers' day. Just why it was not thought of before would be hard to answer. Why it should be continued with ever increasing participation is all too well known.

The fact is of course that every day should be Mothers' day, though there are too many of us who fail to realize that in the ordinary course of events. We are not exactly unmindful of the mother's efforts and worries in our behalf but we accept it without giving consideration to what it means or fully appreciating how dependent we have been upon it. Are we too prone to regard it as something due us without due regard for its priceless value?

Mothers' day has for the past eleven years been fixed by the act of congress as an occasion when the people may give public expression of their love and reverence for the mothers of the country. There was back of the idea a most beautiful thought. It is well that there should be such a reminder of our duty, and certainly once a year is none too often to have any laxity, any forgetfulness brought to our attention.

Since the world began the mother love has been the inspiration and guide of childhood, manhood and womanhood and it will continue to be a compelling force for righteousness till the human race is no more.

We can do no better than join heartily in carrying out the purposes of Mothers' day, and in keeping that same spirit alive throughout the year.

MIDSHIPMEN AS AVIATORS

In some quarters there is surprise manifested at the recent announcement by the secretary of the navy that all midshipmen at Annapolis will hereafter be required to take a course in aviation. Somehow the impression has been gained that the government is not cognizant of the importance of aviation in providing for national defense. We have in fact been told that we were wasting time and money in maintaining a navy and should devote our efforts in the future to defense in the air.

It is not as the result of this latter claim, but following the investigation by a federal commission that the announced change at Annapolis has come about. It was anticipated when the commission was named. It does not mark the end of training for naval activities but it does mark a decided change because of a full recognition of the importance of aerial warfare and the importance of properly training our forces for such an emergency should it arise.

We have reached the stage of aviation where no less can be done. There will be a course of training for three months in ground and flight work for the purpose of making each graduate an aviator, capable of air service and thoroughly in touch with such service as connected with the navy. This does not contemplate changing the midshipmen from sea to air duty, but to equip them for the latter in addition to the former. As the future officers of the navy they must be expected to have to understand and deal with the flying problems, and there is no better way of teaching them to do so than by actual experience.

It is not improbable that it will even add to the attractions which Annapolis has for young men.

EDITORIAL NOTES

You are, of course, not unmindful of the fact that Sunday is Mothers' day.

By taking a stand against red activities Mexico not only pleases this country but it protects its own welfare.

Not all of those who insist we have too many laws in this country have reached that conclusion by violating them.

The man on the corner says: Some find it hard to overcome the habit of being guided by prejudice instead of conscience.

Education it is claimed will stop war. Well, it ought to, but until it is better distributed it will be necessary to be prepared.

Astronomers tell us that Saturn is now 821,240,000 miles away from us, which makes certain that it is outside the dry law limit.

There's some little complaint because May doesn't adjust the weather to better suit us, but we will be hollering all too soon because it is too hot.

Just how nervous people are over earthquakes is indicated by the report that the Swampscott tremor is now declared to have been only a blast in a quarry.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

There are many changes going on in our modern cities that doubtless make for the betterment of human life, while there are others that are of very doubtful value. This distinct contrast may be seen in any of our older New England cities. As many of them date back to old colonial times they retain evidences of the old colonial aristocracy. As one walks along some of these residential streets he marks the painful contrast between the old and the new. There in the old, restful mansion in the center of spacious grounds. Trees and shrubbery are in abundance. It seems to speak of the ease, leisure, culture and wealth of former years. But what has happened? On one side of the spacious grounds has been erected a mammoth modern apartment house along the entire depth of the grounds. It is big, coarse and profitable. Culture and wealth have bowed the knee to commercialism. Will the old and the new mingle?

We must not put down the opinions of all intelligent foreigners in regard to our prohibition laws as the babblings of old fogies. No doubt much of it is inspired by prejudice, and very likely a good deal of it come from only a partial understanding of the real working of said laws. The great brewers of England have a large influence in controlling public opinion in that country. No doubt many of these anti-prohibition sentiments are inherited, and some races have a great racial difficulty in thinking differently from their ancestors, and especially in those countries where aristocracy prevails. It is rather puzzling to our American mode of thought to find so much emphasis put upon the personal liberty equation. Personal liberty in the drink question is nothing more than personal selfishness. It is looking at a great question from the narrow personal viewpoint and not from a national point of view.

In years past May day has been selected by the disgruntled elements in many places to blazon before the public in parades and fiery speeches their dissatisfaction. Our big cities have come to dread the outbreaks of the discontented on May day. Now all the argument is not on the side of constituted authority. The protesting masses in many cases have had a just cause for their angry demonstrations. They may sometimes go too far in the explosions of their not always impotent rage when they destroy public property. But they have a perfect right to display a defiant attitude whenever they are the innocent victims of rank injustice. On the other hand May day is fixed upon by the enemies of law and order to wave the red flag in the face of those who insist that law and order shall be maintained. We all heartily rejoice that May day this year did not bring to the front the bad blood of the lawless as in some years.

There is nothing that more clearly points to the coming success of many of the foreign peoples that flock to our shores than their willingness to work. This is the only sure way or working out their economic salvation. With great physical strength and determination to correspond there needs to be no doubt as to their industrial unlift. The twelve hour work day holds no terrors for them. It may be that their extra hours in the field or on their new houses are an offset to their hours in the workshop. Their strong and vigorous frames seem to thrive under the long day. This is pioneer strength and energy, such as was seen in the English and Dutch settlers of the 17th century here in America. Followed by Scotch, Irish, French, Scandinavians in turn, industrial America was put on the map. The permanence of any country depends upon the capacity of its people to do its necessary work.

There are the best of reasons for believing there will never be here in the United States an organic union of church and state. The best interests of neither church nor state would be conserved by such a project. At the same time there is absolutely no justification of the divorce of religion from any of the functions of the state. Nor to any extent is this on vogue. Our courts are opened with prayer today as they have always been and nobody objects. Why should anybody object to the teaching of pure religion in any of our schools? Of course, I do not mean sectarianism, much less dogmatic theology that very few know anything about, because it belongs to the realm of the speculative. But to inculcate the spirit and teachings of Jesus into the minds and hearts of the young would in a few generations lift the world up to a new level of thought and action.

Not far from where a certain man lives, a large cherry tree has burst forth into magnificent blossom, and in the day time is full of active bees. Now who told the bees where the tree is located? Their homes may be far from sight; too far for them to be attracted by the sense of smell. Is it instinct, intuition, or scientific knowledge? For lack of sufficient information on our part we evade the question by calling it instinct. However that may be we know that some quality in the tree has found its counterpart in the life of the bee, and they work together in a way that reveals their mutual adaptability. And it certainly is work and not play. The bee seems to realize that its season for work is short and hence its marvelous activity. Are we the supposedly superior mortals as keenly alive to the fact that "the night cometh when no man can work" as the bee is to the limits of his season?

Many of you people, or as it may more properly be put, many of us people, who have not gone to Miami or Palm Beach during the winter and spring for health or pleasure, but have been faithful to our job whatever the temperature may have been, must at this season of the year begin to face an important question: Are we going to let our work make a treadmill out of life, or are we going to regulate our work? Of course we are morally bound to be faithful to our occupation; but on the other hand let us never forget that our occupation is under some obligation to us! It is quite possible for our occupation to hold the whip lash over us and say, "thou shalt," or "thou shalt not!" When such tyranny begins it is about time that the man himself shows that he can play the same role. Now then it is time that you tired men skip off for awhile to the Maine Woods and come back in a week with a long string of trout so you can buy them for a reasonable sum.

To have a clear objective in mind as something to be reached by effort and perseverance is the foundation of all real success in life. Leland Standford had before him a very clear object and he saw it clearly. More than that he had the push and energy to carry that project. It was the building of the Union Pacific railroad; a gigantic undertaking but he met it with gigantic energy. He saw what he wanted to do and he did it. Elias Loomis was once a country boy up in Windham county. He had even then a wonderful mathematical mind. His ideal was to be a teacher of the higher mathematics in some college. He went to college with that end in view and as professor of mathematics and astronomy in Yale and as the author of a series of text books his

OLD THETIS GOING BACK TO ARCTIC

The Thetis, originally a "Dundee whaler" and veteran Arctic cruiser, has been chartered by Donald B. MacMillan as the second ship of his arctic expedition this summer. The explorer's own schooner, the Bowdoin, will transport scientists representing the National Geographic society and the Thetis will carry the navy planes and personnel.

The Thetis was the flagship of a little fleet sent by the government in 1884 to rescue the Greely arctic expedition and later served as a gunboat and revenue cutter in Alaska whaling waters.

Built in Dundee, Scotland, in 1883, for service as a steam whaler, the Thetis was purchased the following year by the United States as one of a fleet of vessels to search for the party of Lieutenant H. W. Greely in the arctic regions. The Greely detail was established at Lady Franklin bay, a polar station, one of the 13 suggested by Lieutenant Weyprechet, of Austria, who discovered Frans Josef land.

The detail of Lieutenant Greely consisted of three officers of the army, one acting assistant surgeon and 18 enlisted men of the army. Stores for 27 months were put on board the Proteus for the party. The Proteus steamed from St. John's, N. F., July 7, 1884.

The Greely Expedition

Caches of provisions for use in retreat were made at Carl Ritter bay. The expedition landed at Discovery bay and there established quarters for the winter. The Proteus left on Aug. 26. The first winter passed off without any untoward event. It was said that the members of the expedition felt the cold during the first winter of their stay more than at any other time. In May, 1882, Lieutenant Lockwood reached the highest latitude ever attained up to that time, reaching 83 degrees 25 minutes north. This was about 500 miles directly north of Lady Franklin bay, but to get there he traveled more than 1000 miles, the open water and broken packs frequently causing him to retrace his steps 50 miles.

In 1882 Lockwood made a second voyage north from Lady Franklin bay, but upon the second trip he was stopped near Cape Bryant, 120 miles from Lady Franklin bay, by an open channel extending west to the coast of Grinnell land.

Two years had now passed and the members of the expedition counted on making their retreat and journey homeward in the summer of 1883. Day after day the men looked over Lady Franklin bay, expecting the ice to open. At last on Aug. 19 the ice gave sign of opening, and the journey southward was commenced by steam launch. It was on this return journey that the party suffered frightfully through storm conditions. The launch had to be abandoned. Eventually the party reached Baird's Inlet. This was on Sept. 28 and there winter quarters were built. Scouts were sent to Cape Isabelle and Cape Sabine. The report of the scouts sent a thrill of horror to every heart. Only 1300 rations were found left for them. From records found it was learned that the relief ship, the Proteus, had been lost. The Proteus sank near Cape Sabine, carrying down with her the stores for the relief fleet. The Proteus was to have taken the Greely party out of the arctic. She was commanded by Lieutenant E. W. Garlington. That officer with crew effected their return while the ice still made it possible.

Thetis to the Rescue

On Oct. 15 the Greely party moved to Cape Sabine. In April the rations issued dwindled to four ounces of meat and six ounces of bread. Man after man died, and all hope fled when on a stormy day in June, 1884, the whistle of the Thetis, Commander Schley's flagship, battering her way through the ice, roused the survivors from the lethargy of approaching death. One man Collins, was fairly snatched back to life. In another hour he would have died. Greely, Long, Brainard, Biederbuck, Collins, Fredericks and Jellison lived after undergoing an amputation of his feet. Six men only of the original party reached the United States.

The fitting of the Greely relief fleet was ordered in February, 1884, and Commander (afterward rear admiral) W. S. Schley was assigned to the command. Congress, on being apprised of the loss of the Proteus and of the fact that Lieutenant Greely and his men were left destitute in the north, authorized the purchase of two steam whalers to be used in the work of rescue. The two ships purchased were the Thetis and the Bear, both Dundee-built craft. A third vessel, the Alert, was contributed by the British government. All three ships were brought to the New York Navy Yard, and the spring of 1884 saw preparations made to expedite the leaving of the craft. The Bear arrived in New York, Feb. 15, the Thetis on March 23 and the Alert on April 22. The vessels, as fast as they reported, were inspected and strengthened by fitting extra beams between those of the lower deck; introducing truss beams from bilge to middle of lower deck beams, placing iron straps over stern and securing same with through bolts to forward deadwood; constructing water-tight bulkheads forward and aft, and filling in space between and garboard strakes with sponsons against the pressure of the ice forced literally under their bottoms. The ships were docked, caulked and in general were put in splendid shape for the battle with the ice. Little work was required on the Alert, for that vessel had been strengthened in England.

Bear Goes Too

The complement of the Thetis, officers and men, was 35; the Bear, 35, and the Alert, 40. On reaching Greenland an addition was made by each vessel of 35 dogs and a dog driver. Supplies were carried sufficient to last three years.

On April 24 the Bear sailed for St. John's Newfoundland.

On May 21 the Bear was able to push on into the formidable ice packs south of Hare island, in the Waigat straits. The ship was delayed there for a day or two, but continued the struggle in densely packed ice. Holding in with the land, and following all leads, the Bear worked northward. On May 28 the Bear reached Upernavik. The following morning the Thetis arrived at Upernavik and fell in with the Bear. From that time on the Bear remained in company with the Thetis.

Fire Parting Salutes

The Thetis sailed from New York May 1. The popular demonstrations which accompanied the sailing of the Bear were repeated in the case of the Thetis. Governor's island and Fort Hamilton fired parting salutes and the secretary of the navy accompanied the Thetis to the lower bay. The Thetis pushed her way after the Bear, stopping only long enough in St. John's to take on dogs.

"The Thetis and Bear sailed on May 29 for the north again, but were held up until June 1 at Kingitok island, when again the two ships pushed on. Both ships found it difficult to get by Tasuusak and did not do so until June 3. On the way up the Bear and the Thetis were continually ramming the ice. By June 7 the relief ship had reached up the Duck Islands in Midville Bay. For four anxious days the ships remained here awaiting openings in the ice. On June 10 there was sufficient rig in the ice to permit of again advancing, and then came four days of ramming and working of leads. Torpedoes were tried repeatedly, but the effect was only local. By June 15 an advance was made to a position 53 miles southeast of Cape Yorke. By June 18 Cape Yorke was reached, and on June 20 Saunders island. At the last place natives were met, but nothing could be learned of the Greely party. Littleton island was reached in June 21.

The Bear and the Thetis sailed from Littleton island at three p. m. on June 21 in a moderate gale and reached Payer Harbor at 7 p. m., where they moored with ice anchors of the harbor ice that had not yet broken up.

Examine Cairn

Lieutenant E. H. Taunt with three seamen were sent to examine the cairn on Brevoort Island, while other parties were sent to examine caches in other directions. About eight p. m. cheers were heard and a few minutes later Seaman Yewell came running to the position of the Thetis with the information that Lieutenant Greely and his party were at Cape Sabine. Lieutenant Taunt had sent in records discovered in the cairn on Brevoort island which were found to refer to dates eight and nine months previous to the arrival of the relief fleet. It seems that after the Greely party went into camp in the fall of 1883, Sergeant Rice was sent to Brevoort island to the southward of Cape Sabine to post records in the cairn there, the object being that when a ship approached from the southward the cairn because of its exposed position would be discovered and it might be expected that no ship would pass a cairn without examining the same for any papers. In antartic it has been a practice to post records in cairns regarding any expeditionary force.

Record of Greely

In one of the records left at Brevoort island Lieutenant Greely, writing under date of Sept. 30, 1883, declared that his party was about to winter under desperate circumstances, in imminent danger of starvation.

No sooner had Commander Schley read that Greely records than three long blasts were ordered sounded by the Thetis, the signal of general recall. The steam cutter of the Bear, which was alongside the Thetis, was ordered to proceed at once to Wreck Camp cache, under Lieutenant Cobrell. At half-past nine that night the Bear reached the camp, and the Thetis followed about 15 minutes later. It must be remembered that at this season of the year daylight extended far into the hours of night. The water being deep about the coast, the Bear was run close in. As the steam cutter neared the beach, those in her discovered Sergeant Long standing in the rocks above the beach. Running into the shore and taking him into the cutter they learned from him the location of the camp and the number alive. A dash was made ashore to the camp, and when reached it was seen that the tent covering the party had blown down on them. Lieutenant Colevill and Joe Masters, Ash and Norman partially raised it, and at once gave the survivors some small bits of bread and pemmican. Some time after midnight the surgeon reported the survivors so far strengthened by stimulant and food that removal to the ships was begun.

Difficult Boat Work

The gale which had blown all day, increased to hurricane force during the night, and work with the boats was carried on with the utmost difficulty. Lieutenant Greely, when found, was the weakest, except Connell, but mentally he was the strongest. Private Connell was almost dead, but he was pulled through. Sergeant Ellison died. Long was the strongest physically, but even he was giving up the struggle, and his strength was so much impaired when he heard the joyful recall signal whistle of the Thetis that enough only was left to enable him to stagger out to the rocks overlooking Kane Sea, to discover if that signal proceeded from the ships in sight. His first visit was a bitter disappointment, as he saw nothing. A second visit paid some minutes later, brought him within fifty yards of the Bear's cutter, and in view of the relief ships coming around Cape Sabine.

The work of recovering the dead, the records and instruments of the camp and making careful records was prosecuted regularly, and by five o'clock, June 28, the Thetis and the Bear were ready to sail southward. The difficulties in proceeding south through the ice were almost as great as in the northward voyage. St. Johns, N. F., was reached in due course and from there the fleet was directed to Portsmouth, N. H., where it was reviewed by the secretary of the navy. On Aug. 4, 1884, there was a naval parade on shore.

In this cruise the Thetis and the Bear covered about seven thousand miles each.

From 1884 to 1889 the Thetis was a gunboat of the navy, used in the latter part of that period in Alaskan waters for the protection of the whaling industry. In 1889 it cruised along the northern coast of Alaska to the mouth of the Mackenzie river, returning to the Pacific by way of the recently discovered Wrangel island. By an act of congress of 1889 the Thetis was transferred from the navy to the revenue-cutter service.

The coast guard sold the Thetis to a private corporation in 1916 and it has been operating since as a Newfoundland sealing steamer.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Our Calling.

There are many individual Christians and many Christian churches that act as though the activities to which Christ calls them were quite different from those in which He engaged. For instance, it is often thought that the chief duty of a Christian is to perfect himself in grace, and a knowledge of Christ. People go to church, attend prayer meeting, read their Bibles. They think or appear to think, that is all Christ requires of them. They are saved. What more is necessary?

A very great deal more is necessary. That is a christianity which lacks the backbone of christianity, namely, the purpose to save the world—to convert it from sin to righteousness. Christ does not call us to make it our whole aim in life to perfect ourselves in grace and in the knowledge of His teaching. He says that we are called in the first place to do God's will, "If any man will do His will he shall know of the doctrine." The doctrine is to be read by a light that only an attempt to perform duty laid may say that the Christian church today would understand the doctrine of the Bible more thoroughly, would make fewer mistakes in its interpretation of doctrines if it was more earnestly engaged in doing the work Christ gave it to do. He called and still calls. We are called upon to lend our aid in saving the world. If individual Christians would study the Bible and find out what God would have them do it, instead of striving to establish theories, systems of doctrines, the truth would open up before them with a power and beauty and clearness which they have never seen before.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mother's Day

Mr. Editor: It is well that we should set apart a day for a fuller appreciation of Our Mother. Its chief object is to brighten their lives, to make them more honored, loved and protected by their children. It is to remind sons and daughters, especially busy, successful men and women, of the unselfish devotion of their mothers, and possibly of their own selfish neglect of their parents. It is to ask men, women and children to make their mothers feel this May day, that in her children's hearts she is "Queen of the May."

The white carnation, the memory flower, is an emblem of the purity and fragrance in the lives of holy motherhood. Its whiteness stands for purity; its form, for beauty; its fragrance, for love; its wide field of growth, for charity and its lasting quality, faithfulness.

Jesus, home, and mother are words that touch the heart of the world deeper than any others. If it is an angel mother she makes heaven more inviting and it seems very near and dear, very home-like, because she is there ready with her warm welcome, if still in the earthly home, she is the guide and unchangeable friend, moving about in sweet ministries and engaged in loving service.

What gift of God's goodness can one value more than a wise true, godly mother. She may be by the fireside, with silver locks, brushed back from her dimming eyes—but how her love goes out that her children may be true and pure.

There is an old and beautiful legend running thus: "An angel came down to earth and looked about for something to carry back to heaven. There were three things that attracted his attention, a bouquet of fragrant flowers, the smile of a little babe, and a mother's love. These three the angel carried away, but when he reached the the pearly gates, the flowers had withered, the baby's smile had vanished, and only mother's love remained the same." "A mother's love is the only thing on earth pure enough for heaven," the angel exclaimed.

So let the day teach one that the divinest thing in this world is a mother's love. It never falters and it only comes once in a life. It is unique and there is no other like it.

It is mother who watches our health, and who is careful about our food. It is mother who gives wise counsel touched with her own hearts love. It is mother who, night after night, lies awake until she knows you are in and asleep. It is she who suffers most when you go wrong or get into trouble. It is she who plans your holidays and surrounds you with friends. It is mother, who suffers for you, prays for you, loves you, sacrifices for you, believes in you, lives her life for you as no other person ever does or ever will. When she is gone no one takes her place.

Her love outlasts all other human love.

Her faith endures the longest, hardest test.

Her grace and patience through a lifetime prove that she's a friend, the noblest and the best.

Mrs. F. L. Varney.

Norwich, Ct. May 7, 1925.

Stories That Recall Others

When Mary Spilled the Beans.

The A's had guests for dinner. When they were nearly ready for the last course, Mrs. A was forced to leave the table to attend the crying baby. Mary, age four, followed hem mother from the room. Several minutes later she cautiously pushed open the dining room door and peered in. Then just as cautiously closing the door she called to her 'mother' in a high, pitched, childish voice: "No, mother, they're not through yet. They've just taken another roll."

Jimmy Skunk Gets an Unexpected Meal

It matters not how great the ill,
It seems somebody's needs to fill.
—Jimmy Skunk.

The Red Terror, which men call fire, did not race through the Green Forest unchecked for long. You see, it was discovered by Farmer Brown's boy not long after it had been started by the careless throwing of a burning cigarette from an automobile into the dry leaves beside the road. Farmer Brown's Boy ran to the telephone and called all the neighbors to come at once to help fight the Red Terror. Far, far into the night they fought it, and at last they conquered it.

Late in the afternoon of the second day after the Red Terror Jimmy Skunk went over to see what the Red Terror had done. When he came to the old road that wound through the Green Forest he was filled with a great sadness. On one side of the road all was green, the beautiful green of living trees and plants and ferns. Just across the road all was black. There was no living thing. Bare of leaves and black stood the trees, little and big, and the bushes. For a long time Jimmy stood looking at it mournfully and thinking how he had seen the very start of all this. Knowing no better he thought that the Red Terror had purposely been let loose.

Bare of leaves and black stood the trees

"That two-legged creature threw the Red Terror out of that thing in which he was riding," muttered Jimmy, meaning the man in the automobile who had tossed out the burning cigarette. "It must be he wanted to destroy the Green Forest and all who live in it. How terrible some of these two legged creatures are! None of the people of the Green Forest or the Green Meadows would even dream of doing such a terrible thing."

Presently Jimmy crossed the road and rather gingerly began looking about to see what the Red Terror had left. It seemed to him that nothing worth while was left. The Red Terror had eaten all plants, even down to the roots. He couldn't find one living thing, and as he looked at the ashes beneath his feet he wondered what Old Mother Nature would do about it; how she possibly could ever make that black waste look green again. It would take her a long time, a long, long time. He was sure of that.

Just why he kept on he couldn't have said. But keep on he did for a short distance, all the time talking to himself. "Dreadful! Oh, dreadful!" he exclaimed as he looked up the black trunk of a tall pine tree. "That tree started to grow in the days of my great-great-great-great grandfather and now look at it! In just a few minutes the Red Terror had killed it, and there it stands, black and dreadful to look at, and perhaps there never will be another tree to take its place. Hello! What's this?"

Jimmy was staring down at ten cracked and broken eggs at the foot of the black old stump. He knew at once whose eggs they were. He knew that the nest of Mrs. Grouse had been there and that these were her eggs. He wondered if the Red Terror had caught Mrs. Grouse. "I hope not," said he, and smiled at the eggs.

Now, the fire had, of course, cooked or partly cooked those eggs. Jimmy reached out a black hand and pulled one to him. The shell was cracked. You may be sure it didn't take him long to find out that that egg was good to eat. He smacked his lips as the last of it disappeared and reached for another.

"Even the Red Terror has some good in it," muttered Jimmy Skunk.

But Mrs. Grouse wouldn't have agreed with Jimmy. I am sure.

He was born in Ukarani, Russia, on March 15, 1851 and came to this country in 1885 and settled in the town of Montville, where he lived until 1909. During the last years of his life he lived in retirement at Norwich, making his home with his oldest son, Joseph Polsky of 4 Julian street.

In his active life he was engaged in farming and various other business activities. He was among the first three Jewish families who settled in the rural sections of New London county. For about 25 years he was the representative of the Jewish Agricultural Aid Society of Eastern Connecticut and aided in the settlement of many early Jewish settlers on farms in New London and Windham counties.

Fifty-six years ago he was married to Ida Leah Berkowitz, who survives him with one daughter, Dora Polsky Adnopoz of Brooklyn, N. Y., and three sons, Joseph and Danielson of Norwich and Isadore of New Haven. There are also several grandchildren.

Mr. Polsky possessed a keen mind. He was a dutiful husband and father and a faithful friend. His dealings were always fair and his considerations just. He leaves a host of friends who mourn the loss of one who was always ready to lend a hand in help and charity.

REPUBLICANS NAME TICKET FOR CITY ELECTION IN JUNE

Alfred G. Lillibridge and F. Russell Smith were nominated for aldermen on the republican city ticket at the party caucus held Friday evening at the town hall. The caucus which had an attendance of about 100, including half a dozen women, was called to order at 8 o'clock, D. S. T., by Judge Arthur F. Libby, chairman of the republican town committee. On motion of Charles A. Hagberg, Henry H. Pettis was chosen chairman of the caucus. I thank you for the election as chairman, said Mr. Pettis, as he took the chair, and to show my appreciation, I am not going to make any speech whatsoever. He then called for the selection of a clerk and on motion of Judge Nelson J. Ayling, John R. Bowman was chosen clerk.

After the call for the caucus had been read by the clerk the chairman called for nominations for two aldermen, four counlmen, two city sheriffs and a member of the board of water commissioners. All nominations were unanimous, there being no contests. The nominations were quickly put through as follows:

For aldermen—Alfred G. Lillibridge, nominated by E. W. Perkins; F. Russell Smith, nominated by Webster D. Copp.

For councilmen—Maurice Looby, nominated by Arthur G. Crowell; Dr. Clarence G. Thompson, nominated by Mr. Parker; Harold C. Dahl, nominated by Edward Crooks; Lee Clegg, nominated by Howard Spalding.

For city treasurer, Stephen H. Reeves, nominated by Adelard Morin.

For city clerk, Weston C. Pullen, nominated by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts.

As Mr. Pullen's nomination was seconded, G. Warren Davis, asked if he might remark on the nomination. Mr. Pettis asked Mr. Davis if he had another nomination to make and Mr. Davis answered that he had no nomination to offer. He wanted to speak on the nomination.

Mr. Pettis said that if he heard no objection Mr. Davis could remark on the nomination. As there was no objection voiced Mr. Davis was allowed to proceed.

Mr. Davis called attention to the fact that a city meeting the latter part of January had instructed the mayor and common council to desist from any further entertainment of bids and proposals for the sale of the city's gas and electric plant and that less than two months from that time the mayor and City Clerk Pullen were at a hearing in Hartford in regard to the sale of the city gas and electric plant. Mr. Davis said he didn't question Mr. Pullen's ability as city clerk but he thought he ought to be put on probation. The only objection he had against the nomination was the fact that Mr. [illegible] had attended the Hartford meeting.

Alderman Edward Crooks, one of those present at the caucus, came to the support of City Clerk Pullen, stating that Mr. Pullen was present at the conference in Hartford under instructions from the court of common council.

Chairman Pettis said he was aware of that fact and called for the vote on the nomination. With the exception of one lone "no" from Dr. Davis the nomination was unanimous.

Harold T. Robinson was nominated for the office of city tax collector by E. W. Perkins. The city sheriffs were nominated as follows:

Charles H. Raynes, nominated by William S. Murray; B. Roath Allen, nominated by John H. Barnes. On motion of Stephen H. Reeves, John A. Mitchell was nominated for the board of water commissioners.

Judge Ayling moved that the town committee be empowered to fill any vacancies that may occur on the ticket after which the caucus adjourned, having been in session about 20 minutes.

INSTANTLY KILLED BY KICK FROM HORSE

Mr. Holden entered the barn anod went to the stall occupied by the horse and as he did so the horse kicked at him, the hoofs striking him over the left temple, fracturing his skull and causing instant death. The horse had been known to kick at times but was not considered dangerous.

Mr. Holden's sister, hearing a commotion in the barn ran out from the house and saw her brother beneath the horse. She pulled him away from the stall but found that he had died.

Dr. Paul F. Gadle was called and he immediately called Dr. N. B. Lewis, medical examiner for the Town of Preston. Coroner J. J. Desmond was also called and an investigation was made.

YOUNG WOMAN DIES FROM INJURIES WHEN STRUCK BY TROLLEY CAR

At Hilltop in Montville on the Norwich-New London trolley line of the Connecticut company, Mrs. Rose Legere, 18, wife of Edward Legere of Uncasville, was struck by a trolley car early Friday evening and died in the ambulance on the way to the Backus hospital in this city.

The car was the northbound trip due in Franklin square at 7:45, was running about 25 minutes late and was in charge of motorman Fred Dewitt. According to the statement alleged to have been made by the motorman, the woman crossed the track once ahead of the car, then stepped back across the track again, gathered her coat about her and seemed to jump at the front end of the car. The front dashboard of the trolley car, where the sign lights are, struck her and hurled her off into the roadway.

Dr. John J. Donohue of Uncasville Callahan from this city, was the first physician to reach her. He found her without a pulse and suffering from severe internal injuries. He succeeded in restoring her pulse before she was put in the ambulance which had been summoned from the Backus hospital, but she died before the hospital was reached.

Mrs. Legere's home is not far from the place where she was hit. Her husband quickly learned of the accident, reaching the spot while the doctor was there and later coming to the Backus hospital where he learned of her death.

Besides her husband Mrs. Legere is survived by a son about a year old. She was of a bright and cheerful disposition and was in her usual happy mood Friday afternoon about 6 o'clock when Rev. James A. O'Meara called at her [illegible]

The secretary's report was read by Theodore Montgomery.

F. A. Stanley, State Boys Work Secretary, New Haven, was the speaker of the evening and he gave the boys one of the finest talks that they have listened to this year. Mr. Stanley reminded the members that they were living in the most important years now. They have no control over the future, nor over the past, but that they could control pretty much the present. What a boy hopes to be, he is fast becoming today.

A boy must stick close to the straight highway of life and to guard against the temptations by the side of the road. The meeting adjourned with the Star Spangled Banner.

ACADEMY WILL CLASH WITH PLAINFIELD TEAM AT CAMPUS THIS AFTERNOON

Their baseball costumes adorned with wreaths of victory, the Academy baseball team will stage a grand revue at the Academy campus this afternoon by having as the main attraction, the Plainfield High players to furnish a bit of entertainment by way of a ball game for the benefit of the diamond fans. From the rising of the curtain at 3 o'clock, one of the greatest struggles on earth for honors will take place. Both teams are determined to take the leading part, so that the audience will not need to have any other interest or amusement than to see the enthralling work of the two rival companies.

The Red and White intend to add this game to their increasing lists of successes and, if this afternoon is to be a replica of their work last Wednesday at New London, the Plainfield boys are bound to return to their native village up state with bowed heads and chagrin. Although this is not a league contest, the locals will use it for a preparatory for their return battle with LaSalle at Providence, next week.

On the other hand, Plainfield has the makings of a good team and may afford the local aggregation tough opposition.

"Lefty" Jarvis, the amazing southpaw, will take the mound for the Academy. The portsider will try to send the upstate lads back to the benches via the strikeout route, the way by which this lad has won most of his glory. The rest of the lineup will be practically the same with Mish, c; Burke, 1b; Capt. McGowan, 2b; Carron, 2b; Cimikoski, ss; Jack Henricks lf; Greene, cf; Busch or Brewer, rf.

What Plainfield Says

With their past decisive victories over the Norwich boys for three years as an incentive and backed by a large crowd of rooters, the veteran Plainfield team is sure to give their Academy opponents all they are looking for in the line of baseball.

"Big Bill" Baker, Plainfield's powerful right-hander, who recently turned back the fast Bryant-Stratton Business college, of Providence, in a ten-inning battle, 8-7, will probably receive the call for the mound duty. Alard, who needs no introduction in high school circles, will do the backstop work. The remainder of the personnel of the team will be made up of such veterans as Capt. "Lefty" Boyle, 1b; "Jackie" Mercier, 2b; Stevens, 3b; "Pop" French, ss; The outfield will be taken care of by "Jim" Wallace who will be remembered for his hitting last year, "Art" Gallup who also made an impression with the Norwich fans and George Brown.

Crawley pitched the entire distance for Springfield, allowing only 4 scattered hits and keeping them in check at all times. The Herrups, Hartford's leading team, fresh from an overwhelming victory over the Moosup team will cross bats with the Riverview club this afternoon at the State Hospital. They play a fast game and are always dangerous with the bat. Mgr. Barnard will send either Shovac or Fisher against the local club today with Jardine on the receiving end.

The Hospital will use West in the box with Joe Belair on the receiving end. The infield will present a changed appearance for this game as Joe Hamill, regular second sacker is laid up with a sprained ankle and Jack Sank has left to report to the Frederick, Md., team of the Blue Ridge league. Manager Donovan has secured Nap Liberty to take care of the second base territory and Chip Dugas, the grand old man of local baseball, will be at third. Mills will be at first and Normandin at short in the outfield will be duffy, Noel and White. The game is called at 2:45 (D. S. T.)

CORBIN RED SOX WILL OPPOSE MOOSUP SUNDAY

The Corbin Red Sox, under the leadership of Hal Corbin, will be the opponents of the Moosup team at the Carpet Grounds in Moosup on Sunday afternoon. Henry Loughran will either pitch Chick Davis or Tony West against the New Britain club with Bill Liberty on the receiving end. Mgr. # BRAVES CELEBRATE GOLDEN JUBILEE DAY WITH VICTORY OVER CHICAGO

Boston, May 8—The Boston Braves defeated Chicago 5 to 2 here today in the golden jubilee game of the National league, celebrating 50 years of baseball history. Prominent citizens—state, city, military and naval officials, high baseball dignitaries and about 50 gray haired 'old-timers' some of whom played in the first game of organized baseball half a century ago, saw the contest.

The Braves got to Alexander early and hit him hard for six innings. Genewich pitched well for the Boston club and held the Cubs in check while his team mates ran up a winning score.

When the jubilee pennant ran up the flagpole on the field today, the National league officially observed the completion of half a century of history. The competing clubs, Chicago and Boston, charter members of the original league, formed in 1876, are the only clubs which can boast an unbroken history in the organization. All season the jubilee pennant will fly from the Braves' flagpole below the stars and stripes. Later, other clubs will also celebrate the jubilee.

For the old times it was a day of reminiscence.

Grayed and stooped by the passing years, they came to the game despite the chill wind and the clouds that alternated with the sunshine. Included in the group were George Wright, who played shortstop for Boston on April 22, 1876, against Philadelphia, in the first game of organized baseball history, and Jack Manning, his fellow fielder and team mate in the same game. Also present was William McClean who umpired that game—and W. H. Conant, 92 years old, who for 40 years, was one of the owners of the Braves.

Bands and military organizations were there. Other personages present were President John A. Heydler of the National league, Commissioner K. M. Landis, Governor Alvan T. Fuller, Mayor James M. Curley and prominent [illegible] officers.

AN AGAINST NURMI IS TEMPORARILY LIFTED

New York, May 8.—(By The A. P.)—The ban on the competitive activities of Paavo Nurmi was temporarily lifted today by the Amateur Athletic Union and the Finnish runner was granted permission to race in two Massachusetts meets, at Fitchburg tomorrow and at Worcester Monday.

Announcement of the action of the A. U. followed a hearing given Nurmi, Willie Ritola and the manager of the two runners, Hugo Quist, and was coupled with a statement that Frederick W. Rubien, chairman of the national registration committee, would take public a full report of his finding tomorrow.

Although the officials declined to talk quist asserted that the trio had cleared of the charges of demanding exorbitant expense money to appear at the recent Drake relays.

Rubien questioned Quist and Ritola at greater length than he did Nurmi on the complaint of the Drake athletic director, Kenneth L. Wilson, that $1,- had been asked for the two runners to show their fleetness of foot in the Drake meet. Quist reiterated that there was no foundation to the charge.

BULKELEY AND ACADEMY IN TRACK MEET ON TUESDAY

New London, May 8—A track meet between Bulkeley and Norwich Free Academy was arranged for Tuesday, May 12, to take place at the Academy grounds. Negotiations were begun this morning for the dual meet to take place, and in a short space of time final arrangements were made and the date of the meet agreed upon. It is possible that the Red and White will reciprocate by coming to New London some time next month, the exact date undetermined as yet.

The participation of the two schools in a dual meet is the first attempt made for several years to bring Bulkeley and the Academy together in track. Coach Frank S. Hamden has been doing some work with several of the long distance runners at Morgan Park in preparation for the Yale Interscholastics and other dual meets which Bulkeley has to fulfill on her schedule. There is much satisfaction in the announcement that Bulkeley has arranged a dual meet with the Academy and it is hoped that the rivalry will be maintained in future years in this sport as well as in the two major sports at each school namely football and baseball.

The Winding Road

Oh I have seen a winding road
That climbs against a hill
And I have followed it awhile
Until the whip-poor-will
Has held me, where the sumac flares
In spellbound reverie,
And evening clouds and ripened leaves
Have listened there with me.

And I have come to far-off aisles
Of beech and elm and oak,
And shared in mighty whisperings,
Beneath their midnight cloak;
And I have crossed, along the road,
A little silver stream,
And it has lent its ripple bells
To me, that I might dream.

And I have wandered on again,
Far down the winding road,
Until it edged the sloping fields
Of grain, that men have mowed—
And there again all-silently,
The stems of golden corn
Have stood with me as partners in
The glory of a morn.

And—yes—beside the winding road,
I've watched the birth of life,
Or shuddered as a wild wind breathed
Of hate and death and strife—
But never have I walked alone!
There always seemed to be,
Out yonder on the winding road,
Something of God's—with me!

The Little Cat Angel

The ghost of a little white kitten
Crying mournfully, early and late,
Distracted St. Peter, the watchman,
As he guarded the heavenly gate.
"Say, what do you mean" said his saintship,
"Coming here and behaving like that?"
"I want to see Nellie, my missus,"
Sobbed the wee little ghost of a cat.
"I know she's not happy without me,
Won't you open and let me in?"
"Begone," gasped the horrified watchman,
"Why the very idea is a sin;
I open the gate to good angels,
Not to stray little creatures like you."
"All right," mewed the little white kitten,
"Though a cat, I'm a good angel, too."
Amazed at so bold an assertion,
But aware he must make no mistake,
In silence, St. Peter long pondered,
For his name and repute were at stake,
Then placing the cat in his bosom
With a "Whist now, and say all your prayers,
He opened the heavenly portals
And ascended the bright golden stairs.
A little girl angel came flying,
"That's my kitty, St. Peter" she cried,
And seeing the joy of their meeting,
Peter let the cat angel abide.

This tale is the tale of a kitten
Dwelling now with the blessed above,
It vanquished grim Death and High Heaven
For the name of the kitten was Love.

Pull Together

We are helped by helping others;
If we give, we always get;
Seeing others as our brothers
Is life's safest, surest bet!
If we give what folks are needing,
It will pay us in the end,
And we just can't help succeeding
In the game of life, my friend.

Cheerfulness is always catching—
Certain cure for ev'ry rile;
Happiness is always hatching
In the sunshine of a smile!
Banish gloom, by being cheerful;
Blaze the trail, and set the pace!
And you'll see expressions dreadful
Swiftly fade from ev'ry face!

Life gives back just what we give it;
Give it smiles—and smiles we get;
If we learn this rule, and live it,
We will never know regret;
Give a cheerful word—we'll reap it;
It will come back multiplied,
And will linger—we can keep it
In our "treasure chest," inside.

Get Together! Pull Together!
Is the spirit that will win!
If the gales of life we'll weather.
We must buck 'em, with a grin!
Help yourself by helping others;
Grab an oar, and join the crew!
Pull together with your brothers,
And they'll win the race—for you!

Mothers

The gray-haired mother whose successful sons and happy daughters bring flowers and love—

The young girl-wife, with her first baby in her arms

The mother of seven struggling against poverty and fear and want, but keeping the six patched and mended and in school, and the baby clean.

The mother in the shack on the prairie, in the homestead on the range, in the mountains far from church or neighbors, who becomes church and neighbors and civilization to her children.

The average mother of the average family amount of luhs and worries over Johnny's measles and Mary's beaus—

Mothers!

May Providence strengthen them to go on with high hearts for another year—when we will again hear loving gifts of white carnations or if far from them send our grateful telegram.

Mothers! God bless them.

May 20—Club No. 4 meets in Girls Club Central Village.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

ARIES: Cards sent as requested.

SOME GOOD RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: While you are housecleaning you will want to use some easily gotten dishes. These will be found good:

Ham Omelette: Beat the whites and yolks of four eggs separately. To the yolks add two teaspoons butter, a pinch salt and one cup of boiled ham chopped. Make a smooth paste [illegible] teaspoon of flour and [illegible] milk and gradually [illegible] of three-fourths [illegible] well beaten whites [illegible] mix the two mixtures into a hot well greased [illegible] bake in the oven for 15 minutes.

Ham and Tomatoes: One and half cup tomatoes one slice onion, 4 cloves, half teaspoon salt, half cup chopped cooked ham, 3 beaten eggs, quarter teaspoon salt. Cook the tomatoes, onion and cloves 15 minutes and rub through a sieve, add ham, eggs and seasoning and cook three or four minutes stirring all the time. Serve on toast or crackers.

Virginia Ham: One slice ham mixed mustard, sugar, milk, one teaspoon beef extract, one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour. Spread the slice of ham with the mixed mustard and sprinkle with sugar, put in baking dish cover with cold milk, cook about 30 minutes. Melt butter dissolve the beef extract in it add one tablespoon of flour and make a gravy with the milk left in pan after ham is cooked. Serve with baked potatoes.

I hope Blackeyed Susie will be satisfied and read this right. I am writing with large letters for that purpose.

I want to thank the editor for the pin received.

Savilla: You and I have a birthday anniversary on the same day, June 7.

Eca: Hope you have a fine day for your birthday party June 6.

PAULA.

A TRIBUTE TO WRINKLE

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Both Marigold and I were disappointed when we read the Social Corner page of a week ago to learn that no letter was written about the sudden death of Wrinkle. She had so many friends and as I had only met her once, I left the matter to those who knew her better personally. As they neglected it I shall see that it is done. She had a very generous disposition always ready to give up her own interest in order to help somebody else. She was very active and had many interests outside her home. She attended very regular the Corner gatherings and did her share in writing letters.

She had a great many friends in the Corner who will find her going a great loss. She was a member of the W. C. T. U. Living in the same town and same neighborhood I probably have heard more of her excellent character then many of the other sisters.

If it is not too late will like to say thank you to Member of the Social Corner for pretty calendar I received.

Mary France: I hope you will be able to attend the next meeting and also come to see me.

Bob White and Necia: I am thinking of you and hope we won't have another hard experience to face. It has been awful for us all.

Best wishes.

WANTS SURE REMEDY FOR ANTS

Dear Corner Folks: I just want to ask the sister who said she always thought I lived in Plainfield but found out I lived in Mystic, how did you find it out? I have always lived in the town of Plainfield (and it's a good old place.) I have lived in the house where I now live for over 40 years. Goodness you'll all think I'm getting old. A friend said my last letter to the Corner did not sound a bit like me. I am sure I don't know why. Let me tell you sisters my hous is not dirty yet if I did clean early and the chickens are doing fine. Hope the cold winds will stop blowing. I can sit on the veranda. I can't go out much to walk on account of that blessed knee and I always liked to take walks and am hoping to be able to soon. No word from Free Air, so couldn't get to Norwich for the May meeting but thought of you all day.

Bug is cleaning house and she has been almost sick with a cold. She is president of the Woman's club and is a very busy woman. I am so confused over this daylight saving that I don't know whether I am writing this today or tomorrow or yesterdy. I don't like it. The good old suntime was good enough for me.

Oh, my, I've tried all the things the sisters told me for getting rid of big black ants and still they come thick and fast and more of them. They started to arrive Lincoln's day and have since brought all their relations. Can any one tell me of any sure remedy? I'll sign same as ever.

MA OF GREENE GABLES.

THE SPIRIT OF HELPFULNESS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As so many of the writers are asking for the Social Corner pin I will write a few lines to say I would like one of them, and thanks for it. Some one is very kind to give them. I hope the sisters will not discard the yellow ribbons with the name on them, as I for one think it very nice when we attend a meeting to see who is who without having to ask their pen name. I wish to thank all who so kindly helped to make the last meeting of Club No. 3 a success, both members and friends of the Corner.

Neighbor Eveready spoke in her letter of the willingness of each one to help at our meeting. If she lived in Lebanon I think she would find that spirit of helpfulness prevailed everywhere, among neighbors, in the church, or what ever place we meet.

We were all glad to see Eliza Jane, Neighbor Eveready and Neighbor Eveready's sister, and hope they will come again and bring other friends with them.

E. L. M., Kensey and Diamond: Thanks for the pretty Easter cards you sent me. Wish you could all plan to attend some of our Social Corner meetings.

Its fine to see so many letters each week and hope the Corner page will continued to be filled.

Stanza: Think I will try your daily dozen. I surely need to.

Hope this beautiful spring weather finds all the sisters well and happy is the wish of DORINDA.

SPONGE CAKE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: As I have not written to the Corner since the roll call thought I had better get busy and do my share. What a lot of nice letters we are having.

Hope the editor will be so kind as to send me a pin.

Lois and Honey Bee: I'll be there with bells on.

Lahleet: I am waiting. You know all good comes to those who wait. I am sending a recipe called Miss Farmer's sponge cake. Hope the sisters will try it and let me know if they have good luck.

Sponge Cake: 4 eggs, beaten separately, 1 level cup sugar, 2 teaspoons cold water, 1 1-2 level tablespoons cornstarch, 1 scant cup flour, 1 1-4 level teaspoon baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon lemon. Beat yolks of eggs until thick, add gradually the sugar and beat two minutes. Then add water. Sift together the cornstarch, flour, baking powder and salt and add to first mixture and when thoroughly mixed add whites of eggs beaten stiff and the lemon. Bake 30 to 40 minutes.

Best wishes to the Corner.

STRAWBERRY (May 14.)

INTERESTED IN SHORE LINE CLUB

Dear Sisters: If I may still call you so. I had never thought there would be any occasion to call me a slacker, but I am afraid I might be called one now and that justly. One of the sisters visited me several weeks ago and said I should write. Well, I don't see as she sets a very good example to erring ones. I am not going to call any names, but the first letter of her penname is O.

I certainly do enjoy reading the letters from the Circle weekly, and a short time ago I attended a gathering and was pleased to meet there Wurdy Bell and Apple Blossom. Presume there were others there but did not see them. I am sure they passed a pleasant day, and hope they reached home safely.

I am glad the members are to have a pin. I would like one, but there are so many more deserving than I, I shall not ask for one.

I am glad housecleaning is about over for this spring. Now for the garden! My house plants are the loveliest ever—a mass of bloom. I have always heard it said, in fact I have been told, that spotted callas never blossomed in the house. I would like to tell the sisters I have one three feet high with two large blossoms.

I am quite interested in the Shore Line club. Perhaps I could meet with you if such a one was formed. Why don't some one start something?

In reading from the pen of R. I. I too, am wondering if it stands for Rhode Island. We may be neighbors, who knows?

Now I will send a recipe for salad dressing the kind that can be made "while you wait" and is enjoyed by those who do not care for an oil dressing.

Salad Dressing: 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon mustard, same of salt, 1 cup vinegar, (not too sharp.) I can condensed milk. Beat all thoroughly with egg beater. Keep in a cool place.

DOROTHY BRADFORD.

KEROSENE FOR ANTS

Dear Social Corner: Pins! Pins! We all want a pin, and I will ask for one before they are all gone.

Even the sons and daughters of I will arise have their lodges and buttons and why not the Social Corner. The pins are neater and will look much better than ribbon of all shades of yellow.

Most of the sisters are still housecleaning—a tiresome job. If it would always stay clean! But I am thankful that I have the strength given me to do it.

When my Bulletin comes I leave everything and read all but the sporting news. You see I am not a sport. I find every thing interesting, especially the Man Who Talks; The Farmer, and the every day poetry is very good. In fact I think it the best paper published in the state of Connecticut. I can remember reading it away back in 1870 when a girl and then thought it the best.

Forget Me Not and Sun Flower: Do come to the meetings. Speak to every one and you will have a delightful time finding out who is who.

Come along Butterfly. Put on your bonnet and shawl, the 20th of May is near, only two weeks away.

Some one asked for something to kill ants. I use kerosene oil and sprinkle it on the ground under the windows also the side of the house and around the door. They soon will be gone.

Can anyone remember a song like the following? (I can remember a few words of it.)

We'll nail it to the mast boys
Yes, we'll nail it to the mast.
On land and sea our flag is free

I think it was published in the time of the Civil war. I hope I can have a pin to wear to the next meeting. Will thank the editor for his kindness.

PICES.

SPONGE CAKE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I would not dare count the days since I have written. A very true saying. Procrastination is the theif of time. I do enjoy reading the letters and know I ought to do my bit. I was saddened to hear of Beatrix' death since our last meeting. She lived near me at one time.

Hope all who have had sickness are getting better and will meet with us soon.

Where are you Betsy Trotwood, are you planning to go to camp this year?

Wurdy Belle: You certainly skip about. When I think you are there, you are somewhere else. Come back in time for the snowflake tea.

Aunty No. 1: Don't forget your promise if—.

Prudence: This is the recipe for that sponge cake you liked. It will not "hold a candle" as the expression goes, to some I have tasted on C— avenue.

Sponge Cake: 2 eggs well beaten. 1 cup sugar, 1 cup flour, pinch salt, 1 teaspoon lemon flavoring and last 1-2 cup hot milk gradually stirred in. Bake slowly.

I would very much like to have a pin and if the editor will kindly send me one I will say thanks in advance.

SNOWFLAKE.

RAISING VERBENAS

Dear Social Corner Friends: I enjoy reading the nice letters each week and am always glad to see a name I know.

Editor: I would be very much pleased to have one of the pins, and thank you.

Airy: I have not given up the hope that I can call on you sometime. As I have an invalid father who I don't leave alone much, I am home the most of the time. About once a month all winter, I have been up street to get necessary things, but go on the car and come back when that does, so am not away long.

Ino: Have thought of you much in your sorrow. Accept my sympathy.

I planted some verbena seed in a large flower pot in March. Covered the pot with glass and kept them quite wet. They came up nicely, and I have ten fine plants, transplanted in small pots, which are growing fast. I have enjoyed watching them and hope to have a nice bed of them this summer.

THE INFLUENCE OF A PICTURE

Dear Editor and Members of Social Corner: How fast the membership in Social Corner is increasing in numbers!

Irva Lynn: Welcome to the Social Corner, the greatest hide and seek club in the world. As I read Irva Lynn, a vision spread out, a broad river with boats passing up and down day and night, and attractive homes on the crest of the hill overlooking it, surrounded by trees and shrubbery. An ideal place for a Social Corner picnic. Isn't there sometimes a bridge after lyn? Have I guessed right? Any way it is a well-coined name.

Billie: You ask where you can meet me? Come into the library where my treasures are. Among the dearest are John Halifax, Laddie, Freckles, the Encyclopedia which I read from cover to cover, and many others. You say you do not know Wall Street. If you will listen I will read to you the Wall Street quotations, opening, highest, lowest, closing, bid and offered. Great have been the fluctuations during the years and many new stocks listed. It is very interesting reading. Then we will stroll along, Wall street. I have been there many times. Facing Wall street stands stately old Trinity church, a brown stone, richly ornamented edifice on Broadway. In the yard near the front fence Charlotta Temple is buried. If we have time to walk a short distance we will go in St. Paul's chapel which George Washington attended when he was president and lived in New York. The pew he occupied is just the same today as at that time. Over the pulpit is the crest of King George just as it was before the Revolutionary war. The colonial soldiers overlooked it when they took possession of New York after the enemy left or it would have been removed then. Another favorite place is the art gallery. I was among the throng of visitors that pressed eagerly forward to view the Angelus, the famous painting by Jean Maisla, in the first days it was hung in New York. Near the entrance and all along the walls were covered with large pictures painted by celebrated artists. But the people passed them by. It was the Angelus they sought at last, in the farthest end of the room, all alone was that small picture, surrounded by heavy red velvet draperies. The people stood in silence before it. The devout attitude of Jean and Marie was felt by all and it seemed as if the distant chimes of the bells would be heard. The influence of that picture was wonderful. It was something to remember a life time.

Would like to take you to other places if time and space permitted.

Mary France: Glad you are better. We will miss Sister Wrinkle. She sat between Amy and me at the table at the meeting in April.

If the editor has pins left I would be pleased to have one and will say thank you in advance.

Best wishes to all.

NEMA.

MEMORIES OF REV. AMMI ROGERS

Editor Social Corner: I was much interested in Mrs. Hiscox's account of the Jewett City Congregational church at its centennial, especially about what she had to say about Rev. Ammi Rogers.

Some years ago in looking over some old books in the attic of a house that had been inhabited for many years by one of the old families of Voluntown I came across an old book with this title page:

Memories of the
Rev. Ammi Rogers, A. M.,
A clergyman of the Episcopal church, educated at Yale college in Connecticut, ordained in Trinty church in the City of New York persecuted in the state of Connecticut on account of religion and politics for almost twenty years.
and finally
Falsely accused and imprisoned in Norwich Goal for two years on the charge of crimes said to have been committed with a young woman in the town of Griswold, in the County of New London when he was not within about one hundred miles of Her
And of which he was absolutely as innocent as the Judge who prenounced the sentence or as tither of the jury who declared him guilty, as as any other person in the world.

Composed, Compiled and written by the said
Late rector of St. Peter's church in Hebron, Tolland county and of St. James' church in Poquotonac and of St. George's church in Jewett City, in New London county in Connecticut.
"It is nothing to you, all ye that pass by? Behold and see if there be any sorrow like my sorrow which is done unto me?"
"He that hath an ear to hear let him hear," Jesus Christ.
"Quis talia fondo temperet a gacrymiis?" Virgil.
Published for Subscribers by the author, 1824

Times were not much different in 1824 than in 1925.

Thanks, Rural Aunty, for your invitation. Shall try and be present. Hope that the editor will send me a button to wear at that time.

HISTORIAN.

PLANNING FOR THE 13TH

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: First I wish to thank the editor for the yellow slip which reached me on April eighth.

Of course it was a pleasant surprise to receive the paper, and find yourself listed as a winner. I shall use the prize in buying seeds for my flower garden.

Also at this time will say thank you for the pin, which will identify us.

Thought of the Lebanon meeting last month and wished we were there.

Substitutions again, so was not at the Willimantic meeting either.

Helper: Sorry was a little late as we'd liked to have gone. Hope you had luck. Sorry do many of our members had accidents recently.

My letter has been delayed as father has been sick since April 3. Not improving. Hope to see you all at Franklin hall May 13.

Good wishes to all.

NEIGHBOR EVEREADY.

HER FAVORITE FLOWER

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Thought I would write a few lines this beautiful morning. How do the Social Corner sisters like this daylight saving time? I, for one, don't. It is all right for those people who don't have to get up and do a hard day's work.

This is how I came to take my pen name. My birthday is in July. Pond lily is the flower for the month of July and it also is my favorite flower. But when I wrote I signed Water Lily. The editor said there was one Water Lily so he gave me Pond Lily and I have never changed it.

Now I wonder if the kind editor has a pin to spare. If he has I wonder if I could have one. I will say thank you for it.

POND LILY.

ALWAYS READS LETTERS FIRST

Dear Editor and Sisters: It has been a long time since I have sent a letter to the Corner. I am very glad to see the page filled and overflowing every week. I always read the letters first for they are so friendly and helpful.

I was very much interested in the letter from Ma of Greene Gables because Mystic is my old home town where I was born. I lived there until was married and I am not very far from there now.

In closing I will say that I would like very much to have a pin.

Best wishes to all.

GRANGER.

CLUB NO. 1 TO HAVE MAY PARTY

Dear Social Corner Members: Club No. 1 will hold its May party on next Wednesday May thirteenth, at Franklin hall, Willimantic. Remember and bring your knife, fork, plate, cup and spoon; also bring a lead pencil to use after dinner, or else pay a forfeit.

Those who have not been solicited are asked to bring pies, cake, pickles or money.

Yours for a good time.

NEIGHBOR EVEREADY.

SUGGESTS REUNION OF YANTIC CORNER FRIENDS

Dear Cornerites: Thank you, Joan. I enjoy thinking and writing a little about, old times but sometimes I wonder if it does not seem like dull music to those that are not interested in Yantic and the old timers. I think that it does one good to think of the days that have passed along and sift out some of the pleasant ones and smile over them, for the memery of those old days is very pleasant to most of us. I think it would be fine if we could have a reunion of Yantic Social Corner friends some day, but this busy life keeps one on the move most of the time. As it is I for one feel very grateful to our editor for letting us get together in the Social Corner for a little chat now and then.

I notice that there are a great many who enjoy it.

Where is Uncle Charlie? Haven't heard from him for a long time.

Buffalo: Sometime, a letter later on, I will try for your number.

I remember those mentioned in your last letter.

Rev. Percy Baxter was rector at Grace church when I lived in Yantic. Mr. Dobson was choir master.

I remember the auction and the feast on Columbus day but do not seem able to pick you out yet.

J. E. T.: Congratulations. I am so glad that it was not you that was squeezed on Harland's Corner.

N. O. T.

ORIGINAL RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am sending some original recipes this week.

Banana Snow: Peel about 3 medium sized bananas, then beat them to a pulp, add a little lemon juice. Beat stiffly the whites of four eggs mix about four tablespoons of powdered sugar with the bananas and sugar and eggs, beating until the mixture is firm enough to stand by itself. Take sponge cake cut this into small rounds and heap up the banana snow on separate pieces. If you have no suitable cake on hand, put the snow in a dish or in little glass cups or tumblers. Garnish with apple jelly or currant jelly. It is very nice.

Way of using Shank: (Requested). I get five pounds of shank skin it, cut out the tender part near the bone and make Hamburg steak. Then the bones I remove and boil until most done, then add carrots, potato, rice and dumplings for a stew. The little more tender piece I pound four into it and by browning in butter, it makes a brown fricassed stew, baked in the oven. That which seems a little more tough I put down and salt for corn beef rubbing it with molasses and put in about 2 cups of salt cover with water and stand four days. You have a nice piece of corned beef. Sometimes I put the tender part through the chopper and make meat loaf, and make soup of the bones. I also make sausages and use with the stock (1 tablespoon of mustard and one onion). They are nice baked in this way. You can make about 20 delicious dinners for two dollar's worth of shank.

The skin I boil and give my hens, and the fibers I cut up fine for the cat. So you can see one can have a nice dinner without an exorbitant price, and I'm not obliged to be economical either.

I also make pilaf, with the stock and pea soup of the shank bones. Chopped shank (the tender part) panned with egg is nice for toast.

ETHELYN.

SOME GOOD RECIPES

Dear Sisters: Do you make use of your cold potato this way: Cold potato put through chopper add salt and pepper and 1 teaspoon of flour. Stir all together carefully, have hot fat, place potato in fat, brown on one side quickly then on the other. Serve with spinach and bacon.

Molasses Cookies Without Shortening: 1 cup molasses put on to heat, add 1 teaspoon of soda when hot, pour over 1-2 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon ginger. Stir all together, add 3 teaspoons vinegar, mix stiff with flour. Roll out, cut thin and bake. This recipe makes 24 cookies. No watting.

Sugar Cookies: 1 cup sugar, 1-2 cup butter, I use part butter and part lard, 4 tablespoons milk, 1 egg, 3 cups of bread flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder. Cream sugar and butter, add egg well beaten, and the flavoring. Mix well, add flour and baking powder. Let stand one hour. Roll out and cut 1-4 inch thickness. Sprinkle sugar on top.

Original way of using eggs: 5 eggs, 1 cup milk with flour made into white sauce, 1 cup bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-2 cup cheese, 3 tablespoons of flour.

Boil eggs for 20 minutes. Line a well buttered baking dish with the bread crumbs, add a layer of white sauce into which you have cut up your cheese, a layer of sliced boiled egg, then a layer of bread crumbs and so on with sauce and egg until the material has been used, having a layer of crumbs on top and dots of butter. Pour 1-2 cup of cream over all and bake until brown, serve with baked potato.

UNCLE SAM'S DAUGHTER.

FRIENDSHIP

Dear Editor and Sisters: Howdy Folks! May I just step in for a minute and chat with you all? I'll promise not to get too Sassy, either.

What a full and ever flowing page we had last week! So many nice recipes and household hints. I see where Sister Comfort speaks of Social Corner day. Will some one please tell me when it is?

Aries: Trust you got my letter. I see someone else wants to know who you are. Never mind we will get you yet.

Stanza: Though rather late in acknowledging your kindness in sending in the Daily Dozen, I am surely grateful. Dood I is! Can't say that I have gained my former fairy like figure (?) but I am persevering.

Here is a little poem I came across the other day and I am sending it in as I am sure many of the sisters who care for good poetry will like it.

My Friend

I could sail the waters of all the world
Bitter and wild and blue,
And never find a friend to love
Like the friend I've found in you
I could walk down all the roads of the world,
And knock on the doors forever,
And never find a friend like you.
Never—Never—Never.

I think friendship real friendship a beautiful thing. As one poet has said, s pure friendship inspires, cleanses, expands and strengthens the soul.

With best o' wishes to all.

SASSY.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Here are a few items I read which may help and interest some one. Pansy plants may be set out as soon as the ground is ready and will flower continuous for many weeks if the blossoms are kept picked. They will bloom in partial shade but would do better in a sunny location. In mid summer when they begin to fail, cut them back, fertilize with liquid manure and they will take on a new lease of life.

Do not attempt to move or subdivide shrubbery or bulbs, until they are done with their spring blooming. In the care of bulbs wait until the leaves have turned yellow and wilted down.

To wash pretty dellicate gingham house dresses, without fading, add a tablespoon of turpentine to a gallon of lukewarm water and soak the garment in this for a little while. Afterwards wash clean in warm suds, then rinse quickly through several waters and hang in shade to dry. It is best to wash them on a day when there is a good breeze that they may dry quickly.

If your umbrella gets torn, catch the edges with a needle and thread. Open the umbrella, put a piece of mending tissue underneath, press down with warm iron enough to cause it to adhere, but not hot enough to destroy it. Over this put a piece of court plaster. This mending is water-proof. Please accept thanks for the pin. With best wishes to all.

MAYFLOWER.

SOME THOUGHTS FOR MOTHER'S DAY

Dear Sisters: Honor thy father and they mother.

How many of us really love and honor our parents as we ought to. When we think of all the sacrifices they have made for us we really cannot do too much to show how much we love and appreciate them, the trouble is we accept all that is done for us as our just dues.

Girls especially should stop and think of all the steps mother takes in the course of one day to make home a pleasanter and happier place for them to come to when they come from school or work.

How many of us ever stop to think how we should thank God every day, yes every minute of the day that He gave us such a wonderful good mother to teach and influence us? Mother love is a wonderful thing more precious than gold and we only appreciate it more as we grow older and become mothers ourselves.

God gives us just one mother so we must love her and honor her with all our heart.

We never really forget her of course, but sometimes she is lonely and thinks we do, so let us all try to especially cheer and brighten this day, the second Sunday in May for our mothers.

This day has been set apart especially for mothers. Not just mine or yours or someone elses but all mothers in every land and corner of the earth, and it was fittingly chosen in the month of May, the month that is dedicated to the blessed mother of our Lord, the Lord of all creation.

Those of us that still have our mothers with us should be thankful that we are still able to assure her of our love and devotion.

Let us that have children teach them to honor not only their own mother but every mother and I think by so doing we will make the world a little better to live in.

These few lines I read the other day so think others will enjoy them as much as I did.

Mother of mine, there is wealth unfield
In the tender love of you.
Mother of mine, more dear than gold
Is your comfort, ever true;
May peace and joy and your pathway shine
God bless and keep you.
Mother of mine!

BLACK EYED SUSIE.

LIFE OF THE WAR GOVERNOR

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I read your letters each week with interest and wish to do my part to make the Corner worth reading. I am reading the life of Governer Jonathan Trumbull and find he was one of those good dependable men we read about in the days of 1770-1778. He seemed to rely upon a higher power to help him in his great work at that time. George Washington found in him a great helper as well as dear friend. I cannot tell much about it in this short letter. Sisters, you should read it and get the inspiration to live a noble life as he did.

Aunt Jerushy: I am glad you are having success with the chickens and trukeys. I see you asked for a pin. I would like one but fear I am not worthy to merit one, for my letters do not amount to much in the Corner.

Here is my recipe for doughnuts which are very good.

Doughnuts: One cup sugar, one cup sweet milk, two eggs, pinch salt, a little nutmeg, three even teaspoons baking powder. Mix to roll. Saleratus and cream tartar can be used instead of baking powder.

My letter is getting too long so I will close with best wishes for all.

SISTER BARBAR.

A MEMBER SINCE 1911

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: We surely have grown to be a large family since I joined, May 23 1911. We had a writer at that time by the name of Robert Duane Bromley. Do you remember him and the first poem written by him, "Where the Milk White Birches Grow? And do you remember saying, "We do not intend to print poems in the Social Corner but this one is good enough to print anywhere, and we know it will please the sisters." Do you remember it, Mr. Editor? I have been silent all these years but have taken a great interest in the Corner. When Club No. 4 met in Putnam last December, I appeared to them and gave them a big surprise.

Anne D. Your beautiful Whistling in Heaven was beautiful.

I miss many of the old writers such as Farmer's Wife, Ella of Canterbury, Hannah Who, Ethelyn, Busy Body, Gentian, Potlatch, and Slim Jim.

Please Mr. Editor, am I too late for a pin? Should like one very much.

ROSELAND.

HERMITS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I went to the meeting at Buckingham Memorial, May 6, and had a great time, came home and cut the lawn and raked it up and trimmed it. Expect to sprout potatoes tomorrow. I have a fine time whenever I go.

I have a fine recipe of hermits that I think you will like. 1 1-2 cup brown sugar, 1-2 cup butter, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup molasses, salt, 1-2 cup milk, 1 teaspoon soda in milk, 1-2 teaspoon each clover and cinnamon, 1 cup chopped raisins, 3 cups flour. Half the recipe makes quite a lot. Drop them by the spoonful. Don't roll. If that is not spice enough use more and also chopped nuts are good. Will write more next time.

FIDELITY.

ANTICIPATING EAST KILLINGLY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I think it about time I sent in another short letter. I would very much like a pin if I am not too late.

Twice Twenty: I was disappointed in not being at home when you called. Come again, I will try and do better next time.

If the Corner members meet at E. K. in June I hope everyone will come that can. Would like to see Olga very much.

Yours for the Corner,

BUTTERFLY.

GOOD TIMES AT ALL CORNER GATHERINGS

Dear Social Corner Members: I did not intend to write again so soon but in my last letter when I wrote about pie crust, I mean to say I mixed the flour, salt and lard together and it would keep several days ready to make a pie at short notice. As I had it it said mix just the lard and salt together, but that would not be much saving of time.

Billie: Your recipes are A. No. 1. Have not tried the sponge cake as I wondered if through a mistake you left out the baking powder. A number of years ago I had a recipe like it but can't remember if I used any baking powder in that. Write and tell us. I sure think it would be nice for your people to have a club in your vicinity. I know I suggested it some time ago but as you are in a good location, I guess you'll have to start it, then the other club members can go a visiting. You see I know you would have good times for all Social Corner gatherings are good times and miles don't count in these days of autos.

Chub: If it is your husband who does trucking he has been to my house. If it is not your husband it is his brother. Did he go to Matunuck last summer with a bunch of lodge members? Maybe I will appear at one of your Social Corner meetings sometime and inquire for you.

BEE

CENTRAL MEETING ON STANDARD TIME

Dear Sisters of the Corner: I will write a few more lines in regard to our meeting at Central Village. I forgot to mention that everything for the day will be on standard time. If any sister has a favorite recipe for anything bring it along also bring your old song books and fancy work.

Hope Rural Delivery will be there this time as he is much interested in patchwork.

If I am not too late would like very much to have one of the Social Corner pins if there is any left. Thanks to the editor in advance for his kindness.

Anna Z: Why can't you plan to meet with us on the 20th? It would make a nice trip for you. Hope you are much better by this time. How is Mr. Z?

True Blue and Savilla: Hope to see you and others at our meeting the 20th.

Free Air: we hear has a new car so I think she will help us out in service for our meeting. Will send a recipe for filling cake.

Cake Filling: 1 cup mashed bananas, 1 cup sugar, white of one egg. Beat the white of egg until stiff add sugar and bananas and beat until it forms a stiff frosting. Spread between layers.

Wishing the editor and sisters the best of luck.

RURAL AUNTY.

SOMETHING QUICK FOR LUNCH

Dear Members of the Corner: Am so glad Amy told us how to make good dumplings, as I am very fond of them but never have very good success with them.

O. D.: Some of your uses for spring clothes pins were new to me and I am glad to learn of them. Will put them in practice. I received your card and you want to know who told me you were a good cook. Some one you knew years ago. If you have been to any of the meetings, it must have been when I was not present for I think I could pick you out from the description I have of you, but might be mistaken. Wondered if you were at B. M., May 5. I could not make it.

Tatting: You have done your part. Some folks seem slow or are not much interested. I hear you have a Social Corner pin. Maybe I'll see you wear it some day. Hope the in-laws are better.

When some of you want to get some thing quick for lunch try this: Beat the yolks of four eggs add four tablespoons of milk, 4 tablespoons of dried bread crumbs and one half teaspoon of salt. Beat all together then fold in the whites of four eggs that have been beaten stiff. Pour into a heated frying pan that has a small piece of butter melted in it. Cook on top of stove until well puffed up, then brown in oven. Serve at once. A small quantity of chopped ham added to the mixture makes it good.

E. L. M.

IN MEMORY OF SISTER WRINKLE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Just a few lines in memory of our beloved Sister Wrinkle. She was a personal friend of mine for years. We were neighbors years ago when we both lived in W—. I was very friendly with her daughter Ruth and also chumed with a young lady who became her daughter-in-law. She could see the funny side of any thing and she and I enjoyed many a good laugh together. My sympathy goes to her bereaved family.

I wish to thank the editor for pin received and I also wish to thank a Social Corner Member for lovely calendar received. It was sent to my former address and I have just received it. I think it is lovely.

Sweet William: I did enjoy your call so much. I trust it can be repeated.

I suppose May baskets are floating around.

Best wishes to all.

BON AMI.

GREETINGS FROM HONEYSUCKLE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I hope you are enjoying this nice spring weather and are all well. I called on Red Cedar Sunday and found her much better. Hope to see her at the next meeting.

California Girl: Hope you have a delightful time on your visit to your home state this summer.

Sea Bird: Was glad to see you looking so well after your trip.

I hope the good editor has a pin left for me, as I want one very much. Thanks in advance.

I have missed attending the Social Corner meetings this winter, but think I can go to the next one.

Best wishes to all.

HONEYSUCKLE.

GREETINGS FROM AMELIA

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It is a little late to answer present to the roll call, but perhaps better late than never.

Amy, Marigold and April Flower: Wish to thank you all for the cards. It is nice to be remembered.

Tatts: Have tried your recipe for orange souffle and it certainly is delicious.

Guyiana: Would be glad to hear from you. You know our number.

Would be glad to have the editor send me a social Corner pin. Thank you.

Plans were then made for Memorial day as is customary by the order and committees were appointed to carry out this work.

The regular order of business was transacted. The report of Miss Maxie Maloney, chairman of the committee in charge of the pictures which were given at the Breed theatre on April 23rd, was read and it showed that the affair was a grand success, and a large sum was realized, due to the hard work of the chairman and her committee. The degree and drill teams, together with the choir are to leave the bus terminal at 11 o'clock daylight time by special bus to go to South Manchester, Sunday, May 10th, where they are to exemplify the degrees of the order. After a few remarks on the good of the order by the president, the meeting adjourned.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS.

Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps, No. 16, met Friday afternoon at the Buckingham Memorial with the Senior Vice President Mrs. Maude A. Moody in the chair. The usual reports were read and approved. The corps voted to visit Uncas-On-Thames twice a year, taking fruit to the patients there. An invitation from Rev. C. H. Ricketts to attend the Greeneville Congregational church with the G. A. R. on Memorial Sunday was accepted. The Young People's Christian Union of the Universalist church will give a playlet entitled Our First Flag at the Buckingham Memorial following the services at the Preston bridge. All patriotic orders are invited to attend. The meeting closed with the salute to the flag and singing America.

DEGREE OF POCAHONTAS.

Sebequanash council, No. 11, met at 58 Broadway on Wednesday afternoon with a large attendance, as the Gt. Poc. Daisy B. Payne, with her staff made their official visit. There were also visiting Sisters from Bridgeport, Norwalk, Rowayton, Rockville, Bristol and New London. Gt. Poc. Daisy Payne gave a very instructive and helpful talk which encouraged the council greatly. The other sisters gave short talks which were much appreciated. The deputy, Sister Lavenia Clark of Hiawatha council, No. 15, of New London, gave one of her characteristic short talks. Pocahontas Della Bailey was unable to be present as she is still in the hospital. All wished her a speedy recovery. It was a very enjoyable and harmonious meeting. All the visiting sisters spoke highly of Sebequanash council as being a wide awake council. There are several pale faces ready to join the council with a good prospect of more to follow. After the salute to the flag the meeting closed. Refreshments were served by the usual entertainment committee, consisting of ice cream, cake, and fancy cookies. Gt. Poc. Daisy Payne, with her staff and the other sisters, trailed to New London to visit Minnehaha council, No. 33, which entertained them with a fine supper followed by the regular meeting.

FORESTERS OF AMERICA

Enthusiasm prevailed at the regular meeting of Court City of Norwich, No. 63, Foresters of America, this week, as the attendance was unusually large. In fact it was one of the largest attended meetings in months. An officer of the lodge said after the meeting that those who helped greatly to impress fraternal feeling were the committees sent to visit here from the surrounding courts. The business transactions of the court were conducted in an impressive manner. A few remarks were made by Chief Ranger Joseph Callahan on the good of the order. Refreshments were served and several duets were enjoyed. They were given by local members. Various forms of enjoyment were carried far into the night.

There will be no meeting next Tuesday evening as the officers of the court are to attend the state convention to be held in Waterbury.

ODD FELLOWS

The regular meeting of Shetucket Lodge, No. 27, was held Tuesday evening with Noble Grand A. H. Perry, presiding, in his usual efficient manner. Regular routine business was transacted, and plans were discussed for the coming season. The anniversary committee announced the completion of their plans for the celebration of the 106th anniversary of the founding of the order, to be held on Wednesday, May 13th, in conjunction with Uncas Lodge, Canton Oneco, Palmyra Encampment, and Hope Rebekah Lodge.

This is of peculiar interest to Norwich as the Independent Order of Odd Fellows is one of the oldest fraternal orders in the city, Uncas Lodge being founded in 1843. There is certain to be a large attendance of members and their friends, as the committee have guaranteed a program and entertainment worth while.

GRAND ARMY

The five delegates representing the Connecticut G. A. R., who will exchange a confederate flag, captured in the battle of Cold Harbor, Va., June 3, 1864, for a sword of Colonel Ledyard Colburn, of the twelfth regiment, Connecticut volunteers, now in the War Memorial, New Orleans, La., are on their way to that city.

They are: James W. Davis of Bridgeport, G. A. R. commander; Ira W. R. Wildman, of Danbury; George A. Tucker of New Haven; Edward T. Abbott of Bridgeport; Dr. Benjamin F. Cheney of New Haven. Due to the illness of Adrian P. Sloan of Hartford, Mr. Tucker was selected to replace him.

They left from Bridgeport and on Sunday will stop over at Chattanooga, Tenn., to visit the Civil War battlefields and resume their journey Monday. The trip will take about two weeks.

REBEKAHS

Hope Rebekah Lodge No. 21 held its regular meeting on Wednesday evening in Odd Fellows Hall, with Mrs. Ella Stapleton, Noble Grand, in the chair. Four candidates were initiated in the Rebekah degree for which the floor work was exemplifiedin fine form by the drill team. One new application was received. Plans are almost completed for the celebration of the 106th Anniversary of Odd Fellowship which will be held Wednesday evening May 13th, the three lodges, Uncas No. 11, Shetucket No. 27 and Hope Rebekah No. 21, uniting with a social and entertainment. On the next Rebekah meeting May 20th the drill and degree team will rehearse for initiation in June. It is hoped no member of either team will make another date for that night.

EAGLES

The American War Mothers, that organization of women who gave their sons to serve in the World War, have recently credited the Fraternal Order of Eagles with the origin of Mother's Day. In an article published in the February issue of their magazine, they make this statement:

"Records have been submitted to show that the beginning of the campaign was in the clubhouse of Kansas City Aerie No. 47, Fraternal Order of Eagles. Time: the fall of 1904 and the spring of 1905."

At the F. O. E. National Convention at Cleveland, Ohio, in 1912, the article further points out, a recommendation setting aside one Sunday a year as Mothers' Day became a law in the order. This was two years before the custom was authorized by Act of Congress.

The institution of Mothers' Day is part of a broad sentimental and social welfare program of the F. O. E., whose fundamental proposition has always been "Protect the Home."

In 1898 the Order provided for the services of a physician for members of the Order and their immediate families. The physician's fees were paid from the common treasury. In the event of sickness, an Eagle received a substantial sum of money varying from $7.00 to $15.00 a week for as long a period as three months in one year. These two policies are still in force and are the foundation upon which the beneficial features of the Fraternal Order of Eagles are built.

$23,000,000 in sick benefits, $5,500,000 in funeral benefits, $3,750,000 for medical services, a total of $42,250,000—a stupendous sum—has been paid by the Fraternal Order of Eagles in the last twenty years primarily to help the mother and aid the family.

Today this powerful Order has assets of $30,000,000 and 600,000 members. And the rallying cry is "For Mother and the Home."

Further, in keeping with this policy of protecting the family, especially the mother, the Eagles are today crusading for Old Age Pensions. They pledged their efforts and money to this cause in 1921, and since that time have seen their dreams come true in Montana and Nevada, and the territory of Alaska, where, largely through the efforts of the Eagles, Old Age Pension laws have been passed. In this work, they are inspired by the hope that the day will dawn when every deserving Mother will be spared the poorhouse at the end of the road.

MACCABEES

The W. B. A. of Maccabees held their regular meeting Wednesday night with a large attendance. Commander Eckstein was in the chair. Two new members were initiated. Reports of the last whist were read and approved and a good sum realized. Another whist will be held on the next meeting night. A number of the members will attend the annual convention to be held June 4 at Cinderella Hall in New Haven. Commander Eckstein was chosen as a delegate with collector Mary Pedace as alternate. Miss Emma Haas, district deputy of Hartford gave an interesting talk for the good of the order. The new guard team's work on the floor was very good considering the short time they have had to practice it. After the meeting cake and coffee was served and a social hour followed.

Although Friday, the usual district court day, was Arbor Day in Rhode Island and a legal holiday there, yet business was transacted in court with Judge Michael J. Turano on the bench, Clerk H. Walter Wyatt, Jr., read the following:

Criminal docket: State Thomas E. Brown, chief of police complainant vs. Thomas Fiore, continued two weeks; State Thomas E. Brown vs. Antonio Fiore, continued two weeks; State Thomas E. Brown vs. Concetta Liotta, announced as ready, but later Mrs. Liotta was reported as being ill in the courthouse and had to be taken to her home, case continued one week for trial; State Thomas E. Brown vs. Frank Cahoone, continued two weeks.

Civil docket: Abraham Kaplan vs. Ben Alper, continued one week for trial; Thomas M. Barber et al vs. William T. Sherman, continued one week; Clifton D. Hall vs. Angelo Pucci, placed on trial docket; Granite street Garage vs. C. H. Marsh, marked ready; Cornelius H. Conway vs. Thomas A. Buell, continued one week; Sears, Roebuck and company vs. Vernon Palmer, defaulted; Granite street Garage vs. Concetta and Edward Liotta, continued one week; Boston Furniture company vs. Joseph Chestnut, continued one week; United States Rubber company vs. Nathan A. Collins, Jr., alias, continued one week.

Judge Turano in the criminal docket called the case of State vs. Elmer Spencer. Town Solicitor Ferguson told the court that since the complaint was made the public acts of the state of Rhode Island had been amended and as the evidence showed that the defendant, in operating an automobile at an excessive rate of speed as charged at 29 miles an hour, or between 25 and 30, the law since amended raised the maximum rate, so that over 25 miles an hour now constituted a violation of law. As there might have been a reckless driving charge, time had been taken to find out. Elmer Spencer, a chauffeur for Dr. J. DeVere Barber, was operating an automobile on Franklin street April 9th, when he was given a court summons by Sergeant Michael Curtin, it being the night of the automobile accident near the whipping post farm. Solicitor Ferguson said that under the public statute where laws were amended, the court could not give sentence to the offender, even if the case had gone to a jury.

Attorney John J. Dunn, who represented Spencer stated that he had visited the office of the Rhode Island secretary of state and had seen a copy of "original substitute A" amending the Rhode Island automo- against Spencer could not be continued, or any penalty inflicted.

Judge Turano dismissed the case.

Three hundred and nine bottles of beer, one quart of gin, one quart of one pint of alcohol and one gallon of whiskey, three gallon cans of alcohol, whiskey, seized at the place of Gaetano Bianchi, Shady Side, by a raiding party two weeks ago, were declared forfeited to the state, together with the containers.

The case of Presto Bovesso was called. Attorney Dunn represented the defendant. Solicitor Ferguson, after Attorney Dunn stated that, if State Assayer Fenner's analysis showed more than one-half of one per cent. alcohol in this case of liquor possession, he would admit the same without argument.

Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown testified that, armed with a search warrant, on March 21, he visited the place of Presto Bovesso, 50 Pierce street. With his were Officers Curtin, Champlin, Madison and Kessel. They went in the front door, one of the officers seeing a man drinking in the place, and in a room off the kitchen they seized 250 bottles of beer. In reply to question by Attorney Dunn the chief said it was a two-tenement house and that also they found a barrel of mash and a bottle of beer on the table. The proprietor said "If you come again and find it, take it."

Presto Bovesso on the stand said that the officers raided his place and that the beer found and seized was made the day before. In his argument, Mr. Dunn brought out the fact that analysis by the state chemist was made four days later when, by fermentation, the percentage of alcohol would become higher.

Judge Turano found the defendant guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $75 and costs. An appeal was taken and bail of $200 was required, with Salvatore Fiore as surety.

On proof of claim the Granite street Garage vs. C. H. Marsh was given judgment, in an automobile attachment case for $137.45.

The fast-increasing number of new good Maxwell cars on the streets is causing widespread comment. It is a perfectly logical happening, for no other four delivers the Maxwell combination of 58 miles an hour, 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds, and 25 miles to a gallon of gasoline.

But there are still greater satisfactions for the Maxwell owner. The car is completely manufactured within its own great plants. This is an advantage of genuine importance to the buyer. In no other way could you be assured of the quality that distinguishes the new good Maxwell from all other fours.

It is this high quality that accounts very largely for the dependable nature of Maxwell performance, the car's durability and, above all, costs of operation and maintenance so low as to create a new standard of economy.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The Bulletin of 1875 contained many items of local interest, especially concerning bits of history not often remembered by many residents of the city.

Some of these items, taken in part from the Bulletins of a half century ago are reprinted as follows.

Monday, May 3, 1875—The trustees of the Free Academy have taken a step which will bring the institution and its merits in a forceful and practical manner before the people of Norwich. They have resolved to make an effort to increase the endowment by the sum of $50,000—a sum which, it is understood, will bring the income to a figure barely sufficient for a reputable support of the academy. During the past year one of the teachers was dropped and the remaining force was compelled to work harder to do the work. Norwich people are urged to back the new project, with a view to giving the city a high class school for the higher English studies.

Cars will run through for today, for the first time, from Portland to New London, making a through line between Portland and New London via Rochester, Nashua, Worcester and Norwich line over Long Island Sound.

The Decoration day address is to be given by George Pratt and the members of Sedgwick Post will observe the usual programme of decorating the graves. The City Guard will act as escort for the day.

A very brilliant meteor shot across the western sky early Saturday morning disappearing with a dull explosion which was distinctly heard in many sections of the city.

People who have attempted to lay out their flower beds find that the ground is still frozen to a depth of about one foot below the surface of the ground.

Peculiar circumstances still attract interest to those who desire to travel about Norwich. In Poquetanuck snow drifts still three feet high are not unfrequent, while in Yantic dandelions are being picked by the youngsters and the greens are being cooked by housewives.

Tuesday, May 4, 1875—At a meeting of the common council last evening, Councilman Smith of the Fire department reported in favor of granting the petition of the W. M. Williams steam fire engine company for a hose carriage for that company. The company desires to purchase the "Ghost," owned by the Hook and Ladder company, at a cost of $250. The petition was granted.

The covered bridge of the New London Northern railroad over the Yantic river at the Falls, took fire yesterday afternoon from sparks from the four o'clock train up, and was totally consumed. The high wind blowing at that time made it impossible to save the structure which was thoroughly dried. Trains coming down were forced to stop at the bridge, transfer the passengers to the city and put them on a special to New London. A new bridge is to be constructed but until this is done the transferring of passengers will have to be continued.

The A. M. E. Zion society, which commenced the erection of a church building in this city some time ago, but was forced to give it up because of financial troubles, is to begin work again in the near future. The building stands on land formerly owned by George C. Ripley.

The Central Vermont railroad and its leased lines and steamers on Lake Ontario and the New London line were insured last week for $2,164,000, which is the largest insurance policy ever made out in this state.

Six bands have already been signed up to take part in the Spring parade of the fire department, which is to be one of the most spectacular ever held in Norwich.

Wednesday, May 5, 1875—The first through express from Portland came through this city last night on the regular boat train, having left the former place at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

A barn on Division street was lifted from its foundation yesterday by the high wind and piled up on top of a stone wall. Nothing but kindling wood remains of the structure.

Albert C. Greene has been appointed postmaster at Greeneville to take the place of P. E. Greene, resigned.

One of the water pipes at the Falls was frozen for a distance of 142 feet when dug out recently. This is the pipe which burst and made it impossible for the firemen to get water to fight the fire at the covered bridge.

Messrs. Price, Lee & Co. of Bridgeport having bought out the directory business of the Norwich Printing Company will commence canvassing this city for the new edition. The new company intends to improve upon the old directory.

POETRY

For Mother's Day

If I were hanged on the highest limb,
Mother O' Mine, Oh, Mother O' Mine!
I know whose love would follow me,
Mother O' Mine, Oh, Mother O' Mine.

If I were drowned in the deepest sea,
Mother O' Mine, Oh, Mother O' Mine,
I know whose tears would come down to me,
Mother O' Mine, Oh Mother O' Mine.

If I were damned of body and soul,
Mother O' Mine, Oh, Mother O' Mine!
I know whose prayer would make me whole,
Mother O' Mine, Oh Mother O' Mine!
—By Rudyard Kipling.

Mother—How sweet the childish tongue
Lisps as it speaks the name!
Mother, the theme by poets sung
For love as well as fame;
Mother, with quick comradery tone
The eager school boys say;
Mother, the feeble quavering moan
From ebbing life away,

Sad the young life whose mother-love
Vanishes all too soon;
No richer gift comes from Above,
'Tis Heaven's greatest boon.
Happy the years of childhood fleet,
Of youth and manhood bold,
That know a Mother's love complete,
Greater than wealth untold.

Shining and soft her loving eyes
Just as in days of yore,
An added gleam of Paradise
Sent from that blissful shore.
Tender and kind the gentle face,
The lingering smile so fair,
And Heaven's no strange and far-off place
Since Mother entered there.
—By Laura C. Burroughs.

Steiff decided not to sleep in the building Wednesday night and another mail clerk occupied the building. Had Steiff slept there he would have been in a position to have stolen the larger sum. New London, May 8—Mrs. Louise Townsend Palmer, widow of Frank L. Palmer, whose death occurred several weeks ago at her home, 571 Pequot avenue and who was possessed of considerable wealth did not leave a will. Mrs. Palmer, it is understood, having disposed of practically all her wealth and real estate to her two daughters, Misses Theodora and Virginia Palmer, prior to her death. The administrators of the estate are the Misses Palmer and William H. Reeves long employed as advisor by Palmer Brothers.

SELDEN LIBRARY AND $5,000 TO COLLEGE

The annual meeting of the board of trustees of Connecticut College was held in the office of the president in the New London hall Thursday, May 7, at two p. m. Fourteen out of the sixteen members of the board were present. All reports presented showed the college to be in exceptionally strong condition. The finances were never in better shape and although the current year makes heavy demands for capital outlay there will still be a creditable balance shown at the end of the fiscal year June 30. The report of the executive committee included the presentation of the budget for the next ensuing year and in view of the prospects of the college's income of $375,000 the appropriations were made for all the activities of the college within that sum. The college operates strictly upon the budget system and in no case is the budget allotment in any department of the college whether educational or physical permitted to be exceeded.

In view of the approaching completion of Colonial House authorization was made for the appropriation of $5,000 to be applied to grading and improving of grounds including the central campus area south of the library and east of Colonial House processes which will be simultaneous with the construction of the second regulation athletic field of perfect surface which will make two athletic fields available when college opens in September.

The committee on Revision of the By-Laws headed by Dean Cross of Yale Graduate School after careful study for a period of several months presented its report which was adopted and confirmed by the necessary legal vote of the board.

Two important gifts were tendered and accepted. First the gift of about 1,000 books in Biblical literature, theology, political economy and history, from the library of the late Dr. Joseph Henry Selden of Norwich, the gift being made by his son Henry Bill Selden. Associate Professor of Fine Arts in the college. This collection will be known as the Joseph Henry Selden collection, Mrs. Selden, the wife of the late Dr. Selden presented to the college the sum of $5,000 to be the foundation of the Joseph Henry Selden Lectureship, the interest of which will be applied to securing annually or at intervals of two or three years as may seem best a person of distinction to give a lecture upon some topic drawn from the fields of religion, philosophy, history, music and the fine arts, this gift becoming effective at once. It has already been arranged that the Reverend S. Parkes Cadman, D. D. of Brooklyn will deliver the first lecture Friday, Nov. 13, 1925. These gifts were very gratefully accepted by the board.

Actions affecting the acceptance of the resignations of Miss Katherine H. Pease, Miss Ruth Crosby, instructors in English and Miss Clarissa Ragsdale, Instructor in Fine Arts were taken. In place of the latter Miss Marguerite Ives, A. B., Connecticut College 1919 was appointed Instructor in Fine Arts and Miss Catharine Oakes A. B., Wellesley, 1918 was appointed Instructor in English. To occupy places recently created by the board Miss Helen Hulbert, A. B., Mt. Holyoke, 1925, was appointed to be assistant in biology, Miss Ruth Ellis to be full time assistant in chemistry, Miss Frances Fairchilds, M. A., Teachers College, was appointed assistant professor of home economics, Miss Helen G. Leopold A. M. Mt. Holyoke 1921, was reappointed instructor in the department of chemistry to share the work in organic chemistry with assistant professor Mary McKee who next year will continue on leave of absence and pursue graduate studies in Yale toward the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in chemistry. Miss Caroline Black, associate professor of botany was granted a leave of absence for the next year. Dr. Evelyn Fernald in Rockford College now will be her substitute next year. Miss Loonie Setchanove who has substituted with great satisfaction this current year in the place of Miss Ernst in the department of French was appointed to be associate professor of romance languages. Miss Erma E. Cole, associate professor of Greek was granted a leave of absence.

In recognition of their service to the college and their important standing in their several fields the following persons in the rank of assistant professor were advanced to the rank of associate professor:—

Miss Orie W. Sherer, Department of Fine Arts: Mrs. Bessie B. Wessel, Department of Social Science: Francisco Pinol, Department of Romance Languages.

The board re-elected as its officers for the ensuing year George S. Palmer, chairman, Colin S. Buell, secretary, William H. Reeves, treasurer. They also elected to succeed themselves for a term of five years three trustees whose terms of office expire in June, 1925, namely F. Valentine Chappell, Miss Mary M. Partridge, Miss Mary Bulkeley.

Defeat Division of Diocese.

At a meeting of the Fairfield County Episcopal Archdeaconry in Norwalk this week attempts made to place the organization on record as being in favor of the division of the Connecticut diocese were defeated. The first motion which provided that the meeting should favor the division was tabled. Another motion requesting the diocesan convention to appoint a committee to investigate the matter was also voted down.

The meeting was presided over by Archdeacon Frank S. Morehouse. About 200 members were present, representing every town in Fairfield county.

It's a corking good thing to bottle up your wrath.

Father Time Bows To Mme Schumann-Heink

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink whose voice at the age of 64 is the same rich contralto which attracted wide world attention when she was 15, who is to celebrate the golden anniversary of her debut as a singer by returning next season to the Metropolitan Opera House, the scene of her earlier triumphs. She has been singing in public almost 50 years.

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY

New York, May 8—The upward movement of stock prices, which had been underway for about a week, was checked temporarily by a heavy volume of profit taking sales. Net recessions, as a rule, were limited to fractions. Trading was in reduced volume, the day's sales falling below one and three quarter million shares.

Revival of public interest in the motor issues, based on reports of high current earnings, was one of the day's features. Willys Overland common moved up more than two points to a new high record for the year at 21 1-4 on total transactions well in excess of one hundred thousand shares, and the preferred touched a new top at 94 1-2. Packard, Hudson and Continental motors also attained new peak prices while the Pierce Arrow issues and Jordan sold two to five points higher.

Bullish demonstrations in the public utilities were on a smaller scale although Montana Power, West Penn Power, Columbia Gas and Electric, Brooklyn Union Gas, American Water Works and Pittsburgh Utilities preferred all established new 1925 high prices, the extreme gains running as high as five points.

Further accumulation of the low priced rails resulted in new maximum prices being recovered in Ann Arbor common and preferred, Seaboard Air Line and Gulf, Mobile and Northern. Rock Island showed a net gain of more than two points at 48 1-4 and Union Pacific closed a point higher at 138. Southern railway turned slightly reactionary on President Harrison's statement that the question of increasing the dividend had not been considered, and would not be until the preferred stockholders' suit was disposed of.

Oils displayed a firm undertone on the announcement of an increase in Smackover crude prices. Revival of speculative interest in Transcontinental Oil, which closed nearly a point higher at 5 1-4, in apparent reflection of a marked improvement in the company's financial position, was one of the features of that group.

Steels turned reactionary in anticipation of a poor April tonnage report of the United States Steel Corporation, which will be issued at noon tomorrow. Chairman E. H. Gary estimated that it would show a drop of between 300,000 and 400,000 tons in unfilled orders. United States Steel common closed 5-8 lower at 115 1-8. Crucible dropped a point to 68 3-4 and Republic fell back 1 1-2 to 42 1-4.

United States rubber issues responded to a further hardening of crude rubber prices, the preferred crossing 98 to a new high price for the year and the common showing a gain of 1 5-8 at 43 3-4. Ahmerican Sumatra Tobacco preferred soared nearly 17 points to 51 1-2 on a retreat of the short interest which was built up as a result of the recent receivership proceedings against that company, the stock later slipping back to 47.

Call money renewed at 3 3-4 per cent and then dropped to 3 1-2. The time money and commercial paper markets were unchanged.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was a jump of 15 points to 16.90 cents in Norwegian kroner. Other European rates were irregular, demand sterling ruling slightly lower around $4.84 1-2 while French francs were about two points higher around 3.21 1-2 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, May 8—Bond prices jogged ahead at a somewhat slackened pace but new high levels were established in most sections of the market. Public Utility liens vied with the rails for leadership of the advance and gains of one to two points were scattered among the representative issues in these groups.

The revival of interest in standard investment railroad obligations was measured by a 1-point advance in Atchison General 4S, which crossed 92 for the first time this year. Moderate gains also were recorded by Norfolk & Western Convertible 6S, St. Louis Southwestern Consolidated 4S, Rock Island Refunding 4S, Denver & Rio Grande Consolidated 4S and Kansas City, Fort Scott, and Memphis 4S.

The recent upturn in public utility shares, based on prospective combinations, reports of higher current earnings and increased dividends, brought a more general response in the bonds of these companies. Among the issues whic hrose one to more than two points were Louisville Gas 5S, Northern Ohio traction and Light 6S, Pacific Telephone 5S and Consumers Power 5S.

Another large turnover in Japanese government 6 1-2S featured trading in the foreign list. The bonds declined fractionally but French municipals were in demand at high prices.

New financial included a $6,425,000 issue of Southern Pacific thirty-year 4S which were sold at 91 without a public offering. A $15,000,000 Florida East Coast Railway offering is in prospect for next week and a $2,000,000 issue of Punta Alegre sugar 6 per cent notes is scheduled for early sale.

ELABORATE PLANS FOR ARMISTICE DAY EXERCISES

Project is to be Submitted to President Coolidge for Approval —Proposal is to be Made For Creating Defense Day an Annual Event—Program Follows Closely the Recommendations of the Association of Reserve Officers—Calls For Enlistment of Industrial, Commercial and Economic Resources, as Well as Man Power, in the Initial Effort For National Defense.

Washington, May 10.—(By the A. P.)—General staff plans for making Defense Day a regular event to be held coincident with Armistice Day exercises November 11, have been completed and await only White House approval. The project is expected to be presented to the president soon for final action, with urgent recommendations of the Reserve Officers' Association that it be approved.

The staff plan was formulated, after a careful study of reports from all corps area commanders and from national guard and reserve officers all over the country, and is believed to follow closely the recommendations of the association of reserve officers.

During the recent tour of active duty in Washington, of a group of reserve officers attached to the general staff and drawn from all nine corps areas, a committee was named to look into the defense day question and report both to the war department and the association. The committee report, which urged selection of Armistice Day for the proper occasion for the proposed annual "muster" for the purpose of "taking periodic stock of our national defense," was unanimously approved by the full group and also by the association, which has caused it to be widely distributed among its officer members.

The first defense test last year was held September 12, commemorating the battle of St. Mihiel. By direction of General Pershing.

Comment on the desirability of shifting the date this year and hereafter to Armistice Day, November 11, the reserve officers said:

"Armistice Day provides the ideal time. It is sufficiently historical and is a legal holiday in most states. It comes at a time of the year when climatic conditions are favorable, when school units can be assembled with the least objection, and near the end of the training period for reserves, national guard, R. O. T. C. and C. M. T. C. units."

The reserve officers' committee outlined certain points for central action at Washington on which the decentralization activities of Defense Day by all army contingents whether regular, national guard or reserve, should be based These are:

"The president's early and vigorous announcement of Defense Day.

"A definite and positive attitude on the part of the war department regarding details.

"Proper publicity on the part of the war department.

"Systematic appointment of state and local chairmen and committees by the governors of states.

"Local conditions and contributing factors."

In view of the controversy which preceded the first defense test indicating some misunderstanding of its purposes and misapprehension of the actual significance of the word "mobilization" as applied to such a test, the reserve officers had recourse to the old military term "muster" as better expressing the true meaning of what is a purely peace time process, that of taking stock.

"Defense Day, properly handled locally," the committee held, "furnishes unlimited opportunity for educational presentment of our localized defense organization, for systematic patrolling demonstration, and lays the basis for opportunity to increase esprit de corps in army units and among individual officers who take part or witness the events of the day."

In following up this, the committee laid down six points which local exercises should be designated to demonstrate and emphasize. They were:

"That the national defense act was conceived as and is a guarantee against further war.

"Our national defense organization.

"The localization of units.

"The responsibility of the community to support the local unit as a part of the national defense plan.

"That every resource — industrial, commercial and economic as well as manpower—will be used if necessary in the initial effort for national defense.

"That reserve officers are at all times a functioning part of the army of the United States."

The committee made one other indirect reference to the discussion and lack of complete harmony of action by state executives during the first defense test:

"It should be clearly announced," the report said, "that in case any public official or officer fails to function or perform the duties expected of him in the general plan, the omission on his part be not sufficient ground to delay or impede the programme and that those interested in the success of the event increase their activity according."

Commenting on the first test, the committee said it "was a good beginning, for it completely silenced the pacifists and proved the practicability and necessity of taking periodic stock of our national defense."

FOUR PERSONS DROWNED WHEN MOTORBOAT SANK

Calais, Me., May 10—Four persons were drowned when a motor boat tender sank in the Saint Croix river 10 miles below this city off the Canadian shore. One young woman was rescued. The dead:

Marion Vickery, 21, Calais.
Helen Kyle, 17, Calais.
Murray McKay, 16, St. Stephen, N. B.
George Stevens, St. Stephen, N. B.

The young people were on their way to Oak Point in the motor boat for a picnic, and the party of three girls and three young men stepped into a punt used as a tender to row ashore. The boat started to leak and filled quickly. Granville Craft swam ashore, but the others, all of whom could swim, were hampered by their heavy clothing and sank.

Some of the crew of a four masted schooner anchored nearby rowed to their assistance, but succeeded in finding only the Vickery girl and her sister, Virginia. The two young women were placed aboard a Canadian fishery patrol boat and rushed to a hospital, but Marion died on the way. Virginia was expected to recover. The bodies of the drowned were found.

YEAR'S LIQUOR PLEDGE IS UP NEXT WEEK

Atlantic City, N. J., May 10.—Samuel Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, looked out toward meleaguered rum row today and spoke of the fact that the agreement he made last year about drinking will be a thing of the past in just one week.

This last lap is certainly the hardest, he said, "but I shall make it."

In Texas on May 18, 1924, Mr. Vauclain made a pledge with three officials of his company in which he agreed to forfeit $10,000 if he violated the prohibition laws for the period of one year. The others were to pay $1,000 if they broke the liquor laws in that period.

On May 18, Mr. Vauclain will celebrate both his 70th birthday anniversary and the completion of his pledge.

"Am I going off the wagon on Monday night?" he said, "Well, I might. With this rum row business it looks as if it were going to be pretty hard to get a drink.

"But I am coming to New York for my birthday and I dare say I shall find a drop left there."

SLEEPING SICKNESS IS EPIDEMIC IN BRITAIN

London, May 10—Physicians are unable to explain the sudden appearance of an epidemic of sleeping sickness in Great Britain which is reported to have attacked several hundreds of persons throughout the country.

It is unusual for the disease to appear at this time of the year, the physicians say, and it had never before been known to any greater in these islands.

The epidemic thus far has caused no fatality. The doctors are inclined to believe that the epidemic is either a mild form or a variation of the disease. One victim is Lord Milner, and another the lord provost of Edinburgh.

DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES HAS RETURNED FROM PORTO RICO

Lakehurst, May 10—The navy dirigible Los Angeles returned early today from her pioneer flight to Porto Rico. The ship was sighted over the landing field at 3:10, but it was three hours before she was brought into the hangar.

The lightness of the craft, resulting from fuel consumption, combined with the heavy, damp atmosphere to make the landing more than usually difficult. Twelve attempts to bring the ship earthward failed before the great bag was under control of the ground crew.

The trip to Porto Rico was declared a complete success by Captain Steele, who was in command. Weather conditions were for the most part excellent, he said, although on Friday night rain and heavy thunder storms were encountered off Florida.

The Los Angeles is scheduled for a short flight on Friday, May 15, and and New York, Captain Steele announced.

TWO WOMEN INJURED IN COLLISION IN ROCKVILLE

Rockville, Conn., May 10.—Two women received fractured ribs when a car driven by Arthur Sieber, of Broadbrook collided with another car operated by Benjamin T. Pinney, of Somers here tonight. They are in a serious condition. The women, Mrs. Robert Wilson and Miss Gladys Olmstead, both of Broadbrook, were in the Sieber car. Robert Wilson, husband of Mrs. Wilson, was with them but escaped injury. The injured women were taken to the Moser Brothers home, near the scene of the accident where a physician who was summoned, said the women were so badly injured that they should remain there for the night.

Sieber was arrested charged with reckless driving and ordered to appear for a hearing in court June 3. Pinney was ordered to report at the hearing as a material witness.

SPRINGFIELD, OHIO, BOY WINS ANNUAL ESSAY CONTEST

ROCKEFELLER GIFT FOR NEAR EASTERN COLLEGES

New York, May 10—A gift of $625,000, by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., toward the $2,500,000 fund being raised for five near eastern colleges, conditioned upon the fund being subscribed before June 30, was announced today by Cleveland H. Dodge, chairman of the movement. Mr. Dodge said

Decrease in Amount Of Liquor Landed

Admiral Bullard Will be Satisfied if an Appreciable Decrease in Number of Rum Ships Begins Within a Month.

Washington, May 10—(A. P.)—The coast guard is ready to settle down to a summer's work in its campaign to break up the rum fleet off New York. Its efforts may bear fruit sooner, but it was said that Rear Admiral Bullard, coast guard commandant, will be satisfied if appreciable disintegration of the fleet begins within a month.

Some of the ships in rum row have sent word that they are not quitters, and so coast guard officials expect that a few of them will not dip their colors and retire until their supplies have been exhausted. To those persistent skippers, the admiral replies that coast guard crews will stand by as long as necessary.

Officials have accepted reports of departure of some of the rum ships as meaning that the smugglers are looking for weaker spots on the coast guard blockade. Lieutenant Commander Yeandle the commandant's aide, also sees in the maneuvers an attempt to draw some of the dry fleet away and thus permit fast motor craft from shore to establish contact with the liquor laden vessels remaining.

Evidence has been received that new additions to the rum fleet would go to other points instead of waiting off New York and the contiguous territory. Several ships not hitherto recognized in the row off New York have appeared near the Virginia Capes, and the entrance to Chesapeake Bay.

Some liquor has gone through the bay entrance, but the official belief is that the amount landed is slowly decreasing. The same efforts are being made around the Florida and Gulf coasts but officials have admitted that these sections are among the worst with which they have to deal.

Coast guard headquarters received few reports from its outlying commands. Commander Yeandle explained, however, that such a condition did not mean that the crews of the patrols were inactive.

TO HOLD CONFERENCE ON BORDER QUESTIONS

Washington, May 10—An American delegation, headed by Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury, left today for El Paso, Texas, where they will meet representatives of the Mexican government May 15 in a conference on border questions. It is worked out for the co-operative handling of smuggling and other border problems.

The American delegation included representatives of four government departments:—Mr. Andrews, H. S. Creighton, in charge of customs at San Francisco, and Colonel E. C. Kurtz, chief of the narcotic section, for the treasury; William R. Vallance, assistant solicitor, for the state department; A. W. Henderson, special assistant to the attorney general, and L. D. Gamble, assistant United States attorney at El Paso, for the department of justice, and Assistant Secretary Henning for the department of labor.

Mr. Andrews is optimistic as to the outlook, believing that the Mexican authorities are anxious to join hands with the United States in view of the fact that law enforcement will be made easier for each government when satisfactory treaties are agreed upon.

Mr. Andrews said today he would press for understandings with Mexico looking to joint action by the two governments in suppressing all kinds of smuggling operations; exchange of information between the two nations with regard to international conspiracies, and extradition of persons violating the narcotic laws of either government. Questions of traffic in gold, arms and ammunition also will be taken up, but officials here were unwilling to discuss these features.

FINANCIAL IMPROVEMENT BY NEW HAVEN ROAD

New Haven, May 10—The rapid improvement in the financial condition of the New Haven road was dwelt upon at length by General Manager C. L. Bardo in an address to members of the New Haven division number 77 Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers at a meeting here today. Mr. Bardo's talk is the first of a series to be delivered by road officials to employes in an effort to promote efficiency and cooperation.

More than 70 engineers from all parts of the New Haven division attended the meeting and tendered Mr. Bardo a rising vote of thanks. The meeting was a private one, none but New Haven engineers being permitted in the room during the talk.

Mr. Bardo's address was in the nature of a history of the road, every important event since the road was started being mentioned by the general manager. He told of the difficulty period following the war and thanked the engineers for their cooperation during the strike. According to Mr. Bardo the road is now on the way to complete financial recovery.

Proposal For Sale Of Gov't Owned Fleet

Recommendation of American Steamship Association is to be Submitted to President Coolidge Soon.

New York, May 10—(A. P.)—Recommendations to make possible the sale of the government-owned fleet and its successful operation by American companies laid before President Coolidge by the American Steamship Owners' Association, the Shipowners' Association of the Pacific and the Pacific American Steamship company were made public. They urge the creation of two special agencies to determine the extent of service to be carried on and the amount of direct national aid through mail pay and other compensation. Included in these organizations are almost all the owners of ocean-going tonnage under the American flag.

The program favors also reduction of the shipping board from seven members to three, and continuance in some form of the fleet corporation, under the control of secretary of commerce or a secretary of marine, to supervise operation of the essential steamship services pending liquidation.

Other recommendations include: extension of the coastwise laws to the Philippines when the president deems it expedient, exemption of coast trade from Panama Canal tolls, freedom of ships to transfer to foreign registry except in national emergency, reduction in Panama Canal tolls, extension of the present construction loan fund with the stipulation that vessels so benefitted must remain in foreign trade until loans are repaid.

The government is asked to relinquish to privately-owned American ships the carriage of government supplies and troops in time of peace and to convey all government officials and employees and all government cargoes in such vessels.

RIFFIAN TRIBESMEN ARE CAUSING UNEASINESS

Melilla, Spanish Morocco, May 9—(A. P.)—A somewhat significant movement of Riffian tribesmen in the Beni Said territory is causing some uneasiness among the military authorities. On Wednesday night numerous groups of rebels appeared in front of the Spanish advance positions Southward of Beni Said and opened fire upon all the Spanish camps. Natives declared the rebels pierced the line between the posts and passed along the beds of the river Uardana, reaching the vicinity of Afaraun and Sidi, Mesaud and occupied the ravines which reach as far as Dar Quebdanti.

It is feared that some of the groups are hiding between Dar Quebdanti and Kandussion, a considerable distance in the rear of the forward line, while another concentration is understood to have taken place within rifle shot of Kadila, headquarters of the Spanish superintendent of the Beni Said tribe. Leading natives point out that this movement is intended to bring pressure to bear on the friendly tribesmen and cause them to rise against Spain.

The Riffian tribesmen have not waited until harvest time for their movement. It is said they hope by their desultory fire to bring the Spanish artillery and aerial forces over the territory occupied by native non-combatants whose crops would be threatened with destruction by the Spanish fire and who consequently would be inclined to join the rebellion in vengeance against the Spaniards.

Thursday all available airplanes left Melilla for the front. They carried out a flight over the Uardana valley, bombing freely. The aviators requested a further supply of five hundred bombs for Dar Quebdanti.

JOAN OF ARC DAY WAS CELEBRATED IN PARIS

Paris, May 10—The most imposing police forces mobilized in Paris since May Day, 1919 and the great energy they displayed in suppressing incipient disorders, were responsible for the Joan of Arc celebration today remaining free from bloodshed, which had been feared in official quarters. Several clashes between manifestants and the police occurred, but no one was severely injured. A large number of manifestants were taken to the police stations but only one was detained on a charge of carrying a revolver.

Fifty thousand persons filed past the statues of France's national saint on the Place de St. Augustin and the Rue Rivoli while about 5,000 police patrolled the streets between those points.

"We will no longer permit any manifestations in the streets, no matter from what quarters they may be organized," the prefect of police, M. Moralin, informed the correspondents in explaining the impressive police array. "The streets must be made safe for the pedestrians and political factions may no longer use them as a battlefield."

ENDEAVORING TO RECOVER BODIES IN MISSISSIPPI RIVER

Memphis, Tenn., May 10—Divers endeavoring to explore the hull of the steamer M. E. Norman, which capsized near Coahoma Landing, Mississippi, Friday with a loss of probably 23 lives, today were forced temporarily to forego their efforts the current was found to be too swift.

Work of recovering bodies, until the current subsides, will be confined to efforts to tear away enough of superstructure to permit the current to wash bodies out where they may be recovered, it was said. A derrick boat was anchored over the sunken craft today. United States engineers in charge of the work are doing everything in their power to recover the bodies.

Probability that bodies may be discovered many miles down the river was expressed by rivermen. Others pointed out that there was a big eddy a short distance from the scene of the sinking and that it was probable that some of the bodies were in this place.

PRINTING PAPER MONEY IS A TASK OF MAGNITUDE

Output For the Next Fiscal Year Will Exceed That of Any Year in History—Orders Have Been Issued For Purchase of 200,000,000 Sheets of Distinctive Silk Fibre Paper, From Each Sheet of Which Eight Pieces of Currency Will be Made—Life of Dollar Bill is Only About Eight Months.

Washington, May 10—The treasury has made plans for printing more paper money in the next fiscal year than ever has been turned out by the American government in any other twelve months in history.

Orders have been prepared for the purchase of 200,000,000 sheets of distinctive silk fibre paper, from each sheet of which eight pieces of currency are made, and beginning July 1, the great bureau of engraving and printing will be run at maximum capacity to meet the nation's paper money requirements. An order for 49,000,000 sheets already has gone to the manufacturers and this installment will be delivered in three weeks.

Announcement of the treasury's program, made today, disclosed that never in any one year before had the orders for money paper exceeded 150,000,000 sheets. That quantity was ordered during the year now coming to a close and it was about twenty per cent greater than ever was used before in a like period.

Coincident with announcement of the printing program, Assistant Secretary Dewey, made known that the treasury would take its first step July 1 toward building up a reserve of currency. By this method, it is hoped, the life of the paper money may be prolonged. An opportunity will be had "curing" the money before it goes into senate service, and this process is expected to keep it from frying, cracking and otherwise going to pieces so easily.

The life of the one dollar bill now is only about eight months, whereas treasury experts figure it should be a year. In pre-war days, the average dollar bill would wear about fourteen to fifteen months, but times have changed. Mr. Dewey is convinced that high prices, use of automobiles, the necessities of commerce and industry and modern ideas and habits command the carrying of more money. Thus the silver dollar has fallen into disuse and the dollar bill and bills of larger denomination have come into greater use with the result that they wear out more quickly.

THREE STABBING AFFRAYS IN NEW HAVEN SUNDAY

New Haven, May 10—Three persons were taken to hospitals today as the result of three different stabbing affrays, one woman had the upper part of her ear severed, a man had his arm slashed from the wrist to the elbow and another received a deep slash wound in the lower part of the abdomen. The police have made one arrest.

Miss Dorothy Smith 22, was taken to St. Raphael's hospital early this morning suffering from a bad laceration of the left ear. Miss Smith when first questioned said that she had been injured in an automobile accident but later admitted that she was attending a party and that someone threw a bottle at a man and that the bottle had struck her in the side of the head, rendering her unconscious. She refused to state where the incident took place.

John Pierce, 38, was standing in front of his home in Factory street this morning when a negro ran up to him and slashed Pierce's arm with a razor. Pierce said he did not know his assailant to speak to but knew him by sight. He could give no cause for the attack. The police are looking for James Brown a coal yard worker, in connection with the case.

Dominick De Martino, walked into his divorced wife's home tonight with a knife in his hand and in a fight which followed William Perillo, 25, was stabbed in the abdomen. Perillo is the husband of De Martino's former wife. Perillo was cut when he grappled with De Martino. Mrs. Perillo succeeded in taking away the knife from her former husband.

De Martino was arrested, charged with breach of the peace.

PRESIDENTIAL INAUGURATION TAKES PLACE IN BERLIN TODAY

Berlin, May 10—A blue sky is all that now is needed to make perfect Berlin's welcome to President-Elect Von Hindenburg on his arrival from Hanover Monday afternoon. Such discordant notes as are audible on the eve of his coming are to be heard solely in socialistic and communistic quarters, where the adherents of both radical parties are being summoned to counter-demonstrations of protest against the advent of the field marshal as head of the republic.

Both democratic and center parties will participate in tomorrow's ceremonies. Former Chancellor Wilhelm Marx, Von Hindenburg's rival for presidential honors, who has just recovered from a slight indisposition, announced his intention of attending the inauguration ceremony in the reichstag at noon today.

Field Marshal Von Hindenburg will be greeted along the march by 200,000 members of self-appointed reception committees, police headquarters having been appraised of this number by the heads of organizations who have requested places.

MOTHER CARRIED CHILDREN FROM BURNING HOME

New Canaan, May 10—After carrying her three small children from their blazing home this noon and calling the fire department, Mrs. Russell Bach, wife of a real estate dealer of New Canaan, collapsed unconscious on the lawn, while a $37,000 fire rapidly destroyed the Old Colonial residence on Potus street owned by Charles L. Morse, of Stamford.

Mrs. Bach was at home with her three youngest children, all under six, while her husband had gone to church in Stamford with the older children. She had been preparing the Sunday dinner and left the kitchen for a few minutes, but smelling smoke she returned to find the room in flames. Hastily snatching the little tots in her arms, she fled to the yard and deposited them in a safe place. Going back into the house she telephoned the New Canaan fire department and then attempted to save some clothes, but was driven from the house by the fire, which was fast eating to the front of the building.

JIMMY GREEN REDUCING AMID THE HILLS OF WINDHAM

Willimantic, May 10—Jimmy Green, widely known to followers of the canvas and the ropes as "Young Jack Johnson" and recently considered a good contender for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world, has arrived in this city with his manager Joe Doyle, to try out local hills for his reducing exercises. Jimmy admits having lived through thirty-four summers but he says that he doesn't count the winters. He is going to set himself up temporarily in Willimantic and while he is taking his daily dozen to keep his abdomen from dropping to his knees he states that he wouldn't mind practicing on a few of the aspiring pugilists around this section of the state. Jimmy has met with such headliners as Jack Renault, Jack Delaney, Bartley Madden, Kid Norfolk, Jamaica Kid, Whitey Allen and Jack Ward the Montreal puncher. Jimmy is not intending to unload any excess freightage just for the fun of doing it. He refuses to become a back number for many years to come and when he gets into real fighting trim somebody's crown is going to totter.

The boxer stated with pride that Jack Sharkey, who will meet Dynamite Jim Maloney in Boston June 5 is one of his pupils. Green is apparently an all-round warrior as attested by the decorations which adorn his lapel and which show that he was on the job when Uncle Sam sparred off with the Kaiser.

WHAT STRIKERS DO TODAY OF PARAMOUNT INTEREST

Willimantic, May 10—In spite of the urgent appeal for a peaceful demonstration of the strikers' committee and the presence of a band of state policemen to assist the local department in handling the picket lines at the American Thread Company plant, minor acts of violence occurred Saturday which resulted in the bringing of those believed guilty to police headquarters by questioning. Three men were brought in early in the morning, after stones had been thrown at two of the firemen imported from Boston, as they were being escorted from the plant to the company boarding house by four state police officers. The missiles were thrown as the men reached the veranda and those adjudged responsible were quickly arrested. A delegation of strikers, headed by James Casey followed to the police station and after a conference with the officials the three were released on condition that they would appear on the stage at the mass meeting in the Gem Theatre while Mr. Casey warned the strikers that they should not resort to any form of violence. This was agreed to and the men were released. Considerable cheering was the only other mark of a demonstration by the gathering at the gates at opening time in the morning.

At the mass meeting Miss Amy L. Hooker presided. Her reference to the summoning of the state officers was followed by a challenge from Horace Riviere, an organizer, who openly asked for the name of the person or persons responsible for the arrival of the state police here. He branded the act as a stain on Willimantic and one entirely uncalled for. In behalf of the strikers he issued a protest against the appearance of the state constabulary.

Special attention was called to the fact that some of the newspapers in this state and others have carried headlines that the local strike was nearly finished. "We want to make a denial of any such false impression," said the speaker. "This strike is not nearly finished; but from our standpoint, it is only beginning, unless our demand for a restoration of the ten per cent wage cut is granted."

There is every evidence that the strikers will not enter the mill gates at the official opening under power Monday morning. It is understood that the employment of help will be open only to former employes up to noontime. What will follow after that is a matter for conjecture. Provided that nine enough of the strikers return to work to form a nucleus in each department of the plant, so that the work can be started and the forces built up from there on, there appear to be only two alternatives for the Thread Company to advertise in this and other sections for help or to close the mills down until the controversy is settled. With both sides remaining as obdurate as in the past it is plain that only decisive developments in favor of either side would bring about anything like an early settlement.

Other reports of physical demonstrations which savored of violence were coming in during the day Saturday and the nature of some led the strike officials to believe that their organization was being used by unprincipled men, who were not of their ranks.

The telephone wires leading to The Elms, where the Boston firemen are being housed, were cut down for the second time within twenty-four hours. About 11 o'clock Saturday forenoon Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Benson, of 26 Union street were accosted by women strikers, as they were returning from the plant where they remained at work. The remarks to Mrs. Benson became personal, Benson alleges. A pitched battle resulted between the strikers and Mrs. Benson, but her husband intervened and pushed away the women strikers.

The accusation was made that Benson had struck one of the women and he was taken to police headquarters by Officer John Killourey. He was released after questioning.

Gordon Rathbun of 32 Park street reported late in the forenoon that he had been assailed by one of a group of about seventy-five men who followed him up Main street and hurled uncomplimentary remarks at him. He said he was struck on the back of the neck and the blow partially stunned him, but he managed to keep walking. He could not identify any of the men following him.

JEWETT CITY

Miss Alice Brown supposed that she was to attend a meeting of the Prudential committee of the Baptist church, Friday evening and arrived at the church vestry right on time. When she opened the door she found that the room was lighted only by candles upon a beautifully decorated table, in the center of which was a birthday cake. In the dinners of the room she discovered that there sat the Prudential committee, supported by members of the Sunday school class of which she is teacher and of Whatsoever Circle of the King's Daughters of which she is leader. After she was seated the lights were turned on, and she listened to as fine a musical programme, interspersed with eulogistic speeches, as could be given. Mrs. G. H. Prior, the King's Daughters' International president, was an admirable toastmistress, and called upon Deacon J. E. Phillips, Deacon Charles T. Armstrang, Deacon Charles F. Gardner, Superintendent A. M. Brown, Rev. E. E. Scates and County Secretary of the King's Daughters, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox for impromptu speeches. Miss Brown's faithful qualities in home, church, Sunday school and day school were recalled. She responded by saying it was some thing like listening to her obituary, but they could not be true. It is a praiseworthy thing to tell people how much they are appreciated while they are living. And every speaker was glad to pay his tribute to Miss Brown's noteworthy ability and Christian character. Musical numbers were given which were all encored, because of their delightful melody. Mrs. G. H. Prior and Miss Doris Myott sang the duet, Home to Our Mountains, from Il Trovatore. Their encore was See the Pale Moon. Campana. Miss Myott sang the Hindoo Song by Hermann Bensberg. Her encore was The Angels' Serenade, by Gaeano Braga. Violin solos were played by Mrs. Lemuel Green. The Alp-Maid's Dream by A. Labitzky and Moment Musical, by Fr. Schubert. She also played violin obligatos for Miss Myott's solos. Miss Irene Stewart was the accompanist. Mrs. Prior propounded a cross word puzzle to Miss Brown, and the answer was found in the jewel case which she gave Miss Brown. It was an exquisite aquamarine bar pin, set in platinum. The guests of honor, Miss Brown, her sister, Mrs. Lillian Barber, and her niece, Miss Lillian Barber, the pastor and deacons and their wives were seated at the table which had been decorated in pink and white by Mrs. Nelbert Myott. Ruffled pink crepe paper upon the table cover, pink and white napkins, a gauzy pink decoration for the cake on which were pink candles, and bouquets of apple blossoms made a charming effect. Cake and ice cream were served. One of the very pleasing features of the programme was a poem, written and read by Miss Susie Morgan. The committee who arranged the part comprised Mrs. Nelbert Myott, Mrs. G. H. Prior, Mrs. E. E. Scates, Mrs. E. E. Gilbert and Miss Susie Morgan

DEATH RATE HIGHER AMONG BOY BABIES THAN GIRLS

Washington, May 10—A one fourth higher death rate among boy babies than girls before the first year of age was reported by the Children's Bureau as one of the facts established in the most comprehensive study of infant mortality it has yet made in furtherance of its efforts to reduce the rate in the United States. The variation in the sexes was said to be explained only by a difference in mital vitality.

The health records with their first year of 23,000 babies in eight cities were studied as a basis for the report, which cited that most recent statistics indicate that 187,000 infants under one year die in this country annually and that 98,000 of these fall to survive the first month. The cities in which the studies were conducted, in co-operation with local health authorities, were Johnstown, Pa.; Manchester, N. H.; Brockton, Mass.; Saginaw, Mich.; New Bedford, Mass.; Waterbury, Conn.; Akron, Ohio and Baltimore Md.

Other deductions from the study were that the mortality among exclusively artificially fed babies was three or four times greater than among the exclusively breast fed; that first born children have a slightly higher mortality than second born; and that the mother's age did not have any "marked influence" on the rate except in the case of the first born.

In the racial classification, which the report stressed as revealing important factors in mortality, Jewish babies were shown to be the healthiest. The order of increase in the death rate was given as "native white, German, Italian, colored, Polish, French-Canadian, and Portuguese."

"Irrespective of all other factors" the report said, "it was discovered that the infant rate varies inversely with the earnings of the father."

STOLEN TRUNK CONTAINED $75,000 GEMS AND JEWELRY

Chicago, May 10—Theft of a trunk containing diamonds and jewelry valued at $75,000, while it was being transferred from a residence to a railroad station was reported to the police by Ernest Strauss, salesman for three New York city jewelry firms. Three men drove up to the unguarded transfer wagon and made off with the trunk, according to witnesses. Strauss said he was the victim of a similar robbery in Cincinnati in 1923.

Putting Down Eggs.

The season has arrived when eggs are cheapest. The thrifty housewife should buy a supply now that will last through the high price season. The eggs may be preserved in good condition for 10 to 12 months.

The shell of the egg is permeable to air, and with the air comes the micro-organisms which cause spoilage. If conditions can be made unfavorable to the growth of these organisms, the eggs will keep. Cold storage eggs are stored at a temperature below which these tiny organisms can grow. But this is impracticable for the housewife. Her method is to pack the eggs in something that will keep out the air. That something most frequently and satisfactorily used is waterglass prepared as follows:

1. Mix the solution—one part water glass to eigh parts of boiled cool water.

2. Pack the eggs in layers in an earthen crock, point down. Wipe clean any soiled eggs, using a cloth dampened with vinegar.

3. Pour the solution over the eggs. Make sure it covers two inches above the top layer.

4. Cover the crock to prevent evaporation.

5. Store in a cool dry place.

Caution: No old, cracked or thin shelled eggs should be stored. Infertile. April, May or June eggs can be used.

The first regularly organized club in Massachusetts playing the present style of baseball was the Olympic club of Boston, which was established in 1854, and in the following year participated in the first match game in that locality, its opponents being the Elm Tree team.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

WHO SAYS FILM ACTING IS EASY?

Many Narrow Escapes in Making of "The Re-Creation of Brian Kent."

Fate played an important part in the filming of external scenes for the Principal Pictures production of Harold Bell Wright's "The Re-Creation of Brian Kent," which will be seen at the Palace theatre today, Tuesday and Wednesday. Without the aid of Lady Luck the title might have finished disastrously, for on several occasions the company, or its individual members, narrowly escaped serious and perhaps fatal injuries.

When the company was on its way to a location on the Pitt River the heavy stage used for transporting the troupe, safely negotiated a steep descent on one of the mountain roads, but on rounding the curve to start again on its upward climb there was a crash and a scream as the back end of the cumbersome vehicle as one of the axles snapped off. Had the accident occurred but a moment sooner, the result would have been fatal, for just a few inches of roadway separated the huge wheels from the edge—and oblivion.

Only a day later the scene called for the felling of a giant pine tree. The tree was sawed, chopped and properly wedged to fall away from the camera and Kenneth Harlan and Helene Chadwick who were enacting their scene at its base. For some unknown reason the tree fell directly towards Miss Chadwick, who, excited by the cries of various members of the troupe, stood rooted to the ground no knowing which way to move. The seconds were as hours while Sam Wood, the director, ran forward, grabbed Miss Chadwick by the hand and iron with her to safety just as the big tree crashed to the ground. A matter of inches saved the star's life and the coolness of Director Wood in the emergency accounts for her being in Hollywood today.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

When you think of a good show and standard entertainment, the Broadway Theatre is the show place that will enter your mind at once. Such shows that have been seen at that popular playhouse for the past several weeks, has built up a reputation that is only equalled in the largest theatres in the land.

The management is offering for the first of the week another one of those famous B. F. Keith Vaudeville and picture programs. A glance at the following list of acts will again convince you.

Frank Work & Co., opens the program with an eccentric comedy acrobatic offering that will start the merry wave of laughter rolling along.

Ruby Wallace and Artie Barton in "Movie Mad" give an idea how the malady affects one. It is full of bright dialogue and clever songs.

Besson and Demay follow up this comedy lead with some more sure fire laughs as only they know how to deliver them.

Minna Daniels in "Waiting at the Crossroads," have a unique comedy variety offering, consisting of comedy songs and dance with comedy interspersed. Three people are featured, the whole set off by a beautiful setting.

Mahoney and Talbert "Those Melodious Chaps" in comedy and song they endeavor and succeed in pleasing the ears of this old earth and broadening its smile.

Paul Savoy and The Alibu Sisters in "Past and Present" visualizes the yesterday and today of song, dance and music. These three acts are joined together with a fine line of comedy. The ofering is lavishly produced and the costumes are unusual. Harmony is the keynote all through.

Madge Bellamy, said by many cameramen and directors to be the most beautiful girl in pictures, has the featured feminine role in "A Fool and His Money," the Columbia Picture coming to the Broadway Theatre today for three days.

Other featured players are William Haines, Stuart Holmes, Alma Bennett, Edwards Davis, Charles Conklin and Carrie Clark Ward. The production is by Erle C. Kenton and is an adaptation of the famous novel of the same name by George Barr McCutcheon.

A new Kinograms will also be seen.

Breed Theater

The eternal struggle between two distinct and rending passions—the one purely animal and sensual which subjugates all the finer qualities of man; and the other a noble honorable love which fights for supremacy—is the daring subject which forms the basic plot of Wife of the Centaur. The picture, which opened last night at the Breed theater for an engagement of 3 days, is a King Vidor production.

Torn by the conflict of his dual emotions, a passion which thirsts for new fields to conquer, and an idealistic love, Jeffrey Davis, poet and writer runs the gamut of numerous short-lived flirtations and affairs.

His baser side satiated, Jeffrey like the fabled centaur who was half man and half beast, tires of his conquests and finally marries his idealistic love, and remains faithful to her even though tempted by the other half of his mate.

John Gilbert, who plays the difficult and unsympathetic role of the centaur, gives a performance that should strengthen materially the success he gained with his work in Elinor Glyn's His Hour, and in The Snob.

As the "centaur's" wife, Eleanor Boardman achieves a dramatic quality which is most convincing; Aileen Pringle plays the thoughtless, sensuous creature who lures Jeffrey to her but finally loses him to the wife.

In the supporting cast are such well known players as William Haines, Kate Lester, Philo McCullough, Betty Francisco, Kate Price, Jacquelin Gaddon, Lincoln Stedman and others.

Wife of the Centaur is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, adapted to the screen from Cyril Hume's novel of the same name.

Slater Hall Musical Course

This Monday evening, May 11th, the famous Flonzaley Quartet will appear in Slater Hall, under the auspices of the Norwich Free Academy.

Its name has become synonymous with all that is noblest and most dignified in the branch of the divine art it practices.

Anything more perfect than the playing of the Flonzaley Quartet is almost impossible to conceive.

In America the growing taste for chamber music has been largely developed by the tours of the Flonzaley Quartet and also by the ever increasing circulation of Victor Records played by it.

These records are a means of education for other string quartets which are being formed all over the country as they reproduce the delicate playing and exquisite artistry for which the Flonzaley Quartet is famous.

This season they arrived in the United States much earlier than has been their custom, for their season continues to increase at each end. Before they have finished this year, on the Pacific Coast they will have played over one hundred concerts and will have appeared in public recitals over 2400 times.

Tickets $2.00, tax free. Tickets are on sale at the Cranston Co., Broadway.

DANIELSON

Motorists Hereabouts are little concerned about what employes of the state highway department say, or how they feel, about what was printed in this column a week ago this morning, riactive to oiling long stretches of state highway on a Saturday just before the noon hour, when traffic is reaching its peak of the week, and leaving these stretches a mess of muck for any driver to get through as best he might. What happened a week ago last Saturday between the southern boundary of this town and Central Village is history. There is no disputing the facts. If proof of the assertions made in this column a week ago this morning are wanted, they can be produced before any appointed tribunal at any time or place. Motorists who bear the brunt of state highway upkeep and are largely the source from which state highway department employes get their bread and butter—are not to be deterred from being heard through the press because some state highway foreman in a small town gets peeved over a little adverse publicity, even if he isn't personally concerned in it. The people of the state of Connecticut are still "the state." They pay the bills that hire the help. They are entitled to be heard—and will be, rest assured of that. They may read what is said about them when they do something they should not do, and know it, or should not be, but hope to get away with it, but whether they read it or not, it will be said just the same. And income owners who are taxed right and left and are the mainstay in the upkeep of the state highways are not to be considered mere cattle, when their rights are involved and their lives and property are the stake of inefficiency or incompetence on the part of some highway crew, wherever that crew happens to be operating or regardless of its personnel. The automobilists are not asking for anything extraordinary—merely for a display of common sense, as regards their rights under the law.

State highway crews do not pay for smashed automobiles or broken necks due to leaving stretches of state highway a mess of oil. The penalty falls on the automobilists, who ask nothing more than a safe passage over any trunk line they travel and if they do not get it they may be expected to tell the world about it. Because, again, they pay the bills.

If there is a fish in the waters about East Killingly after the lapse of another two years it may be well to catch the specimen for preservation in some natural history museum. So popular are the reservoirs about that place with fishermen that the anglers may be counted by the score, on any afternoon or night. There are those who are willing to bet, even, providing proof can be provided, that there are more fishermen than fish up there in the course of any given week. And after all what does catching fish amount to if one has an outing?

Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of schools, does not think there is a decrease to speak of in the population of this city. He bases his belief on the attendance at Israel Putnam and Smith street schools, which ought to be an excellent barometer.

FIRE LOSS WAS $15,000 AT GLADDING PLACE, THOMPSON

(Special to The Bulletin).

Putnam, May 10.—A house of the J. R. Galdding estate in Thompson, occupied by Edward P. Jones and family was was destroyed by fire Saturday. The house contained a large dining-hall, where Mr. and Mrs. Jones served meals to gardeners and other employees of the Gladding estate. They also had three lodgers, and one of them, Raymond Foster, had an eye injured while trying to salvage furniture. Medical attention was necessary, but the sight was not injured.

The fire was discovered about 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Mr. Jones returned home from Putnam and put his car, a Chevrolet, in the garage, entered his home and went to bed. Half an hour later the driver of another automobile while coming down Thompson hill noticed that the garage was afire. He aroused the family but the garage was then enveloped in flames which soon set the house afire.

There were no appliances for fighting the blaze and the efforts of the family and of neighbors who had gathered were directed to saving as much of the contents of the house as possible. Nearly everything on the lower floor (it was a two story building) was carried out.

The pump and the chemical truck and a score of Putnam firemen responded to a call for help, but as there was no water available and although the men remained there for two hours, they could do little more than help save the household effects. Mr. Jones is unable to explain what started the fire in the garage. He said everything seemed to be all right when he locked the car in. The amount of the loss has been estimated at $15,000.

In the winter of 1922, Mr. Jones lived at Pomfret Center. A spark from a locomotive set fire to the house late in the night and house and contents were entirely consumed. He and his wife and children escaped in their night clothes.

TWO CARS ARE WRECKED AT SOUTH KILLINGLY HILL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, May 10—Two Buick cars were wrecked Sunday morning at the foot of Hall's Hill at South Killingly, but of the six people who were in the machines, none was seriously injured and minor bruises or mere scratches were the lot of those who suffered at all.

Clarence F. Andrews of North Haven, driving a new sedan, was the first to come to grief. His car skidded on a patch of highway through which recently applied oil was seeping, whirled around and fell over on its side. Neither Mr. Andrews nor the two people who were with him received any injuries of consequence. The car was materially damaged. As is natural under the circumstances and on highways where there is a burden of traffic on Sundays, a number of cars halted to view the wreck. Such was the picture at the foot of the hill—the overturned sedan and the parked cars —when John B. Morriarty, driving a coupe, came over the top of the hill and saw the aggregation below. He applied the brakes to his car, probably a bit too impetuously, and an instant later his car skidded and flopped over. Neither he nor his companion in the car was injured, though they had a thrill and a shaking up. State Officer A. W. Williams, of the Danielson barracks, inspected the wrecks and took the facts concerning them.

MRS. LUCY D. HUTCHINS DIES IN HER 97TH YEAR

The death Saturday afternoon at the home of Miss Carrie Chamberlin, on Hawkins street, of Mrs. Lucy Danielson Hutchins, 96, is of special concern to all interested in Danielson and its history, for Mrs. Hutchins was a descendant, in the seventh generation, of Elisha Danielson, who came into this territory in 1707, a year before the incorporation of Killingly as a town. He was destined to have the borough named in honor of the family and to write into the history, through his descendants as well as through his own activities, much that will endure as long as there is recorded history of this community and what has been done here.

Mrs. Hutchins was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hezekiah Danielson and was born here January 30, 1829, being in her 97th year. Through all of her nearly a century of life Mrs. Hutchins had made her home here. Late in life she was married to John Hutchins, also of an old Killingly family. Mr. Hutchins died a number of years ago.

Mrs. Hutchins leaves two brothers, Henry M. Danielson and Daniel Danielson, both residents of Danielson. Another brother, dead these many years, was John Danielson, a prominent figure in the management and operation for a long time of the mills now known as the Quinebaug, but in those days known as the Lockwood mills. The old Danielson homestead—that of the branch of the family of which Mrs. Hutchins was a member—is now the site of Killingly High school.

SUNDAY EXCURSION TRAINS

When the public utilities commission of Massachusetts declined to permit the running of Sunday excursion trains in response to petitions that had been made to it with that purpose in view, it rendered a decision in keeping with expectations. Those who made the protest were acting in behalf of sunday observance, and while the commission has not gone on record as opposed to Sunday excursions it did find opportunity to point out that in order to be consistent there is no reason for the placing of restrictions on the railroads when other forms of transportation are not restricted and the refusal to allow Sunday excursion trains would simply mean adding the congestion of the highways. Likewise it emphasized the fact that inasmuch as recreation and sports, and education, through the opening of museums and public institutions of such a character, are sanctioned on Sunday there is no reason why those who can enjoy them through the services of an excursion train should be denied the opportunity, or that the handicap should be placed upon only one form of transportation.

Instead of finding grounds for stopping the excursion trains the commission holds to the contrary that such trains when run have been well patronized by people who were orderly and were availing themselves of their use for the purposes of recreation and education, that the trains were not detrimental to the observance of the Lord's day and did not interfere with the observance by others as a day of rest.

With the bars let down for the recreational and educational purposes referred to, with sports permitted to a certain degree, the railroads could not be held responsible for such changes. Inasmuch as many people would take advantage of opportunities for recreation, to enjoy sports and to visit museums, which they would not do at any other time there was no reason why only certain means of transportation could be utilized. The excursion train, regardless of the day it may be run, serves great numbers who could not afford anything else.

PEARL HARBOR DEFENSES

Concerning that recent bulletin of the Pacific for the testing of the defenses of Hawaii it can be expected that there will be those on each side to claim the advantage. Whatever the final decision concerning the relative merits of the attack and the defense the manoeuver is bound to serve as a demand for the strengthening of the defenses of Pearl harbor.

As much as we desire peace and are going to strive to maintain it, the time certainly has not come when there can be sidetracked all thought of defense any more than we can think of abandoning our navy. When that time will come no one knows. There have been reasons for believing that it will be the outcome of the last war, but there are times and actions when such a hope meets with much discouragement. To bask in the shade of a false protection is exceedingly dangerous. We have not reached the time when it can be said we can afford a delay even to the point of being too late. We had a severe lesson in the method of reasoning back in 1903-1918.

It is not to be inferred that we should proceed to fortify the Hawaiian islands as if there was no interest in and no agreement existing in regard to disarmament. We do not need to proceed in a manner that would create suspicion in the minds of other nations We must be mindful of the fact that our example has been given much weight in the recent past and we cannot afford to have that view upset.

Nevertheless the maneuvre has provided the opportunity for demonstrating the weakness of that important point, especially in connection with the defense of the islands, and the importance of the proper defense of that outpost in defending our Pacific Coast. Pearl harbor is due to come in for increased attention in the future, with a different basis existing for seeking increased outlays there than has prevailed in the past.

ONE CLASS SHIPS

Those who have traveled abroad know that accommodations and service on shipboard depend upon the class of passage that is paid for, with few exceptions. First class means the best in everything the ship affords, room, decks, food and service. Second class may perhaps provide all that is required but it means a limitation upon the parts of the ships that may be visited. It is impossible to get in touch with the first class passengers unless they come to the second class quarters. Likewise the third class also has its even greater limitations.

The American Marine association in taking up the many problems of the shipping business has been presented by E. A. Filene of Boston with a plan for doing away with such classification. He would do the same as certain [illegible] are doing during the summer in order to attract [illegible] directions. He would have one-class liners, making the minimum rate for round trip with sleeping quarters $100 instead of $155, which is now the third class rate, and he would have the meals outside of the fare, on the European plan so that all customers could be treated alike and it would be possible to make the trip for $25 for food. He would also let all passengers have the run of the ship and those who desired the better sleeping quarters, or rooms, would pay in accordance therewith above the minimum.

This would of course mean a marked change in the method of dealing with passenger traffic on the high seas. Except for the experiments which are being made in that direction during the summer there seems to be no indications that such a radical move is pending. But it does no harm to make the suggestion, or to consider the possibilities that would follow. Such a plan might receive stronger endorsement on ships of this country than would on those of other countries where the class line is more sharply drawn and emphasized. It will be interesting to note what the association [illegible] after careful [illegible] it.

LIQUOR RAIDS IN LOWER EAST SIDE, NEW YORK

New York, May 10.—After making 20 arrests and seizing alleged liquor and alcohol valued at more than $1500 in eleven places on the lower East Side last night and early this morning, Prohibition Agent Peter Reager was assaulted and beaten by four men who had offered to direct him to a "speak easy" in the "Hell's Kitchen" district.

Reager gained entrance to the saloons by offering to put on a song and dance act for the patrons, which he did, to allay suspicion before making his arrests.

Reager's partner, William McCay fired eight shots at Reager's assailants and chased them into a tenement house. The shots attracted the attention of more than a dozen patrolmen attached to the West 30th and West 47th street police stations. Although the patrolmen formed a cordon around the block and conducted a systematic search they were unable to locate the four men. Reager was treated by an ambulance surgeon for a fractured nose, lacerations of the face and two discolored eyes.

Cod Liver Oil in Sugar Coated Tablets For Puny Kids

Forget the nasty tasting, stomach upsetting cod liver oil and give the thin, puny, underdeveloped children McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets if you want to give them a good appetite and put pounds of good, healthy flesh on their bones.

Doctors know all about them and so does Lee & Osgood Co., and all good pharmacists all over America, for they are in great demand, because they are not laggards but show results in a few days.

They are not expensive either—60 tablets—60 cents and children take them like candy.

A very sickly child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in seven months and is strong and healthy.

One skinny woman gained 9 pounds in 24 days.

SERMONS IN CHURCHES ARE APPROPRIATE TO MOTHER'S DAY

Mother's Day formed the theme of the Sunday evening service at the Central Baptist church. In the absence of Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church, who is attending the 75th anniversary of Rochester Theological seminary, the pulpit was occupied at both morning and evening services by Rev. E. E. Gates, executive secretary of the Connecticut Baptist convention. Special music by the Sunday school orchestra and a double quartette was rendered during the evening service.

There was a large attendance at the service which opened at 7:30 p. m. After paying a fitting tribute to the memory of his own mother Rev. Mr. Gates said that in his sermon he was going to turn the thoughts of the congregation to Jesus Christ and Jesus' mother. He called attention to the seven words from the cross, dwelling at length upon Jesus' disciple—"Woman behold thy son! son behold thy mother." Jesus Christ honored His mother, said Rev. Mr. Gates. He continually honored His mother and His Father.

In the supreme moment of life, a true man's thoughts turn to his mother, said the preacher. Abraham Lincoln said, "All that I am I owe to my angel mother." William McKinley, before a great concourse of people, after he had taken the oath as president, turned and kissed the withered cheek of an elderly woman: that woman was his mother.

Jesus Christ, Son of God and Son of man, turned His thoughts to His mother, while on the cross. As Jesus looked into the face of His mother He saw sacrifice. He saw suffering. Alan does not suffer alone, Rev. Mr. Gates then went on to picture the pathetic heart suffering of the mother of whose son goes wrong, is found guilty and condemned. What did Jesus see as He looked into His mother's face? He saw a homeless mother. Turning to His beloved disciple He said in effect, If you love Me, look after My mother. In the supreme moment of His life Jesus emphasized the family life. The home life is absolutely necessary for the permanence of our national life.

Pastors in other churches of the city made their sermons appropriate to Mothers Day and at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church nosegays were presented to all mothers in attendance at the morning service.

MARY, PATTERN OF MOTHERS, FR. REILLY'S SERMON THEME

Preaching at the second of the three masses in St. Patrick's church Sunday, to a congregation that filled every pew, while many persons stood in the vacant space at the rear of the auditorium, Rev. John J. Reilly, Mgr. May's junior assistant, signalized Mother's Day by a tribute to "The Mother of Christ, the Ideal Mother." He referred to his subject as one to which prophets, preachers and poets from ages past have consecrated their efforts and made the object of their sublimest productions, in art and literature; a subject that was the inspiration of a thousand works of beauty in every form, be it words, or painting, or sculpture; a subject on which the greatest minds the world has ever known have lavished their mental effort and artistic ability; one that has brought to light the remarkable genius of a Dante in poetry, the are of a Raphael in painting and the allmost inspired utterances of a Lacordaire in the pulpit. The subject is the Blessed Virgin Mary, the mother of God.

The glory of the Mother of God, the position she occupies toward God and toward us, the duties we have toward her and the sweet and heart-to-heart friendship we client ourselves of if we do not know her, all provide an inexhaustible mine of things to think upon. All around the world at this time of the year, the month of May, the devoted children of Mary are paying her the homage she loves to receive from them. The cobbled streets of Belgium are resounding with the tread of many of her admirers in public procession; the winding paths in mountainous Italy are thick with the inhabitants of the nearby villages, en route to their favorite shrines; Catholic Ireland is echoing from one end to the other with praise of the Mother of God; immortal music is charming the grateful skies as on their rosaries our mother's children pray. From a thousand shrines the cries are rising to her great heart and Lourdes is showing forth in a feast day manner and Loretto is looking at her best; and you may be sure the little chapel of our Lady of Victories, set in the midst of the roar and the din of worldly Paris, is crowded with worshippers at every hour; and in this little sanctuary the Mother God and men is being honored, her praises are being sung and as she looks out on a world that cares little for her and her Son she must take delight in the staunchness of the ones who love her.

And perhaps the time for honoring Mary seems more fitting still since all around today they are celebrating Mother's Day. Even the minds of worldly men in whom a thought above the grosser things in life scarcely ever finds fruitful soil, forgetful of self for the moment, are turning their attention to where motherhood holds sway. That being, loved by all of us, the thought of whom gives rise to so much that is noble in man, and sends a thrill through our ordinary selfish hearts, who is an inspiration to our lives and brings out the best in all of us, she is receiving what she has merited a thousand times over, universal homage from hearts today. For where in this wide worl d isthe heart that does not throb and beat a little faster when he thinks of his own dear mother? And can there be a heart that is not strengthened and urged on to higher things when inspired by a mother, or stimulated by a mother's wish? And, where can that heart be found that does not mourn, the eye that doesn't swell, if the voice of a mother is put a faint echo amid the hills of memory?

God has placed motherhood on a pedestal, even in this life, and there it stands, enthroned above all else, where all the world can come and offer it the tribute it deserves.

For it's a wonderful thing—a Mother!

Other folks can love you, but only your mother understands!

She worries for you, looks after you, loves you.

Forgives you anything you may do, understands you, and then the only thing bad she ever does to you is to die and leave you!

But if this place that motherhood holds is high and isolated from the things in life, to just so great a degree of bageness and lowness does the child descend, who does not honor the mother he has, or who, with unnatural feeling would add a care to the life of, or whiten the hair of, a mother that had given him his all.

Oh, sorrowing, sinless, sacrificing mothers of this world, think of God's Mother, and her toiling in the little house at Nazareth, following with her motherly heart the progress of her Divine Son. Never was there such a Son, but never was there such a mother! Mary is the pattern for mothers of the world; their lives, their actions, should be imitative of hers.

And grateful, loving, devoted, respectful children of this world, think often of the first Child of Mary and His grateful heart, think of Christ as the Son of Mary, think of Him, always anxious to do her will; never a cause of worry, never a cause of sorrow, to her motherly heart!

The love we give our natural parents lends strength to the love we give the mother of Christ. Men and women love Mary more because they love their own mothers: and when grown men pray to honor Mary, there rises in their hearts a sweet half-conscious remembrance of their own dear mothers and this fond memory lends a tenderness to the thoughts of her. Mary has drawn to herself the charm and the sweetness of the pure love for all mothers. Our mothers die, and their love would pass and be forgotten, did not the immortal motherhood of Mary draw to itself and make perpetual, the strength and the sweetness of the devotion we paid to them.

The eloquent young preacher praised the idea of setting apart a "Mother's Day," in this era of emancipated feddists. "The American Society of Home-wreckers," who advocate and practice the unnatural crime politely referred to as birth control.

PRESENTS POPE'S PORTRAIT WITH PAPAL BLESSING

At an open meeting Sunday afternoon at the K. of C. home, preceding the regular meeting of Rev. Daniel Mullen assembly, Fourth Degree, Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. H. May gave an especially instructive talk upon his trip to Rome, speaking especially of the recreational and educational work that is carried on in Italy under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, which has been developed and fostered by this organization since the World war. Mgr. May told his hearers that the activities of the Knights of Columbus are of great interest to Pope Pius XI who gives his cordial endorsement to the work they are pursuing.

Mgr. May related the incidents of his audience with the pope in which he asked a special blessing for White Cross council and Rev. Daniel Mullen assembly, this being graciously granted by His Holiness for the members of both organizations and their families.

Mgr. May presented the assembly a very fine portrait of the pope, engrossed with the papal blessing just as it had been delivered to him to transmit to the Norwich organizations. Faithful Navigator Thomas H. Beckley received the portrait on behalf of the assembly with words of deep gratitude for the highly prized gift.

At the business meeting of the assembly preparations were taken up for the fourth degree which will be conferred in Bridgeport, May 31. It is expected that there will be 15 or 20 candidates from this district. Thomas H. Beckley and Walter G. Casey were elected delegates to the convention in New Haven next Sunday.

TRACKLESS TRAIN MAKES ENTRY INTO NORWICH

America's first trackless train, which is sent out by Metro Goldwyn pictures, spent part of Saturday and Sunday in this city. It was stationed for a time in the evening at the Breed theater and later was driven to Franklin square, where it attracted an immense crowd.

The train is on its way across the continent from New York to Los Angeles before going to Europe. This widely heralded wonder consists of a locomotive with tender and Pullman car, the locomotive housing two 90-horse power motors. This novel transport has already proved its reliability in a trip from Indianapolis to New York, made on schedule time, and is now crossing the country from coast to coast in the interest of better national roads.

The Pullman car, containing dining and sleeping accommodations for five persons, is luxuriously appointed. It has a kitchenette and buffet and is lighted, heated and ventilated electrically. There is hot and cold running water and a radio equipment for entertainment.

The observation platform is a remarkable innovation in motor transportation being furnished with lounge chairs and permitting of unobstructed scenic observation. The locomotive is complete with bells, whistles, hydraulic brakes and every other device necessary for safe highway transportation.

Two Calls For Fire Department

The fire department responded to two telephone calls Saturday. At 11:14 o'clock Saturday morning, the department was called out for a supposed fire in the house at No. 28 Grant Court, occupied by John Andrews. The firemen found that a backdraft had caused the smoke and that there was no fire.

At 11:18 o'clock a call came in for a chimney fire at the Chelsea Lunch, Franklin square. Twelve gallons of chemicals were used to extinguish the fire.

THREE CUPRAK SUITS FOR $33,500 DAMAGES

The Interstate Trucking Co. of New Bedford, Mass., and Louis Cuprak of Norwich have been made the defendants in two suits totaling damages of $33,000 brought by Helen Cuprak, minor daughter of Louis Cuprak and Blanche Cuprak, a son of Louis Cuprak. The suits have been filed as a result of injuries which the defendants claim they suffered in an accident on North Main street March 17 when the machine in which they were riding, driven by Louis Cuprak, collided with a truck owned by the Interstate Trucking Co.

Louis Cuprak, one of the defendants in the above suits, has also sued the Interstate Trucking Co. for damages of $3,500 for damage to his automobile and personal injuries as the result of the collision. The place of collision on March 17th last was at a point north on North Main street about 8:45 o'clock in the evening. It is alleged in the writs that Louis Cuprak and the plaintiff drove the defendants' truck, in charge of Louis Watson, parked on the road near Six Rods with no lights, the truck having been stopped there for the purpose of making repairs.

Plaintiff drove his machine into the rear of the truck and as the result of the crash, his machine was damaged and he was injured. He claims a cost of $400 to repair the machine.

Helen Cuprak, who is suing Louis Cuprak and the trucking company, is the daughter of the latter and was riding in the machine and driven by the trucking company's employee, parking the truck where it was. A similar claim is made by Blanche Cuprak, who is seeking $5,000. Louis Cuprak is seeking damages of $25,000.

FRANCE HAS NOT RECEIVED AMERICAN DEBT NOTE

Paris, May 10—The French foreign office this evening expressed complete ignorance regarding any debt note which it was reported from Washington the American government had forwarded to Myron T. Herrick, the American ambassador for transmission to the French government.

A resumption of negotiations at Paris regarding a settlement of the French debt to the United States would cause no surprise. It is said that this would be the logical outcome of the conversations M. Daladier, the French ambassador has been having on the subject since he took up his post in Washington.

The French say they will welcome any suggestion emanating from Washington on the debt question since Mr. Herrick brings up the matter at any time. There is a feeling that the conversations between M. Daladier and the American government have reached the stage where the French government must be consulted on some basic starting point for negotiations and a final settlement agreed upon.

Mr. Herrick has been absent from Paris since Wednesday. He will return tomorrow.

PLAINFIELD TEAM FALLS BEFORE ATTACK OF ACADEMY TEAM'S BATS

Plainfield came, it saw, but in the way of conquering it failed and was sent back to its native town, tasting the bitter pill of defeat by a score of 8-2. It was the first time in three years that a Plainfield nine met with disaster in an encounter with the Academy. The Plainfield boys were rather confident that they would take home the bacon, having recently won from a team that represented Bryant and Stratton of Providence, but they were mistaken in their expectations as the Red and White have met better teams this year with better results. To compare ——nt and Stratton with the local aggregation was impossible, this being proven by the outcome of Saturday's contest.

Plainfield must be given credit for one thing, that is it had some fine fighting spirit in its machine and it made the home team do its best to win. Although making errors that netted their opponents runs, they came to bat, time and time again, displaying good work with the clubs, hitting Lefty Jarvis for eleven hits. However, these hits were kept well scattered and did not amount to very much.

Jarvis, who received the mound assignment against the visitors did not pitch up to his true form, but his twirling far surpassed that of Baker who did the pill heaving for Plainfield Jarvis kept the ball well under control at all times while his opponents was wild and ineffective. Ten strikeouts were jotted down for Jarvis, while all that Baker could do was to strike out two.

Plainfield's runs were scored in the fourth and sixth innings of the game. In the fourth with one away, Allard socked the pill for a clean double to left field and stole third. Gallup the next man up obligingly fanned. French, the third batter hit a ground-er to Cimokoski, who threw to Burke, but Burke muffed the throw, making the Academy's only error of the game and allowing Allard to score. It was a lucky break for Plainfield. In the sixth the visitors again scored another run, when Allard walked, stole second and came home on French's extra base hit, to centerfield. With the exception of the fourth and sixth, Plainfield could not bunch its hits to do any real damage. An error by Burke and a base on balls to Allard were the direct means of Plainfield's two runs.

On the other hand, Baker's deliveries were no mysteries for the local batters to solve. They bunched their ten hits and taking advantage of the wild playing of their opponents, scored 8 runs. In the first inning, the home team took the lead that was theirs until the finish of the contest. Carroll hit a grounder to Stevens, who juggled the ball, Carroll receiving first on the error. MacGowan hit a single to left field, Carroll going to second. Jarvis hit a hot liner to Stevens who made a nice stop, but could not hang on to the ball. The bases were now full. Hinrichs flied to Stevens. Brewer fanned, making it two out. Cimokoski was hit by a pitched ball forcing in Carroll for the first run. In the fourth, timely singles by Brewer, Burke and Mish coupled with errors by Plainfield went for two more runs. In the fifth three more tallies were added and the sixth and seventh each saw one run come in. The Academy had things pretty well its own way as the scoring indicates.

In the fifth inning the Academy suffered a setback when Mish, star catcher of the team was injured, spraining his ankle in a slide to second base. Mish had to be carried off the field and his place was taken by Hinrichs, who resigned the left field position to Busch. Mish's injury is only a minor one, but it may keep him from playing for a short time.

The individual stars of the game were McGowan, whose hitting for the Academy featured and Allard for Plainfield who in every way was the mainstay of his team. Allard brought in both runs for Plainfield while McGowan socked the apple for a double and two singles out of four times at bat.

An unusually large crowd witnessed the contest, showing that interest in the home nine has again been brought back, to its standard. The fans are realizing that the home nine has stuff in it of a fine team and are backing them with their presence at every contest. With the fans working in unison with the team in the way they did on Saturday, the team is due and will come through with the best that here is in them.

The Red and White will settle down for some stiff practice again on Monday in preparation for its second contest of the season with LaSalle Academy of Providence. La Salle won the previous contest by a close score of 3-1 and the home team will travel to Providence on Wednesday to even matters up. The score:

Notes on the Game

MacGowan certainly socked the pill Saturday, making three hits out of four trips to the plate. Captain MacRae a tooth pulled before the game and we wonder if that caused the slump.

Lefty Jarvis was not in his usual form, but nevertheless Lefty was able to chalk up ten strike outs.

Being a member of the track team has done our friend Smiling Johnny Greene a world of good. He raced after the infield flies in Nurmi fashion and what is more, he caught and robbed Plainfield of some sure hits. Johnny is getting better and better as the season grows older.

What would Plainfield do without Sonny Allard? We wonder what Allard will do to his team for losing the game. We advise Allard to make some radical reforms.

Baker seemed to be as high up in the air as an aeroplane that was seen flying over the field. He needed the papers badly, but as there no one there to take his place he suffered from Academitis.

Segal, last year's star pitcher for the Red and White witnessed the contest from the players' bench. Segal and Allard engaged in some conversational battles. Segal, of course, getting the best of them

BULKELEY BLANKS NEW HAVEN TEAM IN ONE-SIDED GAME

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 10—Closing its present baseball campaign of the so-called weaker rivals in the race for the State High School baseball championship, Bulkeley had an easy time in defeating New Haven Commercial High in a slow encounter by an 8 to 0 score. The Orange and Black players seemed to enter in the spirit of an easy opponent and failed to show up as strong as usual during the game. Only for flashes of brilliance in the field and hitting the Bulkeley team would have found the going much rougher than it really did in event a stronger rival had opposed the nine Saturday afternoon.

The big guns of the Bulkeley offense were silent. The New Haven pitching was nothing extra and the cause could not have been traced to this means of an attempt to run down the defect. There was no dash about the play at all. The interest seemed to wane and the 1,500 odd spectators sensed the difference in play of the local contenders for the state title. But the poor work maybe excused with the usual, "off day" that every team is bound to experience throughout a season, and it is fortunate that it fell on Saturday and not when the Orange and Black was opposing a really strong nine.

New Haven Commercial High came here with a team which usually makes up the run of the less stronger nines in the state. The buts of Elm City players were more or less silent during the afternoon. If they were deadly in any previous game in which this nine engaged in they must have been stopped by the masterly hurling of Bulkeley's third rate pitcher, Montali. Montali had everything his own way at all times. Even though he was in tight positions due to errors at times, he was always the complete master of the situation. He hung up a total of 14 strikeouts, nine of these coming directly after the clean up man on the New Haven nine had a chance to do a lot of cleaning up. Geno started with D. Poley, and continued until the beginning of the fourth game in when time he fanned nine Commercial batters in a row. In the second and third, the side was retired on strikes in their order.

To off set the unsteady defense at times, two double plays behind Montali's fine twirling helped in keeping the score to a blank. With a man on first base in the sixth and eighth frames, Gaetano at short stop with the help of Barry at second and Mansfield at first completed two double plays. This was the only flash of brilliance during the afternoon in defensive lines.

Probably the best opportunity the visitors had to score was in the very first frame. J. Poley, a half pint individual, had four balls tossed to him. Davis was hit by a pitched ball, but that was as far as the Elm City players reached, when Montali began his fine straight strike out spell.

Bulkeley had a man on the base in the first frame but no scoring came of it. In the next frame clean hitting accounted for the first run. Both Smalley and Daniels. Booth was out going to third and after Gaetano walked Mansfield singled and Daniels counted. Bulkeley enjoyed its best inning in the third when four runners crossed the plate. Barry started with a single to center. A steal and an error by the New Haven second sacker brought Hutchinson on second and Barry on third. Sheflott hit one of the short stop's shins for a hit and Barry counted. Booth hit a lofty fly to left which the Elm city fly chaser misjudged and Booth completed the circuit with two before him. The remainder of the order were helpless.

No player from the visitors reached as far as third, the pitching was too tight for them to fathom. Mancilla singled in the fourth but nothing came of it. In its half of the inning Bulkeley chalked up another score. Joe Barry walked and stole second. Sheflott dropped a single in left and Barry counted. Brown was replaced by a substitute Rafael in the sixth. Hutchinson beat out a hit to short stop. A steal and Booth's single accounted for the run off Rafael. Sheflott walked in the eighth. Booth grounded out to first and Daniels and Gaetano followed with singles counting Sheflott.

Booth again led the hitting with three safe blows out of five times at the plate. One of his hits being recognized as a home. The remainder of the schedule will be the toughest part of the championship road which Bulkeley has elected to travel. The score:

PURCELL'S HOMER IN 11TH WINS FOR HILLIES

Bridgeport, May 10—Harry Purcell broke up a pitchers' duel between Johnny Horan and Luck Howe in the eleventh inning here this afternoon with a home run over the right field fence giving the Hillies a 3 to 2 victory over Bridgeport.

Frank Stapleton, ex-Bridgeport boy and manager of the Pittsfield club, was presented with a horse shoe wreath of flowers and a diamond stickpin by his Park city friends when he went to bat for the first time. He responded by hitting a home run in the seventh which tied the score. The score:

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 10—Brooklyn defeated the Cincinnati Reds today, 9 to 8, in the 12th inning when three runs were scored on a pair of doubles and two singles with two bases on balls. The Reds knocked Osborne out of the box and overcame a six-run lead in the eighth and forged ahead by two runs in the 12th when Rousch hit a home run with Pinelli on base. ## SISLER WELL ON ROAD TO BIG YEAR IN BASEBALL

St. Louis, Mo., May 10—(A. P.)—George Sisler, manager of the St. Louis Browns, not only has accomplished one of baseball's greatest "comebacks," but apparently is well on the road this year to one of his greatest seasons in baseball.

Forced out of the national pastime during the whole of the 1923 season by an attack of sinus trouble which impaired his vision, and which interfered considerably with his play last season, the "peerless" George this year seems destined to reach the highest pinnacle of baseball's supremacy.

Although he did manage to eke out a batting average of .305 last season, his all-around performance was not impressive, and many predicted he never would be a great player again.

But this year he has participated in 25 games, batting for an average of .408, several points better than he did at any time in his career. He has faced all kinds of pitching and has yet to participate in a game without obtaining one or more hits.

Paris, May 10—Paul Wiriath, the French runner, today broke the French record for one mile at the Pershing stadium. He covered the distance in 4 minutes 20 1-5 seconds in the twenty-[illegible] of the open challenge

Rotterdam, May 10—The Uruguayan soccer football team today defeated a Rotterdam eleven, 7 to 0.

ATHLETICS PROVIDE SENSATION OF LAST WEEK IN THE MAJOR LEAGUES

New York, May 10—The fourth week of major league baseball accomplished the double result of establishing early eastern supremacy in both circuits and in so clearly defining the status of every team that no position in the standing remained under dispute at the close.

With no lapse in the powerful hitting which carried them through the early season period of ineffective pitching, the Philadelphia Athletics claimed the major interest of baseball men by attaining and holding undisputed possession of first place in the American league through five victories in six starts against the Yankees and Cleveland Indians. Evidence of ability to rise to emergencies with a determined offensive thrust was seen in the fact that three of their triumphs were scored by single run margins, while an impressive rally in the tenth annexed a fourth verdict.

The rise of the Mackmen after more than ten years in the American League depths to the heights occupied by the championship machine of Baker, Collins, Plank, Bender, and other diamond immortals, accompanied brilliant pitching by the undefeated Sam Gray and timely hitting by Simmons, Bishop and Seller.

The Washington Senators, tripped in two games by Chicago and [illegible] drooped back to second place, while Cleveland, pacemakers of a week ago, were caught in the Philadelphia undertow.

The Brooklyn Robins, after a slow start, rallied sharply under improved hurlings by Grimes, Petty and Ehrhardt and contributed the week's best performance in the National by winning five of their seven games. Fournier's exceptional batting was an inspiration.

Braced by the terrific hitting of their pilot, Ty Cobb, the Detroit club outbatted and outscored the teams in both loops but failure of their pitchers to show signs of improvement prevent the Tigers from vaulting out of the pit on an even break for the week.

Unexpectedly good pitching which confronted both teams in the east checked Chicago at Boston and relegated the Giants and the New York Giants had to win only three of their five games to retain the National League lead.

The Browns remained in fifth place in the American with an even break for the week, content in their enthusiasm over the consecutive game hitting streak of George Sisler. The St. Louis National entry, breaking their long losing spell on the first day of the week, bore up by a display of hard hitting which did not subside even as they passed the portals of the polo grounds.

A revival of old time slugging coupled with a fair brand of pitching checked the steady drop of the Yankees, who were charged with two defeats by a single tally and with a third only afer an extra inning was required.

The Boston Braves put in their best week of the season, rising to sixth place on the crest of superlative mound performances by Genewich, Marquard, Cooney and Barnes.

The two six entries in the American, Boston and Chicago, failed to budge from their positions of a week ago, while the Robins and Phillies exchanged berths in the National to the advantage of the Brooklyn club.

AGGIE RUNNER SETS NEW RECORD FOR 2-MILE RUN

SUB BASE TO OPPOSE COLLEGE TEAMS THIS SEASON

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 10—After a lapse of two years from the extensive baseball schedule which was played by the Submarine Base, the gobs will resume activities with college nines in their early preparation for the busy season in the City league which faces the navy this year. This announcement has been made from the office of the City league president, William C. Fox, who will sponsor the Base's attempt to return to the type of baseball which is played by teams in the collegiate circles. With the City league in full swing the proposed early season games which will be played by the Submarine Base, there is no doubt that the success of the Base in this new line of endeavor will be favorable in every respect.

College teams which make their invasion of the New England states have already written the Submarine Base management in regards to games. But nothing has been done about this until the decision of the City league through the efforts of Mr. Fox, the president to busy himself in helping the Base put through their program of intensive baseball games. Georgetown which will make its annual invasion of the New England states shortly is understood to be one of the number of college nines which expects to take on the gobs.

In entering the City league into this agreement to support the proposed season with the Collegiate nines, one stipulation was made and that to have the games be played at Morgan Park in preference to the regular Sub Base grounds. This was agreed upon by the Base management and the stage is all set for the first number of games to be played. The Base has many of its last year's stars back in the lineup and is expected to furnish plenty of opposition to the leading college nines which will oppose it. It is understood that New London's own hero in the collegiate ranks, Johnny Dwyer will appear against the gobs in event that the management of the Base is successful in landing the Fordham nine to play here on their eastern trip which will include games with Boston college and other northern colleges.

In embarking upon the policy of playing college teams prior to the opening of the City league season which comes on May 12, it is understood from Base officials that the Base will not encounter the professional teams which the gobs have been accustomed in doing in the past. This year's policy was to include games in the City league only, but the chance to bring some fine college nines to oppose the gobs was an opportunity which was quickly grabbed by the Base management [illegible]

GIBBONS HAS BEATEN FOUR CHAMPIONS IN RING

New York, May 10—Tom Gibbons, St. Paul light-heavyweight, who comes east this week to start training for his match on June 5 with Gene Tunney, has the unique distinction of having defeated four champions without himself acquiring a useful crown.

Gibbons' first title triumph was a knockout over Chuck Wiggins, light heavyweight champion of Australia. His American citizenship prevented Gibbons from succeeding to the title.

He next defeated Georges Carpentier the light heavyweight champion of France, after which a journey to England brought him a knockout triumph over Jack Bloomfield, heavyweight champion of England, it took the St. Paul boxer only three rounds to stop Bloomfield, but he was never able to defend the crown.

Four months later Gibbons knocked out Kid Norfolk, negro light heavyweight champion, but once again he found a little triumph brought him a hollow victory.

The St. Paul man will be boxing another title-holder when he faces Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, but this time a new barrier to the throne will stand in Gibbons' way. Owing to the fact that the bout will be fought at weight exceed-victory for Gibbons would be importing the light-heavyweight limit, a ant only as qualifying him for a return meeting with Dempsey.

WESTERLY

George F. Clark, 72, a well known resident of Westerly died at his home 82 Grove avenue Saturday night. Mr. Clark's illness covered covered a period of a number of months.

He was born in Westerly, Oct. 24, 1852, the son of William and Elizabeth Frazier Clark. For nearly 42 years he was a pattern maker at the press works of C. B. Cottrell & Sons company. He was an ice cream manufacturer here for several years as successor to his father, disposing of the business to Irving True several years ago. In the days when bicycles were popular he was one of the pioneer agents and sold many of the first machines here.

Mr. Clark took great interest in sports and was particularly fond of boating. He was a charter mmeber of the Watch Hill Yacht club and belonged to the Colonial club of this town. He was one of the organizers of the Westerly Cycle club and was an active member in its early days when they were all cyclists.

He was united in marriage with Mary O. Spicer, daughter of the late Charles and Sarah Spicer, 52 years ago last November. They had a daughter Blanche, who died several years ago, and a son, Herbert P. Clark who is a reporter on The Westerly Sun. His wife, son and a granddaughter survive him. He was a member of the local Seventh Day Baptist church.

The Westerly Fire Department was called upon Saturday afternoon to respond to two fire alarms, in fact, the second alarm was cared for by a fire truck when returning to the station house after answering the first alarm, which was for a fire in the residence of Pasquale Lionetti, at 108 Central Park. Mrs. Mary Lionetti, who was in the yard at the time, told the firemen that the first she knew of the fire was when she saw the flames shooting from the kitchen. Fire Chief George Egger and Engineers McKenzie and Passetti with three pieces of apparatus responded, but were unable to lay any hose lines by reason of the absence of fire hydrants. A garden hose had been taken into the kitchen door, and with the use of extinguishers and pails of water the fire was put out, but not until the woodwork was burned and charred in the kitchen and adjoining room and plastering had fallen from pails of water thrown on the floor above. The furniture was removed across the street so that there was no damage to it from the fire, water or smoke. Damage done amounted to several hundred dollars.

A fire on the roof of King's Bottling Works at the rear of the Crandall block on Canal street caused fire alarm from box No. 57, High and Canal sts., to be sounded about 2.30 o'clock. The fire was said to have been caused by a bonfire started by employes of a local store, when a burning particle landed on the dry shingled roof over the storehouse just above the syrup room. A ladder was raised a hydrant stream was directed on the roof. Later the nozzle was changed and as the fire gained headway the hose stream was played from the ground on the burning shingles and soon had the fire out. The fire occurring in the business section on a Saturday afternoon was the cause of automobile traffic being diverted while the fire lines were on Canal street and traffic was sent under direction of the Westerly fire police up High street or Railroad avenue, causing a steady traffic of autos on High, Dixon streets and Railroad avenue. The flames damaged the roof to the extent of about $100 while water did some damage in the stockroom.

During April, there were recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk 22 births, seven marriages and 15 deaths last month, or in March the records showed no marriages for the month.

Daniel P. Burdick, 65, of 25 East avenue, Westerly was found dead, hanging from a rafter in a shed in the rear of his residence Saturday morning at 10.15 o'clock by his wife. Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called and pronounce ddeath due to strangulation with suicidal intent.

Mr. Burdick had been employed at the Victor Laundry, Pawcatuck, as an engineer, for the past 12 years, but two weeks ago lost his place. His act was due to brooding over loss of work, his wife declared. Patrolman Robert Kessel investigated the case.

Blodgett, presiding, which recessed Wednesday after several criminal matters had been disposed of, will open today (Monday) at 10.45 o'clock. There are several cases on the Westerly docket marked ready for trial at this term of the court. The petit jurors will report for duty.

NEW LONDON'S POLICE COMMITTEE WILL NOT REPORT TILL TUESDAY

New London, May 10.—It will be somewhat of a disappointment, to those who have followed the proceedings of the city council, to know that the committee that has been inquiring to ascertain whether the police force is efficient will not make its report to the city manager Monday evening. The committee has decided that the report will go to the city manager Tuesday, that he pass upon the testimony given to the committee and reach a conclusion as to what course shall be taken in the matter. It is believed possible that the city manager may decide to put a man at the head of the force temporarily that he may establish discipline and put into force rules that will hereafter govern the department. When this has been done, Capt. Pinney will be instructed to see that there shall be no deviation from the rules and that infraction of discipline meets speedy punishment. The inquiry has been finished some two months now and a report should be forthcoming, in the opinion of the councilors and of citizens generally.

City Manager Holt is expected to report on the matter of the city compensating W. J. Tracey for injuries he sustained some year or so ago by diving at Ocean beach from the raft, when he sustained serious wounds, his head coming in contact with a submerged pile. He has since been under medical and surgical treatment and has incurred considerable expense. The director of law has decided that the the city is not liable, but the matter has again come up, on the representation that the city is morally liable for the accident that befell Tracey. What view will be taken of the matter now is not known. The report of the city manager, after conference with the director of law, will be disclosed Monday evening.

Tuesday will be observed as Hospital day in New London when Lawrence Memorial hospital will seek the aid of its friends and well wishers in the way of donations that will be of service to the hospital in the months ahead. The hospital has done a great deal of good [illegible] hereabouts and when one considers it the work has been done without money or other compensation. It is to meet such demands that the aid of the people in general is being solicited. Thus there will be a generous response to the call there is no doubt. Each year the people disclose their good will toward the hospital.

The police were engaged throughout today putting a stop to youths using the streets as a baseball field, as the playing of the popular game resulted in numerous complaints being made.

Oskar Hill, 162 Bank street, who has been arrested three times within ten days, was arrested [illegible] this morning by Patrolman Frank Philopena, charged with intoxication. Hill was on Douglas street about 1 o'clock when he encountered Joe Govosky, 25 Douglass street, and with an exchange of harsh words, Govosky attacked and beat Hill. Govosky who also has a long police record on charges of intoxication, was taken into custody on a charge of breach of the peace. Hill was arrested May 3rd and 7th for intoxication and each time he was fined $10.

The exact amount of the shortage of the accounts of Robert C. Steiff, assistant mail clerk at the post office at the submarine base, has not been determined because of the failure of an inspector of the post office department at Boston to arrive in New London and conduct an investigation, but it is believed that the money alleged to have been stolen by Steiff will aggregate an amount in excess of the sum originally reported as missing, which was $400. Although a warrant has been issued for the arrest of Steiff, no trace of the man has been obtained by either the local or federal authorities.

A committee comprising members of Hiawatha Council, Daughters of Pocahontas, is arranging for memorial exercises of the order, which will take place in Odd Fellows hall Sunday evening next.

He was of advanced years and [illegible] Mrs. Heffernan, is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Francis Corcoran, of this city, and by two sons, John Geary, of Asheville, N. C., and Morris Geary, of Detroit, Mich. Nine grandchildren also survive. Mr. Geary had resided in New London the greater part of his life having removed to the home of his daughter about three years ago. He was a stone mason by occupation and was latterly employed by the city's highway department.

Charles Nott, Jr., was arrested late yesterday afternoon by Sergeant John Cavanaugh on a warrant issued by Acting Prosecutor Perry J. Hollandersky charging Nott with non-support, in failing to provide for his six year old child. Robert Nott was released on a bond of $200 furnished with his father, William H. Nott, as surety and will be in the police court Monday morning.

The municipal pier was damaged to the extent of $200 Saturday, when the navy tug 72, stationed at the submarine base crashed against the end of the wharf, carrying away about nine feet of stringer and demolishing several sections of planking. The tug was attempting a landing when the accident occurred.

Archibald S. MacFarlane has sold a house and lot, 34 Lester street, to William J. and Edith Ebersole.

A neighborhood row occurred at 65 Shaw street, this forenoon, when two women occupants of the building, Mrs. Bliven and Mrs. Caselin, gave a demonstration of temper. Mrs. Bliven was descending a flight of stairs with a pan of ashes, which she intended to deposit in a barrel in the yard. On the stairs she encountered Mrs. Caselin and as there had been a feeling between the women for some time, a war of words took place. Mrs. Caselin then knocked the pan of ashes from the hands of Mrs. Bliven and this resulted in the latter lodging complaint with the police. Sergeant John Cavanaugh went to the house and admonished the women as to their future conduct.

John Latham, 42 Summit avenue and Robert McKeovic, 21 Williams street, complained to the police late Saturday afternoon that while they were at the Y. M. C. A. Meridian and Church streets, earlier in the day a bicycle owned by George Mather, of Carroll court, was stolen.

MONTVILLE MAN JABBED WIFE WITH PITCHFORK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 10—Adolph Milefsky, of Montville, was taken into custody late Saturday night by State Officers Nelson and Rose, of Groton barracks, charged with assault upon his wife. He was a prisoner at the new London police station over night and this morning he was presented before Justice of the Peace Oscar Church at Montville. Milefsky pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs. He paid.

Milefsky had been drinking. It is claimed Saturday night and going to his home he engaged in a quarrel with his wife. After a war of words Milefsky is alleged to have seized a pitchfork and attacked his wife, although inflicting slight injuries. Complaint was made to the state police and Milefsky's arrest followed.

WM. H. PERKINS, OF JORDAN, RUN DOWN BY AUTOMOBILE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 10—William H. Perkins, about 75, residing in Jordan Village, was perhaps fatally injured late Saturday night when struck by a public service automobile, owned by Tony Cadrello, and operated by Ernest Cowles. Mr. Perkins is a patient at Lawrence hospital suffering from a possible fractured skull, three fractured ribs and lacerations of the right eyebrow and right hand. His condition was stated at the institution tonight as critical.

Perkins had been to the home of friends during the evening and about 11 o'clock started to walk to his home. Instead of walking along the right hand side of the highway Perkins chose the left side. When at a point between Stations 6 and 7, Waterford, the automobile operated by Cowles and headed for New London came along. Cowles saw Perkins when a considerable distance away and when he was about 50 feet from the man another automobile, traveling westward, came along. The headlights of the westerly bound machine interfered with Cowle's vision, with the result that Cowles' car struck Perkins with great force, hurling him to the middle of the highway. He was picked up in a semi-conscious condition, bleeding profusely, and was rushed to the hospital. The state police from Groton barracks, conducted an investigation, but did not find the circumstances of the accident such as to warrant holding Cowles.

STOECKEL ON COMMITTEE FOR UNIFORM LAWS

Secretary of Commerce Hoover has appointed Motor Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckle of Connecticut to the committee on uniformity of laws and regulations of the national conference on street and highway safety. This is one of four committees of the national conference being appointed by Secretary Hoover, the other three dealing with the subjects of enforcement, causes of accidents and metropolitan traffic facilities.

General William MacChesney, president of the national conference of commissioners on uniform state laws, is chairman of the committee of which Commissioner Stoeckel has been appointed. "The importance of the subject is self-evident," says Secretary Hoover's letter to Mr. Stoeckel. "Automobile traffic has developed so rapidly that laws and regulations governing it have in many cases been drawn up without regard to uniformity as between the various states and communities. To the end of reducing the present terrible accident toll, there is urgent need for a clear and reasonably uniform code for which the support of public opinion throughout the country can be developed."

In the eastern conference of motor vehicle administrators, of which the Connecticut department was one of the prime movers, Commissioner Stoeckel has offered a resolution calling for a uniform law for the examination and licensing of motor vehicle operators. One of the principal accomplishments of the eastern conference is the adoption of a uniform list of approved headlight devices, uniform regulations for truckloads on public highways, a general endorsement of the policy of discipline as to criminal offense and a general drafting of laws to tend towards uniformity. As a result of conference action, each member state now requires the licensing of operators.

THE MACMILLAN ARCTIC EXPEDITION
UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY

MAC MILLAN'S ROUTE AND EXPLORATIONS

(Special to the Bulletin.)

Washington, D. C. May 10—Finding of a new continent, exploration of one of the world's most picturesque lake countries, blazing a trail across a frozen Sahara, and acquiring color photographs of flowers and fishes that civilized man has never seen—these are a few of the major possibilities of the MacMillan Arctic expedition under the auspices of the National Geographic Society.

The expedition will utilize two genii of modern invention, aircraft and radio; the first to carry men where they never have gone by land or sea, and the second to waft the explorers' voices to American homes from frozen lands which most of mankind will never visit.

Not only will the United States navy's airplanes seek to "spot" the land that is believed to be shrouded in the million unknown square miles that lie between America's flag at Point Barrow and the Stars and Stripes that Peary planted at the Pole.

Will Explore Many Unknown Areas

The planes also will fly over the little known ice cap of Greenland, penetrate the Eskimo-storied lake country of inner Baffin Island, with its game and birds and fish, and pierce the forbidding and practically unknown parts of romantic Labrador. They will fly northward from the world's northernmost settlement, Etah, and seek new knowledge of the topography of Ellesmere Island and its giant peninsula, Grant Land.

When MacMillan's two vessels cross from Labrador to Greenland they may follow the same course as that sailed by Leif, the son of Eric the Red, 500 years before Columbus discovered America.

MacMillan will compare the Norse ruins of Labrador with those of Greenland and the minds' eye of the expedition members along this route cannot but be impressed by the amazing navigation contrast of the centuries that lie between Leif's hypothetical voyage and MacMillan's.

There arises the picture of the Vikings' clinker-built, undecked, boats, ill-fitted to fight the relentless ice-pack; no power, no charts, no sextant, no chronometers, not even a compass! The explorers of 1925 go aboard the Bowdoin, with its watertight decks, white oak timbered, sheathed with ironwood and reinforced forward with steel sheathing. She is driven by oil engines, she has comfortable cabins and is electric lighted; she has charts, sextants, chronometers and spirit compasses corrected for deviation to the tenth of a point! Her companion ship will carry the 'boats that give men wings' as the Eskimos put it, and the Bowdoin has aboard instruments that will carry the crew's voices back home to their families, 1,500 or 2,000 miles away!

Further north the exposition's ships will make their way through dread Melville Bay where, even in July, they may encounter great unbroken ice fields, weighing countless tons, impinging against the edge of the fast ice. Many a ship has been entrapped when caught between these mighty masses. Old salts tell grim stories of trazedies here in the whaling days: how, in 1857, a southerly wind drove the pack down on a whole fleet, crushed two of the ships and ground them to bits. In a single year 22 ships met such a fate—one of them, the Race Horse, literally was turned inside out and her keel was forced up through her deck!

Base for Airplane Flights

Etah, nearest inhabited spot to the North pole, will be the expedition's ship base. When MacMillan arrived there in 1913 he found a "serious congestion"—the residents had increased to 19 men, women and children. From Etah the U. S. navy plane will fly back and forth to Cape Hubbard, on Axel Heiberg island, to establish a flying base for the flights over the west, unknown area that lies between Point Barrow, Alaska, and the North Pole.

The explorer's living companions on Axel Heiberg island will be white wolves, whose tracks are intermingled with those of musk ox and white caribou. In the winter it is a place of bleak, biting winds; the summer conditions are excellent for flying. Cape Hubbard, the flying base, is known as the 'Cape Horn of the North.'

Etah, the ship base, and headquarters of the radio station WNP through which MacMillan will send home news of the explorations through the National Geographic Society, nestles on the shores of North Greenland, along the narrowest part of Smith Sound, some 700 miles from the North Pole. The arrival of the Kane Expedition there in 1854 was the first visit of white men.

The tiny settlement has a beautiful harbor, with cliffs rising from the water's edge to 1,000 feet, enclosing one of the few good harbors in North Greenland. Fortunately, the harbor opens to the southwest, whence few gales arise.

Memories of Former Explorers

"An explorer of the north cannot enter Etah without being overwhelmed with memories of the past," says Commander MacMillan. "As one enters Smith sound he is on the threshold of stirring events in the history of Arctic exploration. On the starboard bow lie the Crystal Palace cliffs and famous Pandora harbor. Just beyond is Bert Foulke, headquarters of the Hayes expedition of 1860-61 and Foulke Fiord where Peary wintered in 1899-1900. Littleton island recalls the names of Kane, Hall, Young, Nares, Beebe and Greely. On Polaris beach the remnants of the Charles Francis Hall' expedition wintered in 1872-73. Cape Sabine marks the scene of the Greely tragedy, where now stands the National Geographic's bronze tablet memorial in memory of the brave Americans who lost their lives there in behalf of exploration. Cairn Point and Refuge Harbor, with Rensselaer Harbor beyond echo the mighty struggle to disclose the secrets of the northland."

Between Etah and Axel Heiberg land sprawls Ellesmere Island, which vies in its irregularity with Celebes. Its black, serrated peaks rise out of snow-bound valleys, cut by winding glaciers.

For a long time separate parts of the island were known by separate names. These still are preserved as local designations. The northernmost section is Great Land; next to the south lies Grinnell Land; and further in the same direction, Ellesmere Land. Sverdrup cleared up the doubtful topography of Ellesmere island in 1898, but he added still another name, calling the extreme southwestern portion, King Oscar Land.

Hayes First at Etah

William Baffin was the first white man to see Ellesmere Island, when he sailed almost to the head of Baffin Bay in 1616; but no white man set foot on this land until 1854 when Hayes, a member of Kane's expedition, crossed the frozen sound from Greenland and surveyed a section of the coast.

Baffin Bay and the sounds and channels north of it leading to the Polar sea came to be known as "the American route" in polar exploration, and Ellesmere island, forming one shore of this waterway, was used after 1854 by several expeditions as bases and winter quarters.

Out of Etah the flyers will make a reconnaissance of North Greenland. The coastline of North Greenland has been explored in detail and is clearly mapped. But of the inland ice comparatively little is known. Nansen, in 1888, crossed Greenland directly from east to west. That cross section was made, however, below the Arctic circle where the island-continent is about three hundred miles across. Peary cut across the northwest corner in the nineties. The only other crossings were those of Rasmussen and De Quervain, each in 1912, and Koch, in 1913.

Frozen Sahara of Greenland

"Week after week," said Peary, "one sees outside himself and his party only three things, the infinite expanse of the frozen plain, the infinite dome of the cold blue sky, and the cold white sun." But this frozen Sahara may contain undiscovered mountain ranges. It offers an unusual invitation to exploration by aviation, for it probably is the world's largest expanse of practically 'dead level' surface. It presents possibilities unprobed for an aeronautical high-road as a route to Europe, offering the whole length of Greenland, 1,500 miles, as a landing field.

It is in the interior of Baffin island—an interior of some 200,000 unknown square miles—that Commander MacMillan believes the navy flyers will "spot" thousands of lakes, centers of a rich animal, bird and fish life. This belief is based on the tales of the nomad Eskimos who are the only human beings that have penetrated large areas of this interior.

Waste and Ruins of Labrador

Nearly as large an area remains to be explored in the bleak interior of Labrador. Hirer (wandering Eskimo tribes tell of the reindeer and fur bearing animals to be found in the plateau behind Labrador's coastal mountains and fish - famed coastal waters.

But it is particularly the Norse ruins of Labrador that MacMillan wishes to visit, ruins which may help round out the story of the Norsemen's voyage in the eleventh century from Greenland's shores.

The order in which the expedition's work is to be undertaken will not be determined until the scientific personnel to be named by the National Geographic society is completed and they, in consultation with Commander MacMillan and the U. S. navy flyers, lay out the detailed program of the summer's work.

Y. M. C. A. PICTURE GIVES LESSON ON HOME LIFE

The large gymnasium at the Y. M. C. A., was well filled Sunday afternoon when the seven reel feature "Boy of Mine," was shown on the screen.

The opening exercises consisted of hymns, scripture reading and prayer, also vocal solos by Hugh Kinder, who also furnished appropriate music for the picture. Booth Tarkington certainly has, in this wonderful story, portrayed very vividly and truly, life in the modern home and many were the lessons learned at the picturization Sunday, when the unreasonableness of the father made it impossible for the lad to get along with him; the father in the story had evidently forgotten that he was ever a boy as too many fathers have. The part of the mother played made the picture particularly appropriate to Mothers' Day, as her great patience and steady love for her boy was demonstrated in many ways; the father had to learn his lesson by bitter experience, but finally good sense came to his rescue and all ended well. A remark made by one of the audience tells the story of the good impression made by the picture; this one said, "after this parents will understand better." The impressions made were evidently strong for better home life.

POETRY

As Side by Side We Onward Go.

O Jesus, Master, when today
I meet along the crowded way
My burdened brothers—mine and thine—
May them through me thy spirit shine!

To cheer them in their onward way,
Till evening ends the varied day—
To kindle as a growing light
Where else might be but gloom and night.

Grant too that they my need may know
As side by side we onward go—
An equal need of kindly thought,
And love like that which Thou has taught.

Then give our hands a touch divine,
And to our voices tones like thine,
As side by side we onward go,
Nor need each other's names to know.
—Charles Newhall in The Continent.

The Water Lady

Alas, the moon should ever beam
To show what should never see!
I saw a maiden on a stream,
And fair was she!

I stayed awhile, to see her throw
Her tresses back that all beset
The fair horizon of her brow
With clouds of jet.

I stayed a little while to view
Her cheek, that wore, in place of red,
The bloom of water, tender blue,
Daintily spread.

I stayed to watch, a little space,
Her parted lips if she would sing;
The waters closed above her face
With many a ring.

And still I stayed a little more;
Alas, she never came again!
I threw my flowers from the shore,
And watch in vain.

I know my life will fade away,
I know that I must vainly pine,
For I am made of mortal clay,
But she's divine.
—Thomas Hood.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

For a Little Boy

To ride, shoot straight, and speak the truth—
This was the ancient Law of Youth!
Old times are past, old days are done,
But the Law rules true, O little son.

To ride—whatever the mount may be—
Power or sorrow, fame, or obscurity—
Master the thing lest it master you.
Ride when the going is fair and plain
With a velvet touch on the snaffle rein,
Yet vigilant always; watch and guard,
When need be, ride on the curb—ride hard!

Whatever mischance or grief betide,
Fearlessly, firm-handed, sure-seated—ride!

Shoot straight—know that you shall not find
How at a glance should the sights be lined.
Study the terrain and feel out the range,
Brace to the shock with a steady stance—
Carefully, carefully! 'Twas mischance!
At the flight of the venomous indirect word
Swing on the quarter and lead your bird.
At the charge of the flamingly base desire,
Hold low and fire! How low and fire!

And speak the truth—and here is writ
The heart of the Law. Cleave close to it.

Guard it and cherish and hold it high.
Worth on a lie no more may stand.
Than the house that was builded upon the sand.

Aye—though the truth may scar you and burn,
Out of your agony men may learn
The strength of your soul and the ment of you
And your voice in the council. Speak true! Speak true!

O little son, in your hands today
A marvelous, beautiful thing I lay:
This is the ancient Law for Youth—
To ride, shoot straight and speak the truth.

I've Got a Dad

I've got a dad. The other guys
Have swell things that money buys,
And lots of things the others haint
(I should say ain't)
And some have bikes and radios,
And hear the bands and great solos.
And knows the things that fellers knows.
But I've got a Dad.

I've got a Dad—a jolly chum.
Say fellers! that is goin' some.
And listen so me, gee, that's what
Some kids aint got.
Sometimes there is a guy, you know,
That lives around the house and so
They call him Pop—but gosh, he's swell,
But, I've got a Dad.

I've got a Dad—he married Mave,
But that 'aint why I call him Pa.
For he's a regular Scout I bet
(Like some 'aint got.)
There's kids that if they had a chum
Would keep from goin' on the bum;
Believe me I am tickled some
'Cause I've got a Dad.

I've got a Dad, oh, gee, he's swell,
We're just old pals—I'm here to tell
A Dad's a thing that can't be bought
(Or hadn't ought.)
And when I say my prayers at night,
And things are dark and out of sight,
I tell the Lord he used me white
To give me a Dad.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Most boys and girls have seen frog's eggs in ponds during the early spring and have seen the tiny tadpoles hatched from the eggs. Some boys and girls collect the eggs and place them in a large glass jar at home where they can watch the tadpoles develop and hatch out. But how many boys and girls know that the tadpole when it is just hatched has no mouth, nostrils, eyes or even gills. It has no limbs and even the tail is absent or very small. The tiny creature, however, is provided with disks which enable it to attach itself to the egg mass or to a water plant.

The tail grows gradually, the mouth and nostrils open, the gills develop and so do the eyes. At this stage of its life the tadpole becomes very active and starts out to search for its food. As the days go by the hind legs appear. They are very small and quite weak at first, but as they grow longer and stronger, the tail grows smaller and smaller and finally it is absorbed as nourishment by the creature.

After the hind legs have grown to considerable size the foreleg, or front legs, begin to break through the skin. Sometimes the hind legs become so well developed and so strong that the animal is able to jump some distance while it still has its tail. When this happens the young frog presents a curious appearance. As the legs appear, the external gills disappear, the lungs become functional and the tiny mouth gradually takes on the broad shape needed by the full grown frog in capturing insects for food. Most frogs develop from the larval state to the adult state during their first summer. Sometimes it takes a full year or more for the frog to fully develop into the adult state.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Occupations

Dear Uncle Jed: Most people earn their living by doing some kind of work. We call the people's work occupations. Let us see the great occupations in the world.

We all eat food made from plants, and from plants we get cotton and linen for clothes.

We know that cabbages and potatoes do not grow by themselves. Just as the wheat corn the cotton the flax will not grow by themselves. There must be people to plough the ground for them, plant the seeds, reap it when it is ripe and cut it and after pick it.

Raising corn or wheat or other plants for food or clothing is called agriculture or farming.

But we do not like to eat dry bread, so some people raise cows and make butter or cheese for the rest. Those who do so are occupied in dairying.

There must be people to make other things that other people use. Those who do so are said to manufacture.

Iron is a mineral. It is dug from the ground. Some one must dig it up and make it into ploughs and other articles. This occupation is called mining.

Some people cut wood to make into furniture, houses, ships and other things. This is called lumbering. Those who exchange goods are called traders.

EVELYN RACICOT, Age 11.
Willimantic.

My Cat

Uncle Jed: I have a little kitty and her name is Beauty. I like her and she is my pet. When I get home from school I take her in my arms. She jumps on my bed sometimes and gets on my face when I am sleeping. When I go to school I say goodbye to her. We play house together and sometimes she is so funny! My kitty likes me.

MARTHA ROCKSTILL, Age 9.
Wauregan.

A House in the Woods

Dear Uncle Jed: One day as I was walking in the woods, I came to a little house. It had flowers and trees all around it. A little girl lived in the woods with her mother. She was dressed in white. She had black hair and had a light complexion. She told me to come in. She had two little chairs and a little table and some dishes, pots and pans and a little stove to cook on. I stayed there all day. When night came I asked her to come with me home. I told mama what her name was and so on. Then we went to bed and that night I dreamed that I was at her house playing with her. In the morning when I woke up I told Mary about it. She said she had dreamed the same.

EILEEN ABRAHAMSON, Age 9.
Preston.

The "Bright Eyes"

Dear Uncle Jed: In our fourth grade we have an Audubon society. We have chosen to call it Bright Eyes. Last night we elected the officers. The object of our club is to learn all we can about the birds and to protect them. We are going to try to make feeding stations, bird houses, and bird baths. Already we have had a feeding station made.

SIYVEY KAGAN, Age 9.
Danielson.

Why I Like School

Dear Uncle Jed: I like very much to go to school, and I'll tell you why. If you don't go to school you grow up to know nothing. You don't know how to read, write, or add or subtract.

I think every little boy or girl ought to go to school. When I first started to go to school I did not like it very much at all. I was sometimes very naughty, and when the teacher would punish me I would cry. Now I know better than that. After I had attended school a few weeks I got used to it.

The best thing I like is history. In school we have a nice little history book which I like very well. It tells me about George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Columbus and other big men. Spelling I like very much but not when I miss a word and have to write it 25 times.

I want to learn to spell all words. Most every study I like in school, because everyone teaches me something.

ROSE COHEN, Age 8.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 1.

Netherlands

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I am writing to you. I am going to tell you about Netherlands.

The Netherlands is often called Holland, the name of one of its provinces. The country is a little larger than Belgium. Its land is low and swampy. The name Netherlands means low. The country is crossed by several rivers of which the Rhine is the largest. The people are engaged in farming more than in manufacturing.

They raise stock and cultivate many vegetables, fruits, and flowers. One of their exports is flower bulbs, of which many are sent to America.

The capital is a city known as the Hague. It has a splendid art gallery. The people are very clean, and wear queer costumes.

BERTHA LUPA, Age 11.
Jewett City.

Wants to Travel

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my two brothers. One is in the high school and I am trying every day to get there.

My other brother is in the navy and is seeing the world. He writes letters to me. In one he said he thought he would go to China. I wish I could go.

ROBERT BURNS, Age 9.
Wauregan.

An Exciting Adventure

Dear Uncle Jed: One warm, summer day, my girl friends and I went on a picnic in the woods.

Mother had helped me to prepare my lunch the day before. When I awake the next morning, how delighted I was when I ran to the window and looked out, for there was the sun shining brightly, and the birds merrily chirping in the trees.

After breakfast was over, I took my lunch box ready to go. All of my friends were waiting for me.

It was very warm as we started out, but we didn't mind. We walked a few miles, and then rested. It was not very long before we reached the place where we had planned to go. We sat down under a tree and waited, while one girl went for some well water at a house nearby. Afterwards we played games. Suddenly, one of the girls named Mary screamed. We ran to her, and what do you suppose was the matter? A little snake had crawled over to her, and stared at her. We killed it with sticks and stones. Then we laughed. As it was growing late, we went home. I was very glad when I reached home, and now when we ask Mary if she wants to go on a picnic she coolly answers, "No."

FRANCES ABRAMSON, Age 13.
Norwich.

Helping Mother

Dear Uncle Jed: All the week we had out of school I helped mother. I washed the dishes after breakfast, ran to the store, and then went to the city. In the afternoon, I took care of my little brother. After dinner I helped clean the house, fed the dog and cat. Then I put on an apron and got the things while my mother made a cake. The first thing I do in the morning is to go and get wood and coal. I hope the Wide Awakes help their mother because she won't have so much to do, and it helps to be polite and happy. Remember this, "Please help mother."

HEDWIG STRENKOWSKI.
Norwich.

How Coffee Grows

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written before and I thought I would write again. This time I am going to tell the Wide Awakes about coffee, which is one of our chief drinks.

Brazil is the chief coffee country in the world. It produces more than two-thirds of all the coffee used by man. Coffee grows best in semi-tropical climates. The red soil in Brazil is very good for coffee growing.

First the beans must be sown in seed beds. They soon sprout, and little green plants shoot up through the soil. After they have grown a foot high, they are ready for transplanting to the fields. The plants are set quite deep in the ground. A hole is dug out for each one, and at first sticks or leaves are put over it to protect it from the hot rays of the sun. They are carefully hoed to keep the weeds down.

The coffee bushes begin to blossom in December and in April or May the berries are ripe and the picking begins. After the berries are picked they are taken to the factories on the plantations. The factories contain machinery of different kinds for extracting the seeds and near them are the drying floors upon which the coffee beans are dried in the sun. They are left in the sun for several weeks until everyone is as dry as a bone.

After the beans are dried, each little bean has to be skinned. To do this it is thrown into machines which break the skins. It is next carried into the fanning mills, in which the skins are blown out in one place in the shape of chaff. The coffee bean now olive green flow out by themselves. The beans are of different sizes, some large and some small, some round and some flat. They must be separated and graded before they are ready for shipment. This is done by passing them over a series of sieves in which there are holes of different sizes, so that the grains of each kind are gathered together and they flow out through different pipes into bags, ready to be shipped to the markets of the world.

Niagara Falls

Dear Uncle Jed: On a vacation a few summers ago I visited Niagara Falls. When we were within a half of a mile of the falls we could hear the thundering roar of the water. It was a beautiful sight to see those many tons of water falling a hundred and sixty feet.

It was even more beautiful to go down below the falls. To go down you must either go by the stairway or the elevator. When I went I walked down the stairway.

There were twenty-three flights of stairs and over three hundred steps. At the bottom of the falls there were many large rocks. When the water came over it would make a big splash.

HARVEY CONCKLIN, Age 11.
Baltic.

My Dog

Uncle Jed: I have a little dog. Her name is Beauty. She is a great pet. When I get home from school she is always glad to see me.

She is afraid of thunder and lightning and always cries when she hears it.

I pet her so she will not feel so badly. Sometimes I give her a ride in a baby carriage.

ETHELDREA De Moranville, Age 10.
Wauregan.

A Bird Friend

Dear Uncle Jed: Being near spring, I thought I would write and tell you about the Phoebe.

The Phoebe though plain in plumage and unmusical in voice is one of the most welcome arrivals in early spring. Soon after the robins and bluebirds have returned from the sunny south and before the snow has disappeared we look for the little gray "Flycatcher." Male and female are alike in appearance and both utter the simple song, Phoebe. They feed almost entirely on insects, captured in the wing, and the good they do in reducing the numbers of these pests is incalculable. The Phoebe is domestic and a confiding bird.

In wilder regions its nest is often built on a small sheltered ledge of a rock, but in settled localities it is usually placed in the beam of a bridge over the water, in a shed, or under the roof of a piazza. It is a pretty structure of mud and green moss, lined with hair, and the eggs are white rarely with a few dark specks. A member of the Wideawakes.

SARAH A. WILLIAMS, Age 11.

A Horse Named France

Dear Uncle Jed: My father has a horse and his name is France. He bought it at the auction. When we hitch him up he jumps up and down and acts badly. My father thought he would teach him to behave.

The horse tried to have his way but could not, so decided to behave. Ever since he has been a good horse.

This is the first time I have written to you.

JOSEPH WALLOW, Age 9.

A Visit to the Farm

Dear Uncle Jed: During the week of vacation my brother and I were visiting our grandparents in the country. We took our dog along too. He had great fun running through the fields for exercise.

They have little chickens and I enjoy feeding them. My brother likes to drive the horse, as she is very gentle. He rode on the harrow when grandpa was harrowing some ground. They have a little calf, but its mother doesn't seem to like children so we don't go to the barn to see it fed.

One day I was looking out of the window and a deer ran across a lot and jumped into the road, then into another lot and ran toward the woods.

GLORIA CASE, Age 9.
Norwich.

My Trip to New Bedford

Uncle Jed: When I visited my grandmother one summer I saw some whaling boats in the harbor. I went to a park and rode on the merry-go-round. I went on a steamer to Oak Bluffs.

I went down to the beach and had a good time in the water. I could not swim but enjoyed it paddling around.

KENNETH WIGNALL, Age 8.
Wauregan.

My Little Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my little dog. Her name is Mittie and sometimes I dress her up like a doll. When she sees me take her dish to get her something to eat she runs and puts her paws on the table and waits for me to cut up her meat. When she has finished eating she runs back to me to play again.

Old Mr. Toad Is Upset

The thing that one can ne'er forget
Is dignity that's been upset.
—Old Mr. Toad.

Old Mr. Toad had spent the winter buried in Farmer Brown's garden. It had been a wholly comfortable winter. That is to say, Old Mr. Toad hadn't known anything about winter. He had gone to sleep down in the ground deep enough to escape all danger of freezing. He had gone to sleep before Jack Frost had done any real freezing and he had not awakened until after Jack Frost had left for good. Then one day he had dug his way out and had sleepily blinked up at jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun, for all the world as if he had merely had a nap instead of a sleep of half a year.

For a while he felt just sleepy, but as Mr. Sun warmed him he began to take a little interest in life. He

So off he started without any delay stretched his legs to get the kinks out of them. Then he hopped over to a rhubarb plant and spent most of the remainder of the day under one of the broad leaves, where he was well hidden yet could peep out and see what was going on. He had a feeling that he wanted to go somewhere and do something, but just where he wanted to go or what he wanted to do he couldn't think.

But late that afternoon as Jolly, round, Red Mr. Sun was getting near the Purple Hills behind which he would go to bed, and the Black Shadows were getting ready to steal out across the Green Meadows and through all the Green Forest, a sound reached Old Mr. Toad, a sound that made him tingle all over. It was the sound of many voices in a great chorus. The voices were of his little cousins, the Hylas, which some folks call Peepers, and they were singing their spring song over in the Smiling Pool.

Then Old Mr. Toad knew where he wanted to go and what he wanted to do. He wanted to go to the Smiling Pool and sing with his small cousins, the Hylas. So off he started without delay. He had a long way to go. For such a slow traveler as Old Mr. Toad it was a long journey. He sighed as he thought of what a long journey it would be back to Farmer Brown's garden after the singing season was over. But thought of this didn't stop him. He kept right on going, hop, hop, hipperty-hop, hop, hop hipperty-hop, until he had to rest. Then again, hop, hop hipperty-hop.

Now he was so intent on getting to the Smiling Pool that he failed to use his eyes as he should have, and without seeing him at all he almost ran into Jimmy Skunk. The first Old Mr. Toad knew he was suddenly flipped about on his back. Jimmy had simply reached out a little black paw, slipped it under Old Mr. Toad and turned him over.

Old Mr. Toad was upset. He was upset in more ways than one. He was upset bodily and, what was worse, he was upset in his dignity. You know Old Mr. Toad has considerable dignity. He hops along in a very solemn and dignified manner. Now all in a twinkling he was flat on his back, which is a very undignified position to be in, and to get back on his feet again he must kick and struggle in a very undignified, not to say ridiculous manner. And all the time Jimmy Skunk stood looking down at him and chuckling.

At last Mr. Toad got on his feet again, and he was so swelled up with anger that you would hardly have known him. But before he could say a word Jimmy Skunk flipped him on his back again. Poor Old Mr. Toad! He was a wee bit frightened, for he wasn't quite certain just what Jimmy might mean to do. He knew that Jimmy was fond of Frogs and he wasn't quite sure that Jimmy might not be going to try Toad for a change.

But Jimmy had no such thought. He had upset Old Mr. Toad from a spirit of mischief. It wasn't at all nice or kind of Jimmy, but he didn't intend any harm. It was done just for fun, though Jimmy was old enough to know that fun that makes other folks uncomfortable really isn't fun at all.

MYSTIC

At the annual meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association, held at Mystic Academy Friday evening, the president Mrs. John Gray presided. The opening of the meeting was delayed by the lights going out and after waiting a while a lantern and candles were found and put into use. The meeting was opened and part of the business transacted before the lights came on. The president's report was brief, stating that she had charge of the lectures put on at an expense of $450. The first was by Thomas Mott Osborne, the second on the eclipse by Principal Aldrich of Worcester Academy, third added to the treasury and the last by Josephus Daniels. Owing to the cost of this lecture $250, it proved a loss but was appreciated by all who heard him. The Baptist church was usmed free for the lectures by the consent of the trustees. The splendid co-operation of the parents and friends was emphasized and she thanked all for the hearty support given her. The secretary and treasurer Mrs. Deueke reported $75.09 in the treasury at the beginning of the year. Two cake sales have been held and the small dues are the proceeds for the year. Sixty-five members are on the roll while many attend who are not members. A set of history books has been bought at a cost of $39.50. Not quite as much will be left in the treasury this year as before.

The annual children's party was held by the first grade, Mrs. Nelson Holdredge is chairman with Mrs. Tift, Mrs. Neff and Mrs. Deueke assistants.

Miss Burnett, principal, in a concise manner reported the work of the year and the splendid harmony that prevails among the teachers. The other reports by committees all told of work accomplished. The election of officers resulted as follows:

Mrs. Gary president, Mrs. Mcgregor vice president and Mrs. Deueke secretary and treasurer. Mrs. Gray wished to retire from the office on account of family duties, but was persuaded to continue in office another year. To her is due the credit of the association bringing to Mystic such noted men to lecture; at the other meetings prominent men from other places have given addresses free. The children have saved nearly $1,800 and it is thought by the end of the term the total will reach $2,000.

A fire that threatened to destroy the large residence of Dr. John K. Bucklyn on East Main street, Saturday, was subdued after a hard fight by the R. F. Hoxie engine company and Mystic Hook and Ladder company using two lines of horse and three of the chemicals. The fire started in the cellar and was caused by removing an old gas tank. Much damage was done the house by water. Mrs. Bucklyn and Mr. Brown were burned quite badly.

Mystic Grange No. 171 was represented by 48 members at the neighbors night meeting of Groton grange held Friday night. Mrs. Ellery Burdick gave two recitations that created much amusement. Leslie Haley and Miss Agnes Austin sang a duet, and witty remarks by William Stott proved a feature of the program. Each visiting grange was asked to provide at least two members and Mystic Grange did its part well.

Mrs. Daniel Ivers returned home Saturday from the private hospital in New London. She had an operation on her throat.

Rev. Frederick G. Chutter, of Boston, preached in the Congregational church Sunday morning and assumes the pastorate that is very pleasing to the membership. Under his leadership no doubt the regular midweek prayer meeting will be used and the interest in all depadtments will take on new activity.

Miss Bertha Foote has returned home after attending a dental convention of two days.

Fred Judd has moved from Main street to the tenement at the foot of Bank street.

Mystic encampment I. O. O. F. No. 17 met in Odd Fellows hall Friday evening.

Elwood Lathrop is building a garage on Groton Long Point for Mr. Roberts, of Norwich.

A large class, numbering over 100, was confirmed in St. Patrick's church Sunday morning. The first communion was administered at the eight o'clock mass. The sacrament of confirmation was administered by Rt. Rev. Bishop John G. Murray of Hartford, at the close of the ten o'clock mass. In the class confirmed was a large number from Mystic Oral school and Noank parish, also twenty-five adults.

The installation of the Boy Scout Community House Troop will be held this (Monday) evening. Scout Executive F. E. Burdick of New London and assistants will be present. The installation will be in charge of the visiting officials, also Samuel Sanford, captain, and Dwight Knox, assistant to the captain.

St. Mark's Episcopal church Sunday morning prayer and sermon was by Lay Reader George W. Woodward, of Westerly.

Among those from out of town who attended the funeral of Mrs. Noyes Palmer last Friday was Earl Bailey and Mrs. Lizzie Gunderson, of Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. Odell D. Tompkins of Mount Vernon, N. Y., spent the week end at their summer home on Pequot Avenue.

Joseph Prunier of Williams street is having a sidewalk laid in front of his residence.

At the meeting of the W. C. T. U. Wednesday afternoon next, those who attended the meeting in Norwich last week will give a report.

Lemons Tighten Wrinkled Skin

EASTFORD

A man of ability who figured in an important event in Eastford in 1861, Rev. Charles Collard Adams, 88, of Cromwell, a prominent figure in Connecticut for many years, died Monday at the Middlesex Hospital, Middletown.

Mr. Adams was born in Washington, D. C., June 22, 1836, and after attending various preparatory schools in the south came to New England in 1855 to attend Wesleyan University, where he was graduated in 1859.

He finally entered the Methodist ministry, where he remained four years. During this time his Episcopal inclinations apparently grew more pronounced as he was ordained to the Episcopal ministry at Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, December 21, 1864. His affiliations remained with his second religious choice until 1883, when further study and investigation led to a desire to enter the Catholic church, and he was baptized by the bishop of Great Falls, Montana.

For a dozen years Mr. Adams was in newspaper work in Hartford, Naugatuck and Waterbury. He removed his family to Eastford in 1888 to Cromwell, where he had married in 1860, and has never missed attending a Wesleyan commencement. In 1873 he received from Trinity College the honorary degree of M. A.

In September, 1861, Mr. Adams was chairman of the Eastford committee to receive the body of General Nathaniel Lyon and officiated at his grave. In 1862 he became chaplain of the Twenty-second Regiment, Connecticut Volunteers, and in 1864 did hospital duty in Alexandria, burying the Blue and Gray with the same service. He was the last surviving chaplain of a Connecticut civil war regiment. He served under Colonel George Burnham.

Infants now have a much better chance of living through their first year than they did ten years ago, infant mortality rates show.

STAFFORD

As noted on another page of The Bulletin, Tuesday May 12th, will be observed as Hospital Day in the United States. The date is the 105th anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale. This is the fourth year that Hospital Day, has been observed. Every year more hospitals observe the day. It is the aim to make one week of the hospital more widely known a matter of interest in this town, with its fine hospital at Stafford Springs.

Wilfred Haith won the first prize of $5 in the essay contest in the High school on the subject: "As a citizen, what attitude should I take regarding drinking of alcoholic liquors." The second prize of $2.50 was won by Miss Dorothy Fisk. Honorable mention was given Miss Dorothy Hodgson, Mrs. W. B. Bean presented the prizes in the Assembly room at the High School. The winning essay will be sent to compete for the State prize. The judges were Miss Celia Holt, Miss Mary Smith and Mrs. R. W. Smith.

The funeral of Miss Helen Burnham was held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at her home in Somers. Miss Burnham has taught in Piney Grammar school since 1923. She was operated on for appendicitis at Johnson Memorial Hospital in Enfield. From this operation she did not recover. She was born in Springfield and received her education in that city. She leaves her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Burnham and two sisters Maxine and Ethel. She made many friends in Stafford while she taught here, both in the school and community.

An indolent man is a dead loss to himself.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

New York, May 10—Price movements in this week's financial and commodity markets lacked uniformity.

The stock market bounded upward under the leadership of the public utility and motor issues. Bond prices stiffened in reflection of easy money rates despite new offerings in excess of $125,000,000. A sharp reaction in wheat prices today resulted in net declines of 3 to 5 cents a bushel below last week's closing levels. Cotton prices closed slightly higher on the week after a period of highly irregular fluctuations.

The relative stability of sterling exchange just above the so-called "gold export point" was the feature of the foreign exchange market. French exchange apparently was unaffected by the Moroccan troubles.

The marked increase in public participation was one of the most significant developments in the stock market. Assurances that fundamental business conditions were sound came from several responsible sources, and had a cheerful effect on speculative sentiment.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH WILL CELEBRATE 125th ANNIVERSARY

The First Baptist church will celebrate the 125th anniversary of the founding of the church in Norwich on Sunday and Monday, May 17th and 18th, with appropriate services and exercises, and representatives from many other churches of Norwich and vicinity will also have a part in the programme for the anniversary days.

Plans for the observance of the 125th anniversary of the establishment of a church of the Baptist faith in Norwich, have been underway for several weeks and the celebration will be divided into two parts. On Sunday, May 17th there are to be four services at the church, when prominent local and out of town speakers will be heard and special musical programs rendered by the church choir and by an enlarged choir, composed of singers from other churches of the city. On Monday, May 18th, in the evening there will be a reception and entertainment in the church parlor, preceded by a banquet for members of the church and guests.

A tentative outline of the program for the two days is as follows: Sunday morning at 10.30. Regular morning worship with address by Rev. E. E. ### "AT HOME" DAY AT BACKUS HOSPITAL TUESDAY

Tuesday, May 12, which is the birthday anniversary of Florence Nightingale and is annually known as Hospital Day throughout the country will be observed by the Backus hospital, which will hold its annual "at home" to all Norwich. The hospital officials are extending a general invitation to everybody to visit the institution that day. Every opportunity will be given the public to become familiar with all the interesting details of the work of the hospital. Hospitals are the safeguards of a community; they minister to its necessities, and yet, are also dependent on good-will and cooperation—each needs the support of its own townspeople.

Florence Nightingale who was born in Italy in 1820, but raised in England, realized her great opportunity at the age of 34, when she responded to the appeal that went ringing through England for women to minister to the sick and suffering English soldiers in the Crimean war.

Nations sang and wept their gratitude and admiration for her and the band of thirty eight nurses that she organized and took with her. After 21 months in the region of war, having brought marvelous order from hopeless chaos, and relieved the wretched condition of the soldiers' wives and children, Florence Nightingale, traveling incognito, returned, under cover of darkness, to her dear England.

When the American Civil war broke out in 1860, had she not been in failing health, she surely would have visited our country, but the seed of her example bore fruit in the establishment of the Red Cross Society, the branches of which today cover the civilized world. Let us in America pay homage to the memory of the noble character, and on this May 12 the 108th anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale be reminded of our duty for and the love we must bear toward our hospitals, and consider well the devotion and sacrifice of its first Superintendent of Nurses.

The open house hours at the Backus hospital will be from 2 to 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and the officials are earnestly hoping that the public generally will take advantage of this opportunity to visit the hospital.

Trips will be made from the laundry and kitchens through all the wards and operating room, so that all friends may have a chance to see the machinery, big and little of the institution. Supt. F. Leon Hutchins, assisted by the nurses will act as guides.

Friday evening the musical comedy, "The Bills of Beaujolais" was presented in the college gymnasium. It was a huge success and was greeted as much as the huge and enthusiastic audience before which it played. After the comedy dancing was enjoyed until two in the morning to the music of the University of Pennsylvania orchestra. The gymnasium was attractively decorated in black and white, while on the walls were futuristic effects of red figures on a white background. The stage upon which the orchestra sat was skillfully transformed into a charming conservatory.

Saturday morning things started off with a rush when the Juniors challenged their "men" to a baseball game. This is one of the events that the other classes are privileged to watch and great was the consternation when news came from the office that all classes would meet as usual. However, although the game was scheduled to begin at ten those who had classes at that hour did not miss much when they rushed forth at five of eleven to see the fifth or sixth inning as they supposed. Much to their relief the game had just begun. The men were "at bats" but, no, that couldn't be the men! Each of them was attired in the latest Parisian fashion in skirts as worn at C. C., pleated and plain skirts, wrap-arounds, plaids and the latest with side pleats were seen on these femininely masculine players. Around their heads to keep the hair from their eyes they had tied bright bands of varying shades. To further assure themselves that the men's team would not win by too great a score the Juniors had laid down several hard and fast laws which the opposing team must follow or be termed out. The men must have only two outs; one hand only could be used in batting, and each batter must run to first base, backward. With these rules the Juniors thought that the game would be easily their's. In fact, one of them was heard to remark rather feelingly that perhaps they really were taking too much advantage of the opposing team.

The men's team won by the score of 16 to 6. In spite of their handicaps the various men managed to make several home runs, but several directions in the skirts. One in making a home run turned several somersaults, calamities happened to the various on the way and another playing at third base was seriously handicapped when his skirt began to slip from his hips as he reached up to catch a ball. The other members of the team came to his rescue, however, and forming a circle about him hid him from view until the disaster was remedied and he had recovered from his confusion. The Junior's team consisted of Marjory B. Thompson, Astoria, pitcher; Eleanor Whittier, Nutley, N. J., catcher; Marian Cogswell Derry, New Hampshire; Lois Gordon, Hazardville; Hope Farrington, Auburndale, Mass., Mildred E. Bodwell, Andover, Mass., Thedosia Hewlitt, Buffalo, N. Y., Lorraine Ferris, Greenwich, Helen Hood, Somerville, Mass., Harriet Stone, Southbury, Mass.

After the game lunch was served in the dining hall where the freshmen sang to the junior prom men. After repeated calls the men were finally made to stand up to acknowledge this tribute.

In the afternoon there was tea dancing in the gymnasium and at six a huge dinner in the dining hall was served to the Juniors and their men. The under-classmen were requested to time down town for this to avoid undue crowding.

In the evening the huge prom dance was held in the gymnasium. The Pennsylvania orchestra played the various songs from the comedy of the previous evening, "The Bills of Beaujolais."

The waitresses were the Misses Edith Freeman Prudence Drake Aimee Wimelbach, Helen Little, Margrey Tauchert, Estelle Harmon, Barbara La Hay, and Margaret Cornelius, all of the class of twenty-eight. They were disemingly dressed as Pierrots and Pierrettes in black and white costumes of satin and tulle. The refreshments consisted of ice cream, punch, and cake.

The success of the junior promenade is due to its enterprising committee and co-workers, Miss Lois Gordon of Hazardville was chairman, and Elizabeth Phillips of Washington was in charge of the decorations.

CHEERS FOR HINDENBURG ON EVE OF INAUGURATION

President-Elect of Germany Traveled on Special Train From Hanover to Berlin—Special Precautions Were Taken For the Safe Transport of Hindenburg—Made Declaration That He Hoped Through Unification to Succeed in Leading the German People to a Brighter Future—American Embassy Among the First to Hoist Colors in Honor of Hindenburg.

Hanover, Germany, May 11—(A. P.)—As the people of his home town cheered and sang "Deutschland Lied," and "Die Wacht Am Rhein," Field Marshal von Hindenburg left Hanover at 1:38 this afternoon on a special train for Berlin, where tomorrow he will be inaugurated president of Germany.

As the train pulled out of the station the general, holding himself very erect, exclaimed with a vigorous voice, "for Deutschland, hurrah hurrah! hurrah! hurrah!"

Just before he left Hanover, as he was saying good-bye to Gustave Noske, the former executive secretary for military affairs, who lives here, von Hindenburg said:

"The time has come when the German people, more than ever, must be united. With unity, unity and again unity, I hope to succeed in leading the German people to a brighter future."

Upon his arrival at the Hanover station the president-elect was greeted by President Novae of the Province of Hanover who remarked that "this is the second time von Hindenburg has departed from Hanover to help the German people in a time of their need.

"In its way," continued President Novae, "this occasion is just as significant as the first time, for today the people require help as much for internal as for foreign affairs.

We all hope ardently that this time the president will succeed in conciliating all internal as well as foreign opponents."

During President Novae's farewell von Hindenburg nodded repeatedly in solemn approval.

Special precautions were taken for the safe transport of the president-elect. The engineer, fireman and conductor of the train were veterans in the railway service and high officials of the railway administration accompanied the train and formed a part of the reception committee at the Herrstrasse station in Berlin.

HINDENBURG RECEIVED WITH ACCLAIM IN BERLIN

Berlin, May 11—(A. P.)—Speeding through a straight-away five mile lane flanked by dense rows of surging, jubilant humanity, Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg, president-elect of Germany, late this afternoon reached the chancellor's palace, where he will be a guest for a single night, pending his formal induction into office at high noon tomorrow.

An uneventful train-ride of four hours carried the presidential party to the edge of Berlin shortly before 6 o'clock this evening, and in less than ten minutes Germany's new soldier-president, who craves seclusion and balks at the adulation of the friendly mob found himself engulfed in a vortex of frenzied men, women and children.

Even the enthusiasm of mobilization days in August, 1914, did not approximate the volume the popular acclaim which today poured into the path of the nation's new executive.

The old colors were there in profusion and the air was redolent of moth-balls, for thousands of family chests and wardrobes had yielded up an assortment of gaily bespangled uniforms and other gala apparel, which went into seclusion with the revolution of 1918.

Through it all, Field Marshal von Hindenburg sat rigidly beside Chancellor Luther, his face immobile and marked by pallor, while his right hand automatically touched the rim of his tophat, as he responded to the vociferous greetings to his right and left.

With more than military promptness the presidential train arrived at the Heerstrasse station. There, Dr. Luther's ten year old daughter dressed in white, stepped forward, and as the Field Marshal alighted spoke a verse of welcome, and, curtsying low, handed to him a bunch of yellow roses. With a faint smile the Field Marshal thanked her and then turned the flowers over to his daughter-in-law to whom Chancellor Luther had presented a cluster of Lilies of the Valley.

Von Hindenburg wore a black overcoat unadorned with medals and carried a yellow cane. He shook hands with the other dignitaries, after which he bowed to the assembled reporters. At that moment a mighty shout arose from the top of the embankment where a great crowd had assembled. The shouts and cheers were repeated with increased volume as he left the station to step into an automobile.

As the party got under way a fleet of nine airplanes rose from the field behind the station and acted as an escort along the way to Wilhelmstrasse. They showered flowers upon the presidential motor and frequently dipped so low as to frighten the crowds straining their necks to get a glimpse of the Field Marshal.

The policing arrangements called for 12,000 of the security force and several hundred plainclothes men, and they functioned with old-time Prussian precision. All traffic had been diverted, and the drive from the suburban station to the chancellor's palace was accomplished in less than half an hour. The president-elect immediately retired to his private apartment. Tonight he was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the chancellor.

It was late in the afternoon when Berlin began to stir and the crowds to congregate along the route over which the field marshal would travel. In the residential sections the old monarchical colors again predominated, while in the downtown districts they led the republican flag by a slight margin. Many timid democrats hoisted the Prussian black and white by way of a compromise, and, all told, it may be set down that the black, red and gold standard of republicanism was in hopeless minority.

Despite predictions that the day would be marked by clashes, the police nowhere were called upon to intervene and the expected Communist outbreaks failed to materialize. Berlin's proletariat absented itself at the reception, in keeping with the admonition handed out by the Socialists. With the exception of one democratic student fraternity, all the delegations which turned out to welcome the president-elect comprised conservative or ultra-national elements.

Veterans leagues and numerous post-war juvenile organizations predominated, but there were also numerous deputations representing officers clubs, associations of German nobility and women's patriotic leagues. The nationalistic student fraternities turned out in gala attire and carried their college standards. The German turners sent a numerous delegation, as did the veterans corps of all the well-known Potsdam regiments.

FOUR BURGLARIES IN NEW HAVEN YESTERDAY

New Haven, May 11—Whether or not this city faces another epidemic of burglaries was a question being asked in police circles tonight following four thefts of the "dinner burglar" variety in Fair Haven and four sneak thief jobs reported by the Yale campus police.

Detectives investigating the Fair Haven breaks found that they were all in one section and in three of them entrance was gained by raising a side window in a bed room. Finger prints taken at one house show that but one man entered but circumstances connected with another break indicate that the person or persons who planned to ransack the house were well acquainted with the neighborhood and knew the movements of the families living in the house they planned to enter.

The home of Mrs. C. W. Potter was entered and a large amount of jewelry taken. She said she was in the house at the time and was upstairs. She heard a noise downstairs but did not investigate. The bedroom on the first floor had been ransacked. The police or Mrs. Potter would not estimate the value of the jewelry taken but Mrs. Potter said many of the pieces were heirlooms.

The home of John Laughrey was entered and seven dollars was taken. Mrs. Josephine Scavone reported that her home had been entered and $10 taken from a bureau drawer. The grocery store of Pasquale Sanino also was entered and a quantity of cigarettes and a small amount of money stolen.

The rooms of four students at Yale university were entered over the week end and jewelry valued at more than $500 was taken. F. B. Ryan reported that a gold watch valued at $120 had been stolen from his room and a similar loss was reported by C. Curtiss. B. Long, Jr., reported that a watch and chair and a gold pencil, all of the value of $150, were missing, also $15 in change. A watch valued at $200 was taken from the room of F. B. Grof.

GOVT MUST RETURN $108,657 TAXES TO THE FRICK ESTATE

Washington, May 11—Proceeds from life insurance policies in which the rights to the benefits passed to or were vested in final beneficiaries prior to the enactment of the revenue act of 1918, are not subject to the federal estate tax, the supreme court declared today in deciding an appeal by the government against the executors of the estate of Henry C. Frick, Pittsburgh steel magnate.

Under the decision, the government must return to the estate $108,657 which it collected as taxes upon the $474,629 of life insurance left by Frick for the benefit of his widow and his daughter. The supreme court found that the beneficiaries' rights to this insurance had vested before the revenue act of 1918 took effect, and held that the law could not be made retroactive to apply to such cases.

NEW YORK CONTRACT PROBE "TRIAL BEFORE THE PRESS"

New York, May 11—Newspapermen took a hand today in questioning witnesses in the investigation opened by Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield, upon Mayor Hylan's order, into the alleged activities of Sinnott & Canty in soliciting bonding business from contractors for city building. Mr. Hirshfield said that the hearing was really "a trial before the press," and invited newspapermen to interrogate two of the witnesses.

J. Paul Sinnott, a member of the firm in question, is a brother of John F. Sinnott, son-in-law and secretary to the mayor.

Four contractors and two officers of the board of education were questioned today, with the purpose, Mr. Hirshfield said, of "throwing light on the methods" used by Deputy Comptroller Kerrigan in investigating charges that Sinnott & Canty pretended to have influence in withholding city contracts from firms which did not give them their business.

Three of the contractors testified that they did not ascribe their failure to receive contracts to the fact that they refused to give the bonding to Sinnott & Canty. A fourth testified that a solicitor had threatened him with loss of a contract if he did not give his business to Sinnott & Canty, but later said he believed the board of education acted for the best interests of the city in awarding the contract elsewhere, and that threat of "Mr. Durry," the solicitor, had nothing to do with the award.

"The brethren of the shining dome" as they call themselves, have no pass word or pin, the only badge of the order being that each member must have at least three square inches of clean hairlessness upon the top of his head. And it was indicated tonight that they are inordinately proud of their "different appearance."

Prizes were awarded after the dinner. To the youngest member, Edward Page of Stamford, went two bottles of hair tonic with the best wishes of the club. John Rodemeyer, of Greenwich, who has the greatest amount of hair of any of the members, was given a large container of insecticide.

BRIDGEPORT RESENTS INTERVENTION BY STATE

Bridgeport, May 11.—"It seems curious with Connecticut's reputation for avoiding constitutional amendments—for its insistence on home rule—that our legislature imbued with these sentiments should find it necessary to attempt to control the internal affairs of so many municipalities, especially in the wester part of this state," declared Congressman Schuyler Merritt, speaking at the meeting of the chamber of commerce at the Stratfield hotel today.

"I do not believe you can make a municipality or individual strong and independent by putting them in leading strings," said the fourth district representative to his audience of 150 prominent men. I think this city of Bridgeport, with the quality of citizenship which I know about, and I know there are no more sane and enterprising citizens than Bridgeporters, is capable of managing its own affairs and pulling out of any difficulties if not prevented by politics."

Distilling Plant Raided in New York

Synthetic ... Valued at $... Seized — Hard Tr... For Rum on Land and at Sea.

New York, May 11—Victories on land and sea were recorded by the government dry forces today.

The land victory was one of the most important government dry coups in months, involving the discovery of a whiskey distilling plant on the lower west side and the seisure of $100,000 worth of synthetic rye whiskey.

At sea, the victory constituted in the continued success of the dry navy's blockade of rum row under the most difficult conditions. Today, the seventh day of the blockade, was one of dense, swirling fog. It was just this kind of weather the dry navy commanders feared most, as it would permit the rum runners their best opportunity of running the blockade. But the government men said that, so far as they knew, not a bit of liquor had trickled into the country from rum row.

Rum row evidently anticipated an attempt at blockade running, for a number of the whiskey carriers were found to have weighed anchor and stood in close to shore. Two new ships —steamer and a schooner, joined the coleaguered rum boats during the night the dry sailors reported.

The "distillery" raid will lead to the arrest of some important men in the land bootleg industry, the government agents said. Names of a number of "higher-ups" had been obtained by the raiders, who found the plant and its $50,000 worth of redistilled machinery in full operation. Two employes, brothers, were arrested.

Other government agents, United States marshals, went to the army base in South Brooklyn, where they destroyed 2,679 cases of liquor valued at $250,000. They crashed the bottles against a pier head and dumped the liquor in the sea. The liquor, including champagne, whiskey and wine, had been seized during the last year from eight rum running boats.

Prior to the taking of the vote the proceedings were enlivened by a bountiful display of silk fabrics and various types of silk stockings which members produced from their pockets. ## French Utilizing Moroccan Troops

Have Established a Solid Barrier Along the Front Where Riffian Forces Are Concentrated.

Paris, May 11—Native Moroccan troops under the command of French officers participated successfully today in operations establishing a solid barrier along the front where Abdel-Krim's Riffian forces are concentrated.

Official reports say the French advanced to their objective point without an engagement, which is interpreted as meaning that they were able with their knowledge of the country and their familiarity with the style of fighting employed by their adversaries, to accomplish their task with a minimum of difficulty.

Hardy Moroccan horsemen, who are familiar with mountain skirmishing, were used on the left of the French line, where indications were observed by French air scouts that the Riffians intended to outflank the French column. In the center of the front, the Riffs put up stout opposition to Colonel Frydenburg's advancing column which was moving to supply the surrounded outpost of Bab Ouender. The official report omits to say whether the outpost was recovered, but the column got near enough to supply food and water to the beseiged garrison.

The reinforcements which Marshal Lyautey has been awaiting before making a vigorous drive to clear the French zone entirely of invaders are gradually approaching the scene of action.

SENATOR BORAH VIEWS ON PROPOSED WORLD COURT

Voiced to Unitarian Laymen's League in Boston That He Would Have the Court Function Under a Body of International Law, Free From the Domination of Political Institutions—Does Not Ask That the Present Court, Created by the League of Nations, be Abolished.

Boston, May 11—The world court should be entirely divorced from the league of nations "in the interests of peace, and of law and order in international affairs," Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, declared tonight in an address to the Unitarian Laymen's League. He reiterated that his objection to the tribunal as now constituted related wholly to its domination by the league.

"I have no objection to it because the league created it," Senator Borah said. "I do not care about the fact that league created it if the league will give it independence. It is the court as it is to function and not its parentage that I am interested in.

"I think it's in the interest of peace that this court function under a body of international law and absolutely free from the domination or direction of international political institutions."

The group of which he is a member does not ask that the present court be discarded, Senator Borah insisted, but are merely "asking for certain changes in the statute which can be easily brought about if an independent judicial tribunal is wanted."

"The fundamental objection to this court," he continued, "is the right or authority which the league is given to call upon the court for advice or counsel and to treat it in a large measure as a department of justice of the league."

Further evidence of the special influence wielded by the league upon the court, Senator Borah held, was found in the requirement, that when a question was presented from the league the court must "meet with the utmost dispatch" if not then sitting.

"Among other things provided," the senate leader added, "is that the council of the league may call upon this court to advise each arbitration committee which may be organized."

The international court, then, he said, is subject to the call of a political council for advice on any problem that might arise in Europe, which advice may be entirely ignored if the council so desires. If pending amendments to the league covenant are adopted, he went on to say, "ten men are given the authority and right to determine absolutely the question of peace or war."

"They may go so far as to excuse and exempt aggression," he said. "When they do determine upon the question of war, they have a right to call upon all members of the league for military support. And every member of the league is obligated to support the cause. The war once begun under the authority of the league, I cannot end until these same ten men declare that it may end."

MACMURRAY HONORED BY WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY

Middletown, May 11.—John Van Antwerp MacMurray, assistant secretary of state, who was recently appointed minister to China, received the honorary degree of doctor of civil law from James L. McConaughy, president of Wesleyan university today. The degree was conferred at this time because Mr. MacMurray will leave for China before the commencement exercises at Wesleyan in June.

In his speech following the presentation of the degree, Mr. MacMurray traced the growth of the diplomatic service as he had observed it during the past 18 years. He was one of the first men to enter the service under the present system of examinations and also is one of the youngest men to hold an important post.

Mr. MacMurray said that when he entered the service, few young men enlisted for the branch of work with an idea of making it a career. He said there was only a small prospect of advancement from the ranks at that time and said that the diplomatic service, when he entered it, gave but small appeal to men who took life seriously and hoped for a career.

Many changes have been made, however, in the standard of the service, he said, and now an attempt is being made to build up a tradition. The personnel of the service, the speaker continued, is drawn from men of high standard and the foreign service today offers opportunity for the use of the best in character and mind.

GREAT BRITAIN WINS CONTENTION FOR WARSHIPS

Geneva, May 11—Supported by the United States, Canada and enough other countries to get a majority, Great Britain today succeeded in carrying through her proposal to have warships and airplanes excluded from the control which it was hoped to establian over the traffic in armaments. This exclusion from control applies to submarines, airships, seaplanes and other war vessels.

The decision was reached by the military, naval and air committees of the international conference on the trade in arms munitions, but as every state is represented in this committee, there seems to be little chance that reservations will be taken in full session of the conference.

The majority for the British proposal was close, and it got smaller and smaller as the president worked down through the list until a deadlock was reached. When it came to a vote on armored trains, three votes were taken and each time they resulted in a tie. The committee finally decided as an exception to retain tanks as armament, the sale of which should be subjected to supervision and publicity.

10,000 PERSON IN SAFETY PARADE IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, May 11.—(A. P.)—Ten thousand persons, 3,000 of them children, paraded Fifth avenue in the rain today to demonstrate safety.

Seventy floats, each bearing a tableau safety lesson, and 36 bands were in the line which came under the review of Mayor Hylan and other city officials.

A large section of the pageant was given over to a depiction of the progress of transportation from the slow and safe ox cart days to the present time of whizzing vehicles of air, sea and land. Also in line were a number of early day bicycles.

The float titles were something of a safety education in themselves.

"Watch your step for safety's sake," read one, and another caption went "Wait—it may save your life." "Play safe" and "Don't let your children play in the streets" were titles designed to make play safe for children. This stinging aphorism was displayed for motor speeders: "Fools used to blow out the gas; now they step on it."

New York's police department's growth had novel depiction. Men in the costumes of the city's first policemen, in 1646, marched first, followed by representatives of the New Omsterdam guard of 1693, the bellmen of 1750, the constables of 1830, the 1861 uniformed guard and the old Broadway guard of 1890, the city's first traffic squad.

THREAD MILL WHISTLES CALL BACK ONLY 13 WORKERS

Willimantic, May 11—The overture made by the officials of the American Thread Co., plant Monday morning, proved absolutely fruitless, as far as re-enlisting the strikers on the company's terms was concerned.

Shortly before 5:30 o'clock the striking body of the operatives of the plant assembled in front of the Gem Theatre on Main street. At six the procession started for the gates of the company's plant, where for the first time since the strike began, ten weeks ago, the mills were to open under power. A crowd of about two thousand spectators, many of them employes of other textile concerns, gathered to watch. There were close to 1,800 in line, most of them carrying American flags. The strikers moved down the street in a most orderly manner, passed as far as Recreation Park and counter-marched, coming to a stop in the front of mill gate No. 11. For the first time in nine weeks the mill whistle sounded at 6:48. It was greeted with a cheer. The second one, coming at seven, was also greeted by cheering. During the interim, according to pickets on duty, not a man or a woman entered the mill gates. Hundreds of people stod on the walk, and crowded Carey Hill overlooking the company house. According to the figures of the pickets, only thirteen of the number of operatives at work last week passed through before the gates were closed, at seven o'clock.

The single instance of anything like a disturbance was the complaint of one worker that he was struck in the back by a woman. He was escorted to the gate by Lieutenant McLean. About eight, the strikers re-formed and marched back to the Gem Theatre, where a mass meeting jammed the place to the doors.

Organizer R. Horace Riviere, the first speaker, congratulated the strikers on their orderly procession and their behavior at the mill gates, saying that no new operatives had returned to work and that the same unity showed that morning and at the attendance at the meeting would surely bring back the restoration of wages, which was the reason for the strike.

Miss Mary Kelleher spoke along lines of advice to the strikers, as to future conduct, urging continued attendance at the mass meetings and an alert picket line.

Edward Callahan, of Philadelphia, considered "Waste in Textile Plants", speaking especially of the loss to the city, to the operatives, and to the plans occasioned by the strike. Announcement was made that this (Tuesday) morning's speaker will be Edward F. Callahan and on Wednesday State Senator John H. Powers, of Cumberland, R. I., will address the strikers.

DENIES BRINGING STATE POLICE TO WILLIMANTIC

Willimantic, May 11—Before a hectic gathering of hundreds of striking operatives of the American Thread company and other residents of the city, Acting Mayor George W. Hickey tonight disclaimed any responsibility for the arrival in Willimantic of a troop of state police officers to maintain order on the picket line at the company's gates during the crisis of the strike. The coming of the state officers struck a blow at the hometown pride of the strikers who deemed the act unnecessary and a stain not only on the reputation of the city but also to their strike policies which have been to refrain from physical violence under all circumstances. The question "who brought the state police to Willimantic?" swept the city like wildfire and under that slogan the strikers packed the town hall tonight and demanded that the inquiry be answered. The May meeting of the council was called to order in the council chamber and adjourned to the main hall where the councilmen were seated on the stage. They were greeted with a salvo of applause as they entered before the audience.

Asked for remarks the strikers, but little time in voicing the burning question. "For your benefit my friends," answered Acting Mayor George W. Hickey, "I state emphatically that I did not bring the state police to Willimantic." The acting mayor had generally been blamed for the act and his reply was met with a loud cheer. The duties of the mayor regarding the upholding of law and keeping the peace were then defined in detail by Corporation Counsel Thomas J. Kelley who read from Sections in the general statutes and the city charter. He concluded that legally the mayor or city sheriff did not possess the right to summon state aid under the existing circumstances. The counsel's explanation apparently failed to carry with it unanimous satisfaction although it took the blame from the shoulders of the mayor and considerable heckling ensued. The strikers held out for an answer to their original question. Mayor Hickey told of his knowledge of a conference held last week between Agent Don H. Curtis of the local plant, Supt. of the State Police Hurley and Chief of Police Allen McArthur. The last named was asked if he was not handicapped due to the lack of local police officers and if he would not appreciate outside help. To these questions he answered "no." This report, however, did not suffice to answer the question and the battle of words continued after it had been made plain that no effort was being made to intimidate the mayor or any other executive. Alderman William T. Jackson openly objected to having police conferences held anywhere but in police headquarters.

Alderman James J. Lee then occupied the floor for several minutes. He could see no reason for the coming of the state police and stated that the mere appearance of the state police at the mills would have a tendency to cause tumult and excitement. He feared that these officers would misunderstand demonstrations and their intervention would cause disorder. It was with this thought that he had suggested that the strikers walk under the protection of American flags during their parade from the mills to their mass meeting Monday morning. If there were slight disturances last week he charged that it was due to the arrival of a group of armed thugs brought here as strike breakers by the Thread company and to the actions of former chief of police Edgar W. Richmond, now connected with the company. "I am opposed to the principle of the American Thread company," said Alderman Lee, "and to the authority which the concern uses in holding sway over Willimantic, apparently inclusive of its police department." In summing up he said that the joke appeared to be on Supt. Hurley who had been led to expect a riot and instead of that heard a lot of singing and cheering. He offered the following resolution which was accepted by acclamation by the audience and unanimously approved by the councilmen: "That it be the sense of the common council that a petition be made to the governor of the state of Connecticut to have the state police officers removed from Willimantic."

Their question not answered but their suspicion regarding the chief executive dampened, the strikers accorded Mayor Hickey a round of applause as he pledged his love for Willimantic. The councilmen returned to the chamber at 9 o'clock for the regular meeting and the strikers left still pondering over their problem as to who was responsible for the state officers.

NORWICH TOWN

Special sermons for Mother's Day were heard in some of the Norwich Town churches on Sunday. At the First Congregational church, at the morning worship, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey preached impressively on Mothers. The text referred to was Luke 2:51, And He went down with them and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them; but His mother kept all these sayings in her heart. During the service, the following delegates, Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin and Mrs. Henry D. Frasier, were appointed to represent this church at the spring conference of New London Association of Churches and Ministers, to be held at the Jewett City Congregational church Tuesday, May 19th. Honor thy Father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord, thy God, giveth thee. There was no evening sermon, Rev. Mr. Aldrich united and had a part in the Young Peoples Christian Endeavor service, in its place. Where and How Should We Spend Sunday? with several Scripture references, was the topic. ## CONVERSATIONS IN PROGRESS IN FRENCH WAR DEBT

Washington, May 11—Developments during the day with regard to the revival of informal conversations in Washington and Paris as to debt settlement questions, failed to indicate that any concrete plan of settlement had as yet been advanced by either government as a basis for discussion.

A guarded admission at the state department that the informal conversations were in progress, coupled with a reiterated statement that the Washington attitude against direct assignment of German reparation payments under the Dawes plan to liquidate war debts to this country had not been changed, was the only authoritative information obtainable on the questions. Behind this reticence, however, may the st rong impression that added presure for a settlement by France had been exerted recently in several informal ways.

Holy War Declared

Rabat, Morocco, May 11—Information has reached here that Abd-el-Krim has declared a holy war, and sent his brother Ahmed to the region of Xauen to raise troops among the djebal tribes.

These reports have had little effect on the tribes in the French Zone, which, it is stated, have been assured of protection by the arrival of reinforcements for General Count de Chamburn's army.

Every growing child craves candy. Active little bodies demand sugar. But children's candy must be pure—and they should not overeat on sweets.

Life Savers, the little candy mints with the hole (life saver shape), answer this problem in just the right way. They are china-hard and deliciously flavored. This means that Life Savers are eaten slowly. Children suck them to make those wonderful flavors last longer. Little tummies are not upset. And they are kind to tiny teeth.

Life Savers are safe and wholesome. You may conscientiously be generous with them, for they are the ideal candy for little folks.

Six flavors are displayed at all good stores so you may help yourself: Pep-o-mint, Wint-o-green, Cinn-o-mon, Lic-o-rice, Ci-e-ve and Vi-o-let. Five cents package.—Life Savers, Inc., Port Chester, N. Y.

It appeared to many familiar with woodland conditions that the forest fire menace is practically a thing of the past for the season, following the heavy rain of the early hours of Monday morning and subsequent showers during the day. The rains gave the woodlands a thorough drenching. It is anticipated that new grass will have advanced so rapidly before the fields and woods dry up again as to practically eliminate the danger of further fires.

Because its owner—a woman—is too modest to have her name mentioned in connection with this item, it will have to be written merely as the tale of a duck that is at Elmville, is twelve years of age and is laying now every day. This ancient duck is producing perfectly good eggs. They are strictly fresh eggs every day. This ancient duck is producing perfectly good eggs. They are strictly fresh eggs every day and in no way reveal the fact that their producer is so aged. Such a duck would have been appreciated by Li Hung Chang, who when he came from China to this country on a mission for the government brought along a supply of eggs said to have been 300 years old. If the great Chinese statesman had explored and insisted upon antiquity in connection with his tall supply of eggs the duck might have helped him think at least that he was getting ripe old eggs because they came from such a venerable layer.

WESTERLY

The second week of Superior court for Washington county, in the consideration of the Westerly Trial calendar, came in Monday morning, with Judge Edward W. Blodgett on the bench. Miss Edna Hallihan, in the absence of Clerk W. Herbert Caswell, acted as court clerk, when the Civil docket was taken up. But one case May de Simone vs. Patsy De Placito, was disposed of last week with judgment of $146.08 for the plaintiff.

The first case ready for trial Monday morning was Michael Juliano, represented by Attorney A. T. L. Ledwidge vs. Frank Iacano & Co., a suit brought to recover for lumber bought on a contract in 1922. The following jury was empanneled to try the case: Frank A. Peckham, merchant, foreman, James B. Barber, clerk, of North Kingstown; James Pardon Brown, carpenter, Ernest K. Thomas, mgr. agri. dept., of South Kingstown; Leo C. Nye, painter, Raymond A. Spargo, agriculturist, Robert Drysdale, Jr., plumber, of Westerly; William Burgess, laborer, William Clarke, teamster, Claude Hopkins, teamster, of Hopkinton; Joseph M. Foster, weaver, of Richmondand George P. Briggs, carpenter of Narragansett. Attorney Ledwidge asked for a recess until 2 o'clock as there was a possibility of a settlement. The spare jurors were excused to report this (Tuesday) morning at 10:45 o'clock. Trial of the case was begun at 2 p. m.

Sat down to follow the Juliano-Iacano suit was, Albert L. Castritius vs. Henry P. Walton to the court; The A. L. Castritius Co. vs. Earl Barber, alias for jury trial; William F. Totten vs. Lawrence E. Maine; John F. Davis vs. Louis LaFountain; and it was expected that Mr. Brightman would be back from Chicago in time for Lewis S. McNeil vs. Henry M. Brightman. Judge Blodgett informed the lawyers present that he would be in Westerly for the entire week to consider the docket, "if it did not break down," as Attorney Ledwidge added.

An automobile accident involving three cars but with no injury to the occupants was the result of a collision on the Boston Post road Sunday afternoon, at about 3:30 o'clock, a half mile east of Dunn's Corners. As a result of the mishap Benjamin M. Rawlings of 241 Meeting street, Providence, driver of one of the cars, was given a summons to appear before Judge Turano in the Third District court.

According to information given the police by witnesses, the trouble started when a Durant sedan owned and driven by Rawlings bumped into a state highway fence at the left side of the road while proceeding in an easterly direction. The left rear fender was bent inward, cut and grazed by contact with the fence. In turning away from the fence that he had just hit, Rawlings grazed a Star touring car owned and driven by Joseph Browney of 58 Randall street, Pawtucket, a former Westerly resident, who with his wife and three children was returning home from a visit in Westerly.

The bump from Rawlings' Durant car caused Browney to bump into an Oakland sedan owned and driven by Charles A. Hazler of Groton. Meanwhile the Durant car cut in front of the Oakland, causing the latter machine to go off the road and upon the bank at the right, where it turned over on its left side. The driver and five other pasengers crawled uninjured from the sedan. Although shaken up and frightened, they were not hurt. The occupants were Mr. Hazler, his wife and Conrad Kinney, all of 75 Pleasant street, Groton; Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Smith, 21 Stanton street, Westerly, and Henry Mell, 17 Pearl street, Mystic. Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Officer Robert Kessel investigated the accident. On orders from Chief Brown, Officer Kessel gave Rawlings, driver of the Durant sedan, a summons to appear in court Friday morning.

The foggy atmosphere and damp condition of the road is presumed to have been partly responsible for the collisions.

Three men were given fines Sunday before M. Walter Flynn, Jr., clerk of the Third District court, on charges of intoxication. George Green, arrested Saturday night by Officer George Champlin on Railroad avenue, was fined $5 and costs, making a total bill of $8.30.

Michael Shea, taken into custody on Canal street by Officer Champlin, was ordered to pay a similar fine and costs aggregating $8.80.

Michael Collins, also arrested on Canal street by Officer Champlin, was fined $2 and costs amounting in all to $5.80.

As the result of a machine in which she was riding overturning near the Perryville Baptist church about 11 o'clock Sunday morning, Miss Jane Wilcox of Mystic was removed to the South County Cottage Hospital for treatment. She was discharged late in the afternoon. Dr. Henry B. Potter took 14 stitches in a bad laceration of the woman's face. The machine, said to have been driven by Miss C. M. Wheeler, Mystic, skidded on the wet highway and overturned, coming to a halt when it struck a stone wall near the side of the road. The car was badly damaged and was removed by a wrecker.

Westerly friends of Clarence E. Money, 71, were saddened to learn of his death Sunday at his home in Carolina. He lived in Westerly for many years, his last place of residence before moving to Carolina being on Granite street, corner of Summer street.

CONFERENCE NOT PUBLIC— CITIZENS HAVE TO LEAVE

Westerly, R. I., May 11—More than 50 citizens and tax-payers of Westerly assembled in the council chambers of Westerly town hall, Monday evening, at a joint conference between Westerly town council and Westerly high commission, relative to charges preferred by Charles J. Butler, a member of the commission and a former postmaster of Westerly. Assembled about the mahogany table were President Clifford W. Campbell, a representative to the state legislature from the second Westerly district, Councilmen Thomas H. Morrison, George B. Utter, a representative to the state legislature from the first Westerly district, Louis J. Rossi, Charles S. Fowler, John D. Nichols Farquhar Smith and Council Clerk Everett E. Whipple. At the other end of the table was Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., and Town Treasurer, James M. Pendleton, while at the other end were seated, Highway Commissioner Charles F. Berry, Elihu H. Chesebro, and Highway Engineer A. L. Leon. Outside of the railing was Charles J. Butler and Town Auditors Richard J. Butler and Harold Dickens Livingstone.

Council President Campbell declared, "I'm sorry that you people (those assembled in the chamber) are here under a misapprehension. It was said at the council meeting or in the newspapers that there would be a public meting. I'll let Mr. Whipple read the minutes of the meeting concerning that point." Clerk Whipple then read from his records that the town auditors and highway commissioners, were to meet to discuss with the council matters relative to the highway department. Some present at the last council meeting recalled President Campbell's saying when the question was brought up as to who should attend, "Let anybody come who can shed any light upon the subject." After the reading President Campbell further announced, "I'm sorry but this is going to be a closed meeting." Those assembled outside the railing with the exception of the officials left the chamber and congregated in the corridor and on the town hall steps.

Through the open transom floated the words of Highway Commissioner Butler which sounded like, "There was a shortage of $23,500 in the highway accounts," and then at the direction of President Campbell, Auditor Livingstone came and slammed the transom shut.

After a long discussion, it was voted as reported, that a resolution be adopted by a committee composed of George B. Utter and Farquhar Smith, assisted by Town Solicitor Ferguson and Town Clerk Whipple. The resolution must to be satisfactory to all parties concerned, the full text is to be released as soon after 9 o'clock Tuesday morning as it can be typed by the town clerk. The resolution was brought before the meeting, read and altered to suit those present. It is understood that it was questioned as to the authority of the highway commision to expend the sum of $23,000 in excess of the 1924 appropriation out of the 1925 figure. From the highway commissioner's report page 40, Ex. B. of the highway commision it was learned where the money had gone, and Mr. Butler agreed that he had been a party to the contracting of amounts there set forth. He very emphatically denied being a party to the exceeding of the appropriation.

THIS WOMAN'S REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Entirely Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Forest City, Iowa.—"My first child lived only a short time and I was sick for a year after. When I bent over and raised myself up again I could almost scream with pain in my back. One day I was so bad that I had to leave my washing and get ready to go to the doctor. He gave me medicine but it did no more good than if I drank just water. Once when we had been in town a little book telling about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was left in our car. I have taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound now and I do all my housework and help with the milking and taking care of chickens and garden. Besides I have a fine baby girl eight months old, just the picture of health and I am feeling fine myself. You may use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer any letters asking about the Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. OSCAR F. BORGELIN, Route No. 5, Forest City, Iowa.

Begin with a dish of PRUNES

It's surprising what a difference they will make.

For one thing, Prunes insure an enjoyable breakfast—a cheerful start for the day. Properly cooked, they have few rivals in flavor.

And also, Prunes are the most healthful of fruits: They supply the mineral salts, sugars and vitamines that other good breakfast fruits have. But more than that, they have the natural cellulose or tender fruit tissue needed to provide bulk in the alimentary canal and aid proper elimination.

Here's a Good Rule to Follow!

Make Prunes a "habit" in your home! Enjoy them often—for their healthfulness, their fine flavor, and because they are one of the most economical of fruit-foods.

And be sure you get the best Prunes—sweet, plump, thin-skinned SUNSWEET PRUNES from the famous California orchards—selected, packed and sold by the growers themselves.

Your grocer can supply you: Sealed in our new, sanitary 2 lb. carton—or in bulk, from the regular 25 lb. SUNSWEET box. Order SUNSWEET Prunes today—then enjoy them, cooked as follows:

A Quick Way to Cook Prunes

Wash SUNSWEET PRUNES, cover with hot water and allow to soak one hour. Being to the boiling point in the same water in which they were soaked, cover and cook until Prunes are tender, from thirty to forty-five minutes. Add sugar ten minutes before removing from fire. Allow one tablespoon to one cup of Prunes, measure before soaking or cooking. If a thick syrup is desired, remove Prunes to serving dish when tender, and boil the liquid until it is of the desired consistency. A little orange peel, lemon juice or stick cinnamon improves the flavor for some tastes.

TACKLING RUM ROW

From the reports received concerning the operations of the dry fleet that is engaged in putting rum row out of business, it would appear that success was marking the undertaking thus far, that communication with the sellers of liquor on the high seas was being interrupted, discouragement caused and the transfer of liquor stopped.

It is of course too soon to judge the success of the effort, and yet inasmuch as there is a law to uphold and the dry forces have set out to obtain enforcement there can be no such thing as accepting a failure. Having made a start, and a favorable one, it is a case of continuing to make good.

The situation resembles very much that which existed at the beginning of prohibition. There was a disposition to test the law and it was rather customary to obtain liquor as long as there was uncertainty as to just what form enforcement might take. But as soon as it was indicated that violators had little to fear there were many willing to engage in the business and plenty of liquor to be had. The present effort is for the purpose of breaking one source of wet goods, of shutting off that line of traders who would have others to commit the act in question and to have it understood that it represents a new policy in enforcement which is intended to meet the situation which has developed.

I realize with rum row simply means the violation of the dry section. Only a small part of the coast line is included in the present campaign but in addition similar activities are to stop the smuggling of liquor into the country is to be disappointed. The chances of the persons of the government officials and in charge along the Canadian border.

The present work is clearly being launched on a new basis. It has been launched from the beginning that the present enforcement work was carried on to a large degree for the purpose of showing the law to accomplish what was expected. There is still a great deal better enforcement and what has been accomplished represents a remarkable record with an apparent readiness on the witnesses of the past.

SAVING THE HISTORIC

[illegible] effort has been made in the preservation of the [illegible] York where the fifth President of the United State, James [illegible] spent his last days and died. [illegible] an historical place and [illegible] a certain number of people who appreciate the [illegible] of preserving [illegible] there have been [illegible] of a like character there was a lack of [illegible] a particular object, the [illegible] made it impossible [illegible] necessary amount to acquire the building. The building [illegible] stands at the corner of [illegible] and Lafayette streets will soon be torn down and a large loft [illegible] erected in its place. New [illegible] in demand for business buildings of that character, while it appears to [illegible] the desire for the preservation of landmarks of such a type.

The result is discouraging to those who had sought to keep intact the building which has stood for more than a century, but it is only what has happened in many communities where similar efforts have been started. Even in the largest city in the country the raising of $500,000 was more than the community would indulge in for such a purpose.

The preservation of such historic landmarks is more and more becoming the duty of patriotic organizations, which recognize the desirability of thus helping to keep the present in closer touch with the past. But it is clearly evident that even the patriotic organizations are not possessed of funds that will permit them to do all they would like to do in such a direction. Their spirit is willing but their resources are limited. Their purpose is excellent but they must have help, and they deserve the encouragement that goes with the full and adequate support of just such undertakings as that which has failed in New York city. When they get it there will be fewer landmarks placed in the hands of the building wreckers.

FIREWORKS

Statistics are presented by the National Fire Protective association to show that the money loss from fires caused by fireworks in this country has nearly doubled in the last half dozen years, and now reaches the total of about $750,000 a year.

It also makes reference to the good results that were accomplished by the campaigns for safety and sanity in Fourth of July celebrations, pointing to the reduction in the dead from 215 to 41 between 1909 and 1912 and the decreased in the injured from 5093 to 947 throughout the country during the same period.

The Fourth is not the only time when fireworks are brought into use, but in view of the disclosures there has been an inclination on the part of communities to place greater restrictions on their use for the protection of life and property. Perhaps as much good as any has been accomplished by convincing the people that it is far preferable to abandon practices rather than to continue to sacrifice lives and to waste property.

For the most part there have been restrictions established in one way or another in the interest of safety, but the National Fire Protective association believes that "the greatest need in legislation is for laws which will effectively prevent the use of fireworks by children and irresponsible persons," and it would do this by prohibiting the sale and use of fireworks altogether except for public displays under adequate supervision by the proper authorities.

This of course if pushed would mean entering upon a similar campaign as that which was opened when it became necessary to educate the people to the wisdom of a safe and sane Fourth. It is not the pleasure that comes from fireworks that the association is endeavoring to interfere with, but to get protection for lives and property by preventing the agency which causes so much trouble and distress when wrongly used or when used by children or irresponsible persons, whose regard for safety is invariably secondary.

KEEPING DOWN EXPENDITURES

Perhaps it is none too early to realize that the aim of President Coolidge for the reduction of the government expenditures for the fiscal year 1926 so that they will not exceed $3,000,000,000 is likely to encounter obstructions in congress.

There were those in the last congress who did not hesitate to say that the pruning of expenses ought to stop and there have been others who have given voice to the belief that the time has gone by when there can be any further reductions. Some have put forth the prediction that henceforth it can be expected that government appropriations will show an increase instead of a decrease.

With such a sentiment as that it would indicate that the president's policy of economy promises to experience opposition, it being the apparent belief on the part of some that it is time for the bringing back of the days when the old pork barrel was jammed full for distribution here, there and yon for various purposes and out of which much benefit was gained in the building of political fences.

Such a helter skelter shoveling out of treasury funds was brought to a halt when the budget system was adopted. The value of such a system has been thoroughly demonstrated. It means the replacement of the extravagance and waste of the past with business methods and reduced expenditures, all of which works to the advantage of the people through reductions in taxes.

The president has no thought of going back to the days when each congress was expected to spend more than its predecessor, and in that stand he has the backing of the people. The president's plan to have congress save rather than throw away money may be fought by certain members of congress but they will make a poor showing before the voters of the country if they undertake to upset it.

HIGHWAY TREES

In connection with the observance of arbor day in the neighboring state of Rhode Island, Governor Pothier had something to say that was timeless received the attention it deserved from the people of that commonwealth, but it applies equally well to other states.

Like other states Rhode Island is spending no small sum of money in the construction of good roads. These highways are opening up important sections of the state to visitation by great numbers of people, and while there is an attractiveness about the Rhode Island landscape the governor has pointed out that there are also some unsightly stretches and that these might be much improved if the community spirit was awakened to the point of supplying trees for these roadsides.

Probably Governor Pothier does not offer his suggestion as original, but one which has been followed in other states with excellent results and which is worthy of being employed for equally pleasing effect in Rhode Island.

On numerous memorial highways, whether they cross states or are simply community affairs, the idea of setting out trees along the improved roads has been worked out in such a manner as to create a delightful impression. The attractiveness of such a scheme strongly appeals to all, and when the Rhode Island governor declares that it is an improvement that should be shouldered by the communities or towns through which the roads pass, and not be left for the state to do, he appeals to the civic pride to assert itself and his suggestion should result in a keen rivalry between communities to set and keep the pace. Others who see a chance to employ such a plan should not hesitate to adopt it.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

Washington, May 11—The foreign service school of the United States state department has started its first session with 30 candidates who passed the entrance examinations last January and who will, as unclassified foreign service officers, undergo training for some months to fit them for their work. The school was authorized by executive order of June 1924, as provided by act of congress, and the normal school term will be for one year during which candidates will be on probation. However, due to shortage of personnel, the present class will be in probationary training but about five months. Those who pass the entrance examinations to be held next July will serve the full year term.

The school proposes to give lectures and practical, or laboratory work. The latter is to consist of the detail of each member of the class in rotation to the visa office, the division of passport control, the division of foreign administration, the commercial office, the bureaus of accounts, indexes and archives, and finally the geographical division covering the particular country to which the neophyte is to be assigned. Except during lectures the pupils will be in constant attendance in the divisions. Lecture work takes two hours daily and embraces talks on the different phases of the foreign service work, current political problems, foreign commerce, exchange and banking, the functioning of the various governmental departments, etc. Department of state officials and specialists on various subjects will give these talks. The subjects included in the foreign service work are political reporting, commercial work, alien visas and immigration, passport work and citizenship, extradition, shipping and seamen, estates, representation of foreign governments, protection of interests, diplomatic procedure, and general routine. It is the aim of the school board to give pupils an insight into the operations of government and some of the major problems confronting it. The general courses will include a study of the American government with particular reference to the conduct of foreign relations; and an exposé of a number of international questions such as the league of nations, reparations, the Monroe doctrine, pan-Americanism, disarmament, the Washington conference, oil concessions, cables, submarines, etc.

The purpose of the school is to prepare young officials for immediate work in the field. No candidate whose sole credential is a letter labeled "deserving democrat," or "privileged republican" for that matter, is eligible. This check has struck the last note announcing the end of the spoils system in the foreign service of the United States.

Norbert Lyons, secretary of the American Chamber of Commerce for the Philippines, writes:

A glance at the map of the far east will reveal the Philippines as occupying almost the geographical center of that region. They form an important link in the insular chain that separates China and the continent of Asia from the Pacific ocean. Acquisition of this link by any foreign power otherwise interested in the far east would mean the securing of a very great advantage, as it is ideally situated for a base of trading activities and could also serve as a base for naval operations. At any rate it controls the door to China from the Pacific side.

Of course, in these tripping times of peace to strike a note on the value of a territory from the viewpoint of military strategy would be to perpetrate a discord. But it may freely be discussed from the commercial angle, and what Mr. Lyons says is geographically and logically sound. It is this location of the Philippines that has caused the suggestion that there be established at Manila a great entrepot for American merchandise, where our wares may be properly stored, displayed and advertised, and orders taken per sample, or filled from an ever-replenished stock. Couple that with the extension of our coastwise shipping laws to the Philippines and Uncle Sam would have John Chinaman by the queue on a downhill pull, and the rest of the orient and antipodes in leading strings. It is a large undertaking, requiring great courage, but in stimulating our trans-Pacific trade ($1,630,000,000 last year) it would be amply justified by the benefits accorded to mankind in general and to the United States in particular.

For a number of years past it has been the earnest desire of the people to get the government out of business. In order to do this it has taken carefully considered planning and now the people are aware of the fact that business has a problem of its own, namely, the elimination of the waste in production and distribution. This is a problem that is being carefully studied by the leading business men of all industries throughout the nation. Another angle that confronts the people is the matter of local taxation. This is one that must be dealt with by the states, counties and cities, and it must be dealt with in a manner that does not savor of "kid glove" methods. It may hurt a certain class of office holders, but it will save the balance of the people of the country large sums of money.

One thing is evident, and that is that the president does not desire to do anything that will change the prosperous condition in which this country now is.

Because the radicals in congress can not control the federal trade commission, it is reported they will move for the abolition of the commission when the next congress meets. And they probably will have little trouble in bringing about that end, for however much the commission may have been improved since President Coolidge took the reins of government, it developed an immense amount of bad will under the previous administration, and, indeed, during the campaign of 1924. Besides, federal commission are losing caste. They meddle too much and achieve too little. They are more destructive than constructive, and they are one of the symptoms of bureaucracy. The work they are supposed to do could probably be quite as well accomplished under departmental control.

The federal trade commission has in the past been the most pestiferous busy body of the lot and the report of its good work would not occupy very much space in printed form. It was a democratic creation, made at a time when the states were being reduced to mere provinces, and individual rights had been made matters of public inquisition. So long as radical politicians could use it to stir up trouble, they were content to have it remain. Now that some sense had been put into it, they desire to kill it. There will be few who attend the funeral.

$702,000,000 is the amount of the reduction of the public debt of the United States during the year ending April 30th, according to the announcement made by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

This means that interest charges, the burden of which falls on the tax payers, have been reduced by approximately $26,000,000.

Peru has refused to ante in the diplomatic game she has been playing with Chile, and in which she has been losing because of poor hands. Chile has submitted her estimate of expenses for carrying out the Coolidge award, but Peru has declined to submit hers. Not long ago there was some talk of an international court of justice to be established by the nations of the western hemisphere. This was Baltasar Brum's idea—former Uruguayan president. The United States was cold to the proposition and the way Peru is acting with respect to the Tacna-Arica dispute is not calculated to argue in favor of the plan idea.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

William G. Leo, who is a candidate for re-election to the presidency of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen at the triennial convention which opens in Cleveland today, has been at the head of the organization since 1908. Mr. Lee is an Illinoisan; who began his working career as a brakeman on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, and until 1884 continued in that role. For the next four years he was a county official in Kansas. Then he resumed railroading as a conductor on the Union Pacific, and soon became conspicuous as an organizer of the men. From 1895 to 1909 he was vice-president of the order of which, since 1909 he has been president. He is of a positive, aggressive type, possesses unusual executive capacity, and, by his record in negotiations with railway managers, has built up a degree of loyalty in the rank and file which has assured his re-election to the office several times.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

IMPROVEMENTS NEEDED

"I believe in second sight," declared the girl who likes to talk, "because so many times just a glance at a person or a situation will let the whole future flash upon you quite clearly. Why, I can describe that woman's daily life, if she marries that man, down to what they will have for breakfast and how many tears she will shed! I wish she'd let me tell her about it!"

"Folks have trouble enough without your mixing in!" the patient listener assured her with some spirit.

"And of course," the girl who likes to talk proceeded, "if I did manage to do her a good turn she would be firmly convinced that I was trying to get her prize away from her! It never fails. Well, these two had seats at the theatre right next to me and from the resentful way the lady removed her wraps from my chair as we came in I gathered that she wished everybody within fifty feet of herself and Jovey had been obliged to stay home that night with a sudden attack of something fatal.

"She wasn't so young and never had been so very pretty, but she had spent at least two solid hours on her face and her hair and her hands and was beautifully groomed. Going out with him that evening had been a tremendous event—and he never even saw her. When he spoke it was about something he had done or was going to do or thought.

"He was a big man and would have been good looking if he had not been slouchy. Now a slouchy man is lazy, and a man who is too lazy to primp when he is taking a girl to the theatre isn't thinking very much about her.

"She looked up at him with a perfectly doglike devotion and from the tones of her voice you could not fail to realize that to her he was perfect. In fact, she had not got over the wonder of his condescending to pay attention to her when no doubt he might have had his choice of all the world's beauties. I didn't wonder at it because she really was mighty nice—and, besides, nobody wears three diamond rings like her unless she has wealth.

"We all sat in the front row in the balcony and between acts he leaned over, looking at the people in the parquet and absent-mindedly reaching back into the candy box she held, incidentally grabbing two chocolates at a time. Maybe I have made him sound like a ditch digger, but he was exactly the sort of man you would meet out at dinner anywhere. His English was collegiate and as a casual acquaintance he would have passed muster. I was regarding him as he would be when married to the girl he had with him. Oh, they were engaged—one could tell.

"He disagreed usually with most of her remarks, disagreed not genially, cleverly or tenderly as an engaged man should, but brusquely, disdainfully, quarrelsomely. You could fairly see him trampling down every flower of love and fancy and gayety that poor girl was going to grow when they got into their own home and illusion began to withdraw its rosy veils from before her eyes. Probably he never would beat her with his fists, but he would bludgeon out every emotion except sheer endurance. Because she was the kind who would endure. She couldn't do anything else.

"If he was to run away with another woman she would see that his suitcase was packed nicely and that he had a particularly good cup of coffee to start away on.

"Once he went out to the lobby and I could have wept at the manner in which she watched him as he went. I'll bet that on their wedding trip he'll spend most of the time in the smoker, and she'll have to send the porter to buy her a magazine if she wants one! My, what wouldn't I give to have the chance to tame a brute like that!"

"But he'd be a total loss tamed," the patient listener pointed out. "If you can't make people admire you the next best thing is to make them hate you—and he seems to have succeeded with you! You certainly noticed him!"—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

Jonathan Edwards, the Ministers Son, the Great Preacher

One of the most remarkable men ever known on this continent was Jonathan Edwards, the great Massachusetts preacher. He died long before the American Revolution created a new nation, but in spite of the fact that 164 years have passed since his death it is strictly true that he is still influential in the events of the present. Jonathan Edwards, himself a man of the highest type of intellectual and spiritual power, left numerous descendants. Those who now trace their ancestry back to him—college presidents, writers, public leaders, statesmen, men of affairs—are among the most influential people now living. The history of the descendants of Jonathan Edwards is often quoted as an example of the old proverb "Blood will tell."

Within the past few months there died Merrill Edwards Gates, who attained the highest scholastic record ever gained in the University of Rochester; was president of Rutgers and of Amherst Colleges, president of the American Missionary Association, and a popular lecturer and writer. Like so many other men of his kind, he traced his family directly back to Jonathan Edwards, the Massachusetts preacher.

Jonathan Edwards' father was likewise a preacher. In those days the pay of a preacher was scarcely enough to provide the humblest food. In addition to preaching he was obliged to teach in order to provide for his family of 11 children. Jonathan Edwards, as a boy was brought up to the knowledge that he must expect none of the luxury of life, and that he must expect to work hard. From his earliest days his father, his mother, and his older sisters taught him.

Under the intensive training that he gained in an intellectual home, young Jonathan Edwards advanced rapidly, and while he was only a small boy whose thought might be supposed to be only on kites or marbles, wrote serious and learned essays. When he entered Yale he was only 13. During his college course he led everyone in scholarship, and graduated at 17 with highest honors. By the age of 19 he was preaching in New York City.

Such was the phenomenal youthful career of the future great leader of religious thought. He continued to study and he taught at Yale. Then in 1727, at the age of 24, he was made the minister in the church at Northampton, Mass., where he remained for 23 years. He preached so powerfully that he awoke all the Connecticut Valley, and he became known far and wide. He preached with such emotion that he actually threw his hearers into hysteria. At 47 he was dismissed from his Northampton church, and became a missionary to the Indians. He died at 55, the author of many books, and America's most famous man.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Two Sermons

Mr. Editor:—It has been said:

"The press is a powerful institution,
Its searchlight sweeps the globe with steady glow,
And wherever trouble's brewing,
Or there is something else that's doing,
It is there to see, and hear, and feel and know."

Its searchlight swept over two pulpits in the city of New York last Sunday week and has given us a synopsis of two sermons delivered at the same time by two distinguished divines who were agreed upon the main point of their discourse—that the old civilization was on the verge of disintegration in its ancient seats. The one, the anglican dean of Saint Paul, London, was haunted with a vision of a threatening war and feared that "modern industrialism would generate a toxin that would destroy society." His only hope was in America. Some way, some how she must drag the "old civilization" out of the mess that the last war had plunged it into. The "searchlight" did not seem to find a sign of a silver lining to Dean Inge's pessimism. He was complimentary to America, when he gave her credit of having the ability and power to be the saviour of the old-est civilization.

On the other hand, Dr. Potter, a 100 per cent American while acknowledging that the whole world was sin sick did see a chance to restore at least America to a more normal condition, that the hour had come for less talk and more action and he purposed to take a step that astounded his audience to resign from his pastorate and accept the position of executive secretary to Antioch College, Ohio, where he thinks he can better serve his country by spreading abroad the system of education that Antioch College is experimenting in, in lieu of the "inbred theoretical education" of today, which he regards as not meeting the requirements of changed conditions.

Briefly stated, Antioch College has a six years course, each student alternates academic study with work in an office or factory every five weeks. Under Dr. Potter, it will have every opportunity to prove its worth. Surely it does seem like a common sense proposition.

He who has become the dynamic force of the civilized world. Christ spent 30 years at manual labor before he began to promulgate this message of peace and love.

The co-ordination of the brain and hands is not a new idea, but this is the first time it has been put into a systematic experiment. St. Paul of wide world fame was a tentmaker and plied his trade all through his wonderful period of preaching the gospel.

At all events, Dr. Potter's step will turn the tide of thought with a channel worth while considering.

It is true that many of our boys and girls graduate from our high school with just enough book learning to make them despise manual work and there has been no opportunity for them to know what they are really capable of doing; it is equally true of college.

If Christ was the divine man—the son of God—then it would seem as though He had shown the world the most profitable way of education. William Nazlill said: "If Shakespeare was to come into the room we should all rise up to meet him; but if that person (Christ) was to come into the room, we should all fall down and try to kiss the hem of his garment." The most noted man and the most perfect man dignified manual labor.

Let us watch Dr. Potter and Antioch College.

Stories That Recall Others

He Got Out all Right.

A witness tells of seeing the following incident:

A light motor vehicle, well worn, with mud coated on the sides and having other indications of coming from the country, was driven up in front of one of the stores where there are traffic restrictions, and there being no vacant parking space the driver left the car outside of the other cars. He got out, leaving an elderly man in the front seat. The older man apparently confused by the situation, and especially so when a policeman soon came along and bawled out, "Come on. Get out of there!"

The old man looked more confused than ever when he saw that the cop was yelling at him and as the officer continued to glance back to see whether he "got out of there" the old fellow apparently decided he had better move. He scrambled out of the car and ran to the curb to wait for his [illegible] and probably ask him why the law would not permit him to stay in the waiting car.

Not Fair

Virginia was just learning to play hide and seek being just three. Brother George was "it" and calling to find sister quickly, called out: "Say something, Virginia!" Whereupon a small voice in the front room piped up: "I won't! It ain't fair!"

GRANTS RATE INCREASE TO MYSTIC WATER CO.

The public utilities commission has given a decision on the application of the Mystic Valley Water company of Stonington, for an increase in the water rates to secure for it an annual gross revenue of $60,000. This will be approximately an increase of $25,000 based on the revenue for 1924 which was approximately $32,000. The commission has allowed an increase which will produce a gross revenue of substantially $51,000.

The great enemy of teeth

Film is the great enemy of tooth beauty. And a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of pyorrhea and most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. It holds food in contact with teeth, inviting the acid that causes decay.

You can't have prettier, whiter teeth; you can't have healthier teeth unless you combat that film.

Mail the coupon now. Don't expect the same results from old type dentifrices. Begin beautifying your teeth today.

FLONZALEY QUARTET IN SPLENDID CLOSING CONCERT

The final number in the Slater hall musical course, a concert by the Flon- zaley quartet, filled Slater hall Mon- day evening with an audience that was most enthusiastic in its appreciative applause for the work of the four ar- tists, Adolfo Betti, first violin, Karl Kraeuter, second violin, Felicien d'Ar- chambeau, viola, and Iwan d'Archam- beau, violoncello.

Through the courtesy of the Festival Quartet of South Mountain, Mr. Kraeuter occupied the second violin desk owing to the temporary illness of Alfred Pochon.

Wondrous beauty of tone, delicacy of shading and the perfect unison of the ensemble made the programme one of unending delight for the big audi- ence and the artists graciously gave three encores in response to the in- sistent applause. Their extra numbers were an Irish Cradle song by Pochon, Lento, American quartette, by Dvorak, and Pochon's arrangement of Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes.

The well chosen programme which was given as follows, made a fitting climax for the successful season:

Quartet in B flat major, Op. 18, No. 6 Beethoven

Allegro con brio
Adagio ma non troppo
Scherzo
La Malinconia
Adagio—Allegretto quasi allegro

Andante cantabile. Tschaikowsky

At the democratic caucus held Mon- day evening in the town hall William H. Harrington and Anson F. Grover were nominated for aldermen on the party ticket to be voted upon at the city election to be held next month. The caucus lasted just seven minutes, all nominations being unanimous.

The caucus was called to order at 8 o'clock, D. S. T., by William H. Cal- lahan, chairman of the democratic town committee, and on motion of Al- derman Henry Gebrath, Mayor Milo R. Waters was chosen moderator. On motion of Earl Matthewson, Frank Rinella was chosen clerk of the cau- cus. Following the reading of the cau- cus call Mayor Waters called for nom- inations for two aldermen, four coun- cilmen, a city clerk, city treasurer and two city sheriffs. The nominations were put through in quick order as follows:

On motion of Earl Mathewson the democratic town committee was em- powered to fill any vacancies that might occur on the ticket. Alderman Henry Gebrath moved that the caucus adjourn, seven minutes after it had been called to order.

Just after the nomination of Wil- liam H. Harrington for alderman had been made by Mr. Corkery, P. J. Hy- man started to say something about the call for the caucus having been irregular. He hadn't got far when he was called to order by Mayor Waters.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL DEBATES CRITICISING MANAGER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 11—The city council held a long drawn out meeting this evening, but the volume of busi- ness transacted was far less than has usually been done. Much of the time was taken up with a discussion of what the rights of the council are in criticising action of the city manager when he decides an executive question. Councilor Streeter brought the matter up on a motion that the council should disapprove of the written op- inion of the director of law furnished on request on the matter. He had pre- pared a long statement in relation to the matter and read sections of it to justify his offering of the motion. He claimed that the director of law had not given an opinion on the question referred to him, but he admitted that the council had not right to question a decision of the city manager to the extent that the changoing of that opin- ion was sought. Councilor Fox held that Mr. Streeter was admitting the very point at issue and was objecting not to the opinion given but to an op- inion that had not been offered by the director of law. The argument went on at great length with Mayor Clark sid- ing with Mr. Streeter. Mr Fox persist- ed in his position and Councilor Scott joined in the discussion, holding that questioning the decision was equiva- lent to interference. Councilor Murray amended the motion of Mr. Streeter and asked that the report of the di- rector of law should be received for the record of the council's meetings. A vote on the amandment was decided in the negative with 4 voting against the 3 members of the council who do not agree with the vote to express ap- proval. Then long discussion followed on the original motion and the ques- tion of procedure in disposing of the Streeter motion was argued at consid- erable length, the opinion seeming to be without a vote being taken that the action which Mr. Streeter desired would not be in good taste nor was it the proper way of disposing of the matter. Councilor Murray then moved to table the matter and that action was taken.

Councilor Streeter again brought up the matter of asking the director of law to give the council a written op- inion as to the rights of the members of the council in criticising the exe- cutive action of the city manager. That motion was lost also, Councilor Fox expressing the opinion that the coun- cil was aware of what the opinion would be as it already had been given. Mr. Fox held that the council already knew what the opinion was as it had been stated fully and frankly.

The council voted to lease land at Woodland Grove at a cost of $150 a year for use of the coast guard ball teams. Hugh Sloan is the lessor and he retains the right to lease the grounds for carnivals, etc., and all concessions to sell food, etc. The chamber of com- merce asked that the ground should be provided, and it was.

A contract for the laying of 25,000 square feet of sidewalk was awarded to Thomas O'Connor and 2,500 feet of straight curbing was voted to be bought from Donald McIntosh at 95 cents a foot.

A price of rental to fishboats at the public landing was fixed at $1 a day after 24 hours for retailers and 75 cents a day for wholesalers after the first 24 hours.

The public utilities commission gave notice of a hearing on a petition of the New Haven and Shore Line railroad company for the establishment of a jitney line between New London and New Haven, the jitneys to stop at inter- vening towns. The hearing is to be at the round house at Saybrook on the 14th of May. Councilor Fox pointed out that the city had an interest in the matter inasmuch as it had grant- ed the right to use the street to a bus line now in operation and in which there was an investment of $20,000. He moved that the city manager and di- rector of law should attend the hearing and protect the rights of the city of New London and a bus line that we were glad to have established when the trolley company "fell down" and we were left without any accommodations in transportation by highway.

BROTHERHOOD ELECTS DR. CAMPBELL PRESIDENT

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell was elected president of the Men's Brotherhood of the United Congregational church at the annual meeting which followed a supper at 6.30 Monday evening at the Community house on Church street. An attractive menu was served by the committee of the Women's Guild.

A rising vote of thanks to the re- tiring president, Walter F. Lester, and his associate officers was passed, and the secretary was directed to write a letter of sympathy and encouragement to the chorister of the church, Fred- erick W. Lester, in his illness. H. B. Cary and C. F. Wells were delegated to convey the greetings of the class to A. Agranivitch, who also is ill.

The Brotherhood voted to hold the summer outing in June and to place the arrangements in the hands of Chairman Bliven of the social com- mittee.

James Russell's tire puncturing Scotch collie was put on probation at Burbank, Cal., his owner having pro- mised to train the animal to keep his teeth out of rubber. The dog was ta- ken in to custody after three motorists had complained, alleging he attacked their tires and bit them flat.

The informal reception held in the Community house Tuesday evening for Alston Drey, of Denver, Colorado, was the most enjoyable social event of the season. Eighty-one of Mr. Drew's friends and acquaintances of other days were present to greet him and talk over old times, as well as later events in his life. There was a short programme of music and read- ing but most of the evening was spent in a social way. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served. Mr. Drew is a na- tive of this place, his boyhood days were spent here, and they were happy days both to him and to his friends. Later his parents moved to Provi- dence. A few years later he was grad- uated from a veterinary college and started practice but his health failed and he went to Denver, where he still resides. The affair was planned by two of Mr. Drew's schoolmates, Mrs. A. E. Phillips of this place, and her sister, Mrs. Mervin Kent, of Brooklyn, Conn. Through their thoughtfulness Mr. Drew was able to see many of his old schoolmates and some teachers and other friends who though scat- tered were glad to have the opportu- nity of meeting once more.

COOPER WINS CONFEDERATE MEMORIAL DAY AUTO CLASSIC AT CHARLOTTE

Charlotte, N. C., May 11—A veteran of the board tracks, Earl Cooper, today shook his jinx and won the annual Confederate Memorial Day 250 mile race here before 40,000 spectators.

Coming from behind, after being led by Tommy Milton, winner of the event last year, Cooper during the last 50 miles ran away with the field and crossed the final mark with a lap margin. His time was two hours, two minutes and 56 seconds, or an average speed of 121.6 miles an hour. Harry Hartz, who drove steadily all the way, finished second, and then came Milton.

Cooper was acclaimed by the spectators when he was presented with a wreath of flowers immediately upon alighting from the racer, and he received $10,000 of the $35,000 purse. Hartz received $5,000 while Milton's share was $3,750.

Others finishing in the money were Fred Comer fourth for a $2,000 prize; De Paolo, fifth, $1,500; McDonough, sixth, $1,100, and Shafter, seventh $900. None of the other six starters were able to hold out through the route.

Regi Johnston furnished the crowd with one of its big thrills of the race near the halfway mark when he careened into the inner rail of the track, somersaulted twice, and then climbed from his car into an awaiting ambulance. A broken collar bone was found to be his only injury.

De Paolo took the lead at the start of the race but was forced into the pits early with tire trouble and never regained his position although he made a determined effort.

Cooper's driving was spectacular throughout and when he passed the flying Milton near the 200 mile mark it was apparent that he was the choice of the fans.

NURMI BEATS TWO HOLY CROSS RUNNERS

Worcester, Mass., May 11—Paavo Nurmi, Finnish distant runner, defeated two Holy Cross college runners in a one and one-half mile exhibition run at the Fair grounds tonight. The track was heavy and although the run was made during a down-pour in the rain, the threatening weather kept the attendance to not over 500. Leo Hand and F. Donaghy were the Holy Cross runners who competed against the Flying Finn. Hand had a handicap of 40 yards and Donaghy had 60 yards.

Nurmi caught the two opponents about half the distance and after that did not appear to exert himself. He came over the line 30 yards ahead of his competitors. The time was 7 minutes and 22 seconds.

The meet was conducted under the auspices of the Finnish Athletic club, Suomi.

Nurmi did not discuss his reported break with Hugo Quist, his manager, when he met newspapermen. Discussing the special handicap mile against the field before he sails for home on May 23, Nurmi gave the impression that arrangements insofar as he was concerned, were far from definite, although he would welcome the opportunity to make a try in it to lower the record for a mile made on that track by Norman S. Taber with 4 minutes 12 3-5 seconds, on July 16, 1915.

Nurmi had a long chat with Waino Petonen, middleweight wrestler before his race.

(Special to the Bulletin)

Westerly, May 11—The Westerly high baseball team won an easy eight inning victory over East Greenwich academy here this afternoon, 10 to 4. The game was played under poor weather conditions and rain in the first half of the eighth inning caused the game to be called off. Westerly played brilliant ball in the field and also hit at opportune times. DeRocco leading the attack with a double and a triple in four times at bat. Errors by the Academy team also contributed to Westerly's scoring. The score:

Vandals Defeat Independents 15 to 6.

Sunday afternoon on the Fairgrounds before a fair sized crowd the Vandals completely outclassed the Norwich Independents. Lewis, the Independent pitcher, was touched for 26 hits and 5 walks while Ryan for the Vandals allowed only 6 hits, gave no walks and struck out 12 men.

Up until the sixth inning the Independents had a chance of winning; at the time the score was 4 to 2 in the Vandals' favor. The "lucky seventh" was their undoing, however, for in this inning 8 Vandals players crossed the plate. At no time of the game were the Independents ahead or in great danger of scoring on their opponents.

For the Independents Hazell was the shining star with both Widdad and Tombaris playing a good game. On the Vandals' side Ryan pitched a fine game, and had opponents at his mercy at all times. Burdick, on the receiving end caught a fine game and came through with some well timed hits. Gillis at third and Swanton at short played air tight ball and made several sensational catches and plays. Kamp, on first and Brown in left did some of the hardest hitting of the game.

LEWIS AND MUNN TO START TRAINING FOR MATCH

Chicago, May 11—Ed "Strangler" Lewis and Wayne "Big" Munn, together with the diamond championship belt, arrived today to start training for their match at Michigan City on Memorial Day.

The belt, now Lewis' property, goes to the winner. When Munn threw Lewis at Kansas City last winter and claimed the title, the courts refused to order Lewis to hand over the trinket. The winner also takes the bulk of the $30,000 purse.

Munn is still on a tonsillectomy diet, but says he is ready for heavy work, both on the mat and at the dinner table. He says he lost 20 pounds during his spell of the flu on the subsequent trip to the operating room, but hopes to get back to 260 pounds before the match.

JOE M'GINTY, 54, PITCHES HIS TEAM TO VICTORY

Ottumwa, Iowa, May 11—Age triumphed over youth on the hill in a baseball game in the Mississippi Valley league today. Joe McGinity, veteran "iron man" of the New York Giants, despite his 54 years, defeated John Welch, of Ottumwa, 18 year old twirler, and the youngest man in the league.

Despite McGinity's advanced age, the veteran pitched a heady game, and kept 13 hits well scattered while going the entire route, only three runs resulting. Dubuque, piloted by McGinity, defeated Ottumwa, 7 to 3.

The derby will be run at Epsom Downs on June 3.

In the semi-final Joe ("Hambone") Kelly, of Boston, knocked out Ernie McCabe of Montreal in the second round.

Jail Hill Juniors Win.

The Jail Hill Juniors defeated the Trenge team Sunday afternoon 10 to 2. The Juniors played good ball, only one error being made by them. They also hit well, the stars being Matthews and Russillo. There was only one incident to mar the game and that was when a member of the Trenge team took a glove belonging to the Juniors, probably by mistake. If the glove is returned there will be no trouble, but if it is not the owner will complain to the proper authorities.

With two men out Harriss lined a double to center and scored on Bishop's single. Bishop went to second on a throw to the plate and scored the winning run when Dykes singled to left. Score:

HOME RUN HITTING FELL OFF LAST WEEK

Chicago, May 11.—Home run hitting in both major baseball leagues went into a slump during the last week owing to many postponements from cold weather and rain, and as a result little progress was registered among the leaders. ## NETHERLANDS WILL HOLD OLYMPICS IN 1928

Paris, May 11—(A. P.)—The Netherlands Olympic committee, in its decision announced yesterday to hold the 1928 games at Amsterdam, despite the refusal of the Dutch parliament to appropriate funds for expenses, will be given the full support and advice of the French committee which staged the games in Paris last year.

The French committee placed themselves at the entire disposition of the Dutch Olympic authorities; but added that a lottery, such as suggested for raising the necessary revenue for the games, would be objectionable to France.

The Dutch manifesto issued yesterday declared that public subscriptions had been asked in Holland, and that £25,000 sterling already had been subscribed. A Dutch committee, the manifesto said, would study whether a national lottery would be successful as a scheme for raising the necessary expenses for the staging of the games.

ACADEMY TRACK TEAM OPPOSES BULKELEY TODAY IN MEET AT CAMPUS

Norwich Free Academy and Bulkeley will extend their athletic feud to the track this afternoon, when the Bulkeley track men, about twenty strong, will invade the Academy campus to engage in the various field and running events which will decide the meet. The resumption of competition between these ancient rivals marks the fourth sport in which both schools have taken part in opposing each other. The other sports are football, baseball and tennis. This afternoon's track performances are expected to measure up to expectations if not more when the athletes from both schools assemble on the starting line awaiting the report of the starter gun.

Bulkeley will enter strong men in the short and long distances. In the short distances of the 100 yard and 200 yard runs, the local school has the distinction of having the foremost performer in New London. Sheflott, won this honor in competing in these events in the huge indoor track meet which found men entered from almost every town of importance in this section of the state. Sheflott will try in these events to bring home the bacon and it is a pretty good gamble that his opponents whoever they may be will have a task on their hands to beat him out in these events. Sheflott can also negotiate a jump of 18 feet 9 inches in the running broad jump, and he is sure of a place on the strength of this performance if not first place in this event. In the relays Sheflott will probably lead off for the Orange and Black.

Another all round track man who will support the colors of Bulkeley is Edward Henkle. Henkle's ability as a dash man and in the shorter runs is well known locally. His style has the grace and ease of motion of a veteran performer. He is also entered in the 100, 200, relay and the running broad jump. Henkle equalled a mark of 18 feet, 3 inches, in winning this event at the Bulkeley indoor meet held during the past winter. So both Henkle and Sheflott will bear watching.

There is a wealth of material in the longer runs, and the steady plugging of honest training by Elwood Zuccardy, Bulkeley's premier miler and equally diligent work for "Flip" Gray, will give these two untried performers a chance to make a name for themselves in the various events. Gray unlike Zuccardy is better in the shorter runs, and pressed Sheflott closely for honors and even gained verdicts against Bulkeley's best dash man in try outs which were held last fall. It is also reported that Gray can hurl the 12 pound shot put a distance of 35 feet with ease. In this event the other entrants will be Gavitt the brawny tackle of the championship football team who throws the shot like a baseball.

In the half mile, Le Blanc who has been without rivals in this particular event will probably be tested against the best runners the Academy has for this event. Quentin Walsh, winner of the 440 in the Bulkeley meet will enter the favorite from New London in this event. Men in the other events have been hand picked to insure the Academy some close rivalry.

Eyes will be directed against the three outstanding athletes hailing from both institutions. These are Sheflott and Henkle from Bulkeley and Hinrichs from the Academy. These three seem to be the best bets of the two schools in the various events they are entered in.

Besides Hinrichs who is entered in the 100 yard dash, 880 yard run, and high jump, are Armstrong, a dash man and broad jumper. Marty Gilman Baldwin and Busch distance men, Higgins, a dash man and broad jumper, Johnny Greene, a high and broad jumper, Johnny Sayles, a pole vaulter, and Lukoski, star man with the twelve pound shot.

Hinrichs has been clocked in the 100 yard dash at 10 2-5 which is fast time for the high school event. Baldwin and Gilman are about on a par with each other and are running the distance events within a few seconds of the interscholastic record.

In the high jump Hinrichs, Higgins and Armstrong have been clearing the bar at a good height and today should be able to hold their own with anyone that Bulkeley can produce.

Lukoski should be able to take the shot put handily as he has been throwing the iron ball a distance of 34 to 36 feet consistently in the workouts while he was working under wraps.

The meet is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

CHAPMAN TECH CLASHES WITH STONINGTON TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 11.—After being done out of the leadership in the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic league by Norwich Free Academy last Wednesday, Chapman Tech is ready to meet its third league rival in Stonington High this (Tuesday) afternoon when the nine takes to the road. It was a rude jostling the Academy nine gave the local nine and it was ruder to set the Whalers off their high uncontested perch before the Red and White spoiled the realization of the one cherished ambition of the Tech athletes and that to go through the season in the league contests without a defeat.

There is bound to be a different story Tuesday when Tech encounters the Brown and White nine. The game with Stonington will probably be the only contest for Tech this week, for the Yale interscholastics come on Saturday. Anyway the team has no opponent scheduled for Saturday. The track meet with South Manchester cut in on the daily workouts of the baseball nine and these were discontinued on Friday. The rain caused the postponement of this afternoon's workout.

The Red and Black mainstay on the mound, Morris Brown will undoubtedly get the assignment to hurl 'em. Brown has been doing nicely and he is all of a match for the Stonington nine. This team showed some real strength against the Academy and no easy time is expected by the local players when they make their invasion.

THREE TEAMS HAVE SIGNED UP FOR TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Jimmy Pedace of the Duwell club said Monday evening that he had three teams already signed up for the Twilight league which will open about the first of June. The teams are the Eastern Conn. Power Co., The East Ends and Mike Morin's Palace nine. Mr. Pedace has sent letters to all the teams that were in the twilight league last year and it is expected that there will be favorable answers from a large part of these teams. The Yantic Mills team is also expected to enter the league although nothing definite has been heard from them.

The interest in a twilight league is very keen especially among the younger teams of the city and it is expected that the league this season will be very successful.

NEW LONDON CITY LEAGUE WILL OPEN TONIGHT

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 11.—The New London city league will make its opening bow as a twilight organization Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock with the Knights of Columbus and Section Base No. 4 of the rum patrol fleet opposing each other in the first game of the year. City Manager William Holt, who is getting much of his pitching effectiveness from throwing the first ball in the opening games, will be there to try his "spitter" against the lead off man of the kobs. Other ceremonies befitting this occasion in giving the league its fifth seasonal start will be in order during the opening moments of tension.

In 1920, the first year the league had attempted to do the people out of their supper with these twilight contests, ended up in a most satisfactory way as far as the finances were concerned. Ever since that year the league has suffered steady decline in the revenue but did not lose money by any means.

The league will play on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday nights. The schedule for the remainder of play for this week includes a contest on Wednesday with the Standard Oil and the Fort Trumbull Stars opposing each other. The Submarine Base will open its season playing opposite the Tabs.

NEW LONDON FISHERMAN DROWNED WHEN OFF BLACK POINT MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 11.—John, Nunes, aged 25, of 56 Denison avenue, was drowned in Long Island sound this morning and his brother, Manuel, came close to suffering a like fate when the boat the Nunes brothers occupied capsized. The body of the drowned man has not been recovered. The brothers left New London harbor in their small power boat early this forenoon and started for the fishing grounds off Black Point. The fishermen reached Black Point about 11 o'clock and at this time the sea was running strong and with a fair wind creating high waves. The craft was anchored first at a considerable distance away from other fishermen. Suddenly a wave caught the power boat just right and overturned it, the brothers being thrown into the sea. Other fishermen hastened to the rescue of the floundering men, but before they reached them, John Nunes sank from view, probably because of the weight of his clothing. His brother, however, succeeded in remaining afloat until a boat owned and handled by James Herbert Lawrence came close enough to the exhausted fisherman to permit his being hauled to the craft. The rescued man was brought into port about 2 o'clock.

The capsizing of the boat, it is understood, was because of improper ballast, there not being a sufficient amount of it to cause the craft to ride the waves.

Joe Gevesky is in the county jail prepared to stay for a considerable time. He is known as "Smiling Joe," for no matter what offense he has been accused of in the police court, and he has been accused a score of times, he always comes up smiling and tells a story to the court that is punctuated with laughter. His experience today did not go funny. Joe himself says it wasn't. He and Rock Zekos were accused of having beaten Oskar Hill, a islander and to have thrown him down a flight of stairs when they couldn't get him through a window. It suggested a sorry spectacle when court. His face was cut across the ridge of the nose and a strip of plaster stretched from one cheek bone to another. He related a connected story which was to the effect that he went to the rooms of Gevesky on invitation and had with him a soda bottle filled with alcohol. Once inside the door he was attacked by Joe and then with Zekos hustled him out to the head of a stairway and pushed him down. Hill struck on his face after descent of a dozen feet or more. Children in the neighborhood notified the police and the arrest of the three followed. Zekos pretended to know little of what happened, but the facts came out and he was fined $10. Joe was fined $30 and sent to jail for thirty days. Hill was deemed to have been punished sufficiently, so judgment was suspended in his case.

Charles Nott, Jr., formerly a trolley and motorman, was charged with failing to support his wife and six year old son. Nott made no defense, the allegation being that he could not make it. His attorney demurred to the complaint. This was overruled and Judge Prince ordered that Nott should pay his wife $5 a week for an indefinite time or go to jail for a stay of thirty days. Mrs. Nott is employed at the home of Dr. Douglass in Groton. She is the mother of three children, but she has only one of them with her. Her story is that Nott has tired of her and that is running around with other women.

The child walking hand in hand with another girl was on Wisteria street near the overhead bridge of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, when she started to cross the street. The children did not observe the approach of the automobile and stepped directly in front of the machine. The Krawski child was hurled to the pavement, but her companion escaped. Spicer had the child placed in his machine and she was hurried to the hospital that she might obtain treatment for her injuries.

Prayers were celebrated today for the soul of Tony Costa, an employe of the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing company and John Erlacher, residing on Jackson's houseboat, moored at Shaw's Cove for the men had absented themselves two days from their respective places of abode, but this afternoon they appeared back home without any worry that they had left death. Costa and Erlacher left the harbor Saturday noon in the power launch Bertha and started on a fishing trip. They went to local fishing grounds and remained aboard their craft over night. Before the return trip was attempted Sunday, a dense fog set in and this condition kept them from contemplating the trip back to port. Late forenoon when the fog lifted the start was made for New London harbor and they reached here about 4 o'clock. The police had been notified of the men being missing by employes of the Cartiecill Silk company, Trumbull street, who had knowledge of the departure of the fishermen two days earlier.

An automobile, owned and operated by Dominick Gilombardo, 73 Woodbridge street, and a machine owned and driven by Ingolf Johnson, of Montville, were in collision late last night, at the corner of Bliuman and Truman streets. Neither car was damaged of consequence. Johnson requested of the police that Gilombardo be apprehended for reckless driving, but that action was not taken as Sergeant Samuel Hick, who investigated the accident, decided that Gilombardo was not at fault.

MONTVILLE R. F. D. CAR BANGS INTO TELEPHONE POLE

((Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 11.—An automobile owned by Nicholas J. Doyle, R. F. D., No. 7, Norwich, was completely wrecked Saturday morning, when the machine crashed against a big pole of the Southern New England Telephone company in Montville. The pole was snapped off short near the ground and the automobile was made ready for the junkman. The occupants of the car escaped with only minor bruises and abandoned the car a short time following the crash.

The machine, an Essex touring car, was headed toward New London. Shortly after 3 o'clock and within 20 minutes after he had passed the location of the accident, Abraham Davidson, New London public service operator, came upon the wrecked car. He stopped and remained alongside the wrecked machine about 15 minutes, but when no one appeared, Davidson continued to New London and reported the accident at the police station. The local authorities in turn caused the state police at Groton barracks, to be notified.

AID AT CROCKER HOUSE FIRE SOLDIERS GIVEN GOLD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 11—Sergeant Roger W. Hayward and Corporal George E. Carroll, stationed in this city on recruiting duty, were generously rewarded today with a purse of $200 each, the money being in gold coin. Hayward and Carroll occupied rooms at the hotel and when the fire was discovered and an alarm sounded throughout the hotel and while hotel employes rushed through the corridors arousing guests, Hayward and Carroll lent their assistance and helped many of the roomers, particularly the middle-aged, in reaching the main corridor and without accident.

Soda Acts Bad in Stomach

Forms Harmful Gases, Creates more Acidity

While soda temporarily relieves sour, acid stomach, soda afterwards causes the stomach to secrete more acids and gases than before, making matters worse.

Prove this for yourself. Place in a glass of water a little vinegar or lemon juice. This represents the acid in your stomach. Then add a pinch of baking soda (bicarbonate of soda) and instantly thousands of bubbles of gas are formed. This same thing happens in your stomach when you take soda for sour stomach. Gas is rapidly formed and the bloating, belching, shortness of breath and palpitation are increased, leaving your stomach in a more acid condition than before.

Now make this same test with "Phillips Milk of Magnesia." No gases are formed—no bubbles at all. Instead of soda, hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it is more pleasant to take. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drug store.

STONINGTON

The fire companies of the borough were called out at 7 o'clock Sunday morning for a fire at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Keller in the old shipyard. The house, which was damaged by fire and water, was owned by the N. Y. N. H. & Hartford railroad company and during the war was used as the office of the Ship Construction company. The fire started between two walls of yellow pine sealing which made the walls of the room. Not much of the household furniture was damaged and neighbors are caring for the family. The Nens, the Pioneers and the Steamers all did their share to keep the blaze from spreading. Chief C. D. Main and C. E. McCoart were in charge of fighting the flames. Mr. Kellar, who discovered the blaze had been up a short time, and seeing flames issuing from the partition, procured several buckets of water which he dashed on the blaze but to no avail. He then aroused his wife and children and Mrs. Kellar rang in the alarm from Box 5, corner of Water and High streets. Firemen were hindered in their work by dense smoke and hatchets were brought into use to reach the cause of the fire. Work on the place for about half an hour practically extinguished the flames.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

New York, May 11—Operations for the rise in today's stock market were confined largely to the motors, rubbers and a few industrial specialties. The general list disclosed considerable irregularity with many of the standard rails and industrials losing on profit-taking inspired by the speculative belief that the technical position of the market had been impaired by last week's advance and that a temporary reaction was warranted.

Willys-Overland common was the individual feature, being run up over 6 points to 24 1-2, the highest price in five years, on reports of large profits. Present indications points to earnings of $11,000,000 in the second quarter, according to President Willys. Transactions in the issue approximated 500,000 shares, or about one-fifth of the day's total transactions. The preferred stock touched 99 1-2, the highest price since 1917 when it sold at par.

Pierce-Arrow common and prior preferred also bettered their previous top prices in further reflection of a substantial reduction in the bank loans of the company. Studebaker, Nash and Packard preferred also attain new peak prices.

Another sharp advance in crude rubber today stimulated activity in the rubber stocks. The common stock of the United States Rubber Company, whose inventories are reported to have increased 3,000,000 as a result of the recent rise in crude rubber, touched 46 1-4, the highest price in two years. The Kelly-Springfield reached a new maximum at 18 5-8.

United States Steel common held relatively firm despite the huge decrease in unfilled orders reported at the close of the market on Saturday. Reports of large railroad orders for freight cars failed to stimulate a demand for equipment issues, Baldwin and American Locomotives and American Car and Foundry showing net losses of a point or so.

Squeezing of the short interest in American Sumatra Tobacco preferred resulted in a sensation advance of over twenty points in that stock to 69 as compared with a low of 29 last Thursday followed by a subsequent rally to 52.

Other strong spots included American Ice, Associated Dry Goods, Colorado Fuel, Gulf States Steel, Kelsey Wheel, Loose Wiles Biscuit, Sears & Roebuck and Stromberg Carburetor, all of which sold 2 or more points above Saturday's final quotations.

Realizing sales brought about reactions of a point or two in some of the low-priced rails, particularly the Seaboard Air Line issues. Shares of several large eastern railroads lost ground as a result of the differences that have cropped out over consolidation plans, although Chesapeake and Ohio showed independent strength, rising 1 5-8 higher at 85 3-8.

Call money, held steady at 3 1-2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper sales were unchanged with business quiet.

The principal foreign exchanges moved within rather narrow and irregular limits. Demand sterling ruled unchanged around $4.84 1-2 and French francs were slightly higher at 5 cents. The Scandinavian exchanges were heavy. Brazilian exchanges showed substantial improvement in sympathy with higher coffee prices.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

"Outgro" is a painless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the druggist a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally and almost over night.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week considerable progress has been made on local building projects, several new buildings have been completed while other new projects have been completed. At the old Y. M. C. A. building on Broadway considerable work has been done toward remodeling the building. The cellar has been cemented and the large floor timbers for the ground floor were set in place. More than half the flooring of the first floor has been laid and the contractors are now at work on the second and third floors where partitions are being torn out and the floors reinforced. Archibald Torrance is doing the work.

Work has been in progress for the past week on the store at 29 Franklin street formerly occupied by a jewelry concern. The store is being remodeled so that there will be two stores with plate glass fronts. A partition divides the two stores and a large steel beam has been set over the front of the stores to reinforce the second floor.

The work of remodeling the building at 71-73 Franklin street for Louis Nelkin is practically completed. The store occupied by Harrington's Old Corner store has been remodeled and the second floor has been remodeled into a six room apartment.

At the Sellas block on Franklin square the work on the new building is practically completed except some of the interior finishings and fixtures and several of the offices in the building are already occupied.

The first part of 1925 has been very good for building operations and local contractors report that there is plenty of work on hand to go well into the summer months. The building permits issued to date are slightly in advance of the same period in 1924 and the total value of these permits is more than double what it was last year. There were no permits issued by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton during the past week although several applications for permission to build were received.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 23 sales of real estate as compared to 19 sales for the corresponding week in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $84,500 and $53,050.

There were 8 sales of real estate in New London during the past week as compared to 12 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans were $93,500 and $37,950 for the respective weeks.

Building Permits in State

The record of building permits issued in the past week shows a distinct falling off from the record for the like week of last year, the total being 196 permits for the week, against 511 permits for the same week of last year. The cost of building was $1,621,356, whereas a year ago the cost of buildings was $2,123,548. In the like week in 1923 the cost of building was much smaller.

New London

Work has been started on a house on Henry street for Silas Maxson, Jr., 233 Bank street. The proposed dwelling will be of frame construction, 24x26 feet, arranged for five rooms.

The cellar is for a frame bungalow on Vauxhall street for Theodore Bodenwein, 42 Nathan Hale street. From private plans, the house will be 26x24 feet, arranged for six rooms. There will be steam heat, fireplace, hardwood finish.

Contractors are completing the garage and storehouse in the rear of the Manwaring building on State street for the Manwaring Hospital association. The building will be 21x50 feet, of concrete block construction, one story high.

The work of remodeling the Goddard building on State street in preparation for the erection of the proposed store building for the S. S. Kresge Co. of Detroit, has been completed.

STORRS STUDENTS WILL WORK TO GET NEW ATHLETIC FIELD INTO SHAPE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, May 11—Both students and faculty members of the Connecticut Agricultural College will tomorrow lay aside their books, and take up picks and shovels for the annual "Connecticut Day" at the State College. This is one day set aside at Storrs, in which the college to a man turns out for manual labor on the college campus, with the object of effecting some necessary improvement in the grounds. The men are divided into groups who work under various leaders, and on definitely planned tasks. Women students, while not participating in the manual work, contribute to the cause in no small way by supplying the workers with refreshments of sandwiches, doughnuts, apples and coffee.

The program for the 1925 Connecticut Day differs from other years in that all workers will be concentrated on the new athletic field, instead of tackling numerous smaller tasks about the campus. A determined effort will be made by those in charge to complete the work on the new field tomorrow, so that grass seed may be sown and all made ready for the next football season. "Red" O'Neill, Aggie football captain for two years will direct a squad of eighty huskies equipped with picks and shovels, and it is expected that this crew will accomplish much. Other groups will be brought together for grading, for surveying, scraping, and the other tasks incidental to a project of this nature. The student headquarters staff, in charge of arrangements is V. A. Johnson '25, J. R. Jacoby '25, H. McCarthy '25, and C. J. Diemand '26.

MRS. MABEL KENYON WILL PETITION FOR PARDON

Mrs. Mabel Kenyon of Pawcatuck, who is serving a sentence of from 10 to 15 years in state prison for shooting Dr. Tetlow of Pawcatuck, will be a petitioner for pardon whose plea will be heard before the board at its semi-annual session June 8.

Of the seventy-five prisoners who seek the clemency of the pardon, nearly half are those who were convicted either of second degree murder or manslaughter, twenty-nine life prisoners being included, and eight serving sentences for manslaughter. Windham county is the only one in which life prisoners are not seeking freedom. There are two applicants from this county. Tolland county has but one applicant, but it is that of a life prisoner. The other counties are represented in the list as follows: Hartford 12, two lifers, two manslaughter; New Haven 26, fourteen lifers, two manslaughter; Litchfield 3, one lifer; New London 6, four lifers, one manslaughter; Middlesex 3, one lifer; Fairfield 12, six lifers, three manslaughter.

The petitioners from New London, Tolland and Windham counties are the following:

New London County

Charles Gasson, 49, sentenced January 19, 1924, for two to four years, for abortion, is making his first application.

Mabel Kenyon, 50, convicted of manslaughter, on October 23, 1920, and sentenced to prison from ten to fifteen years; will have her case presented for the second time. The crime was committed in Pawcatuck, June 10, 1920, when she killed a physician with whom she had been friendly.

Simon A. G. Salsbury, 46, convicted October 9, 1918, of second degree murder, is making his ninth appeal. He is 46 years old.

Diratto Cabaudo, 38, convicted on October 30, 1909, of murder in the first degree and who had his sentence commuted on June 21, 1910 to life imprisonment, is also appealing for the ninth time.

John Yurasz, 53, serving a life term, is making his seventeenth application. He was convicted February 23, 1909 for a crime committed in the town of North Lyme. He believes he has been sufficiently punished.

Joseph Toscano, 54, convicted November 11, 1904, for murder in the second degree, is making his eleventh effort to obtain freedom. He claims to have committed the crime in self-defense and thinks he has served ample time in the twenty-one years of his confinement.

Tolland County

Charles H. Bishop, 37, who is serving a life sentence for murder in the second degree, having been convicted on December 30, 1906, is making his tenth appeal for a pardon. He claims he was an epileptic when he committed the crime, but is now entirely cured. He has been a trusty for the last nine years, and if pardoned his brother, Percy Bishop of Chelsea, Mass., will provide him with a home and employment.

Windham County

Charles Brunsek is making his first application for pardon. On January 21, 1925, he was sent to prison for one to four years and fined $1,500 for keeping liquor with intent to sell.

Arthur Eldridge, convicted January 10, 1922, for assault on a female child and sentenced to four to seven years, is making his third appeal for pardon. He is 61 years old.

Workmen's Compensation.

TAFTVILLE

Considerable excitement was caused Sunday morning when a horse and buggy dashed up post office hill at breakneck speed, turned the corner of South second avenue on two wheels and upon reaching a point near the residence of Thomas Greenwood, turned turtle and threw the lone occupant of the buggy out into the road, where she lay as if dead. A group of people rushed to the assistance of the man, believing him to be dangerously injured, but upon reaching him found that his only trouble was that he had evidently worshipped a little too long at the shrine of Bacchus, and that he was "feeling good." He resented all efforts to put him on his feet, and Officer Disco had to be summoned, and he arrested the man and escorted him to Norwich. The horse looked some the worse for wear; it was in a highly nervous state and the sweat stood out in a heavy lather all over its body, showing that it had been driven almost beyond its endurance. When the carriage tipped over, the harness slipped around the body of the horse and the animal did not offer to run. Officer Disco had the animal removed to a nearby stable where it was given the necessary attention, and the carriage was also hauled away later in the morning. The driver was said to be from Westerly, R. I.

At a recent meeting of the Ao-wa-ki-ya Camp Fire group held in the parlors of the Taftville Congregational Church, the following officers were elected, Guardian, Mrs. Eurene N. Monty; president, Miss Louie Unsworth; Vice president, Miss Elizabeth Newton; secretary, Miss Florence Lukoff; treasurer, Miss Melba Monty; scribe, Miss Mary Martin; songleader, Miss Selena Adams.

EXCLUSIVE HOTEL AND GOLF COURSE PLANNED

Plans for a new $1,000,000 golf course and a 300 room exclusive hotel at the eastern end of Fishers Island have been made by the Fishers Island Farms Co., Inc., and work on the construction of the golf course has already been started. Harry A. Ferguson and Walter Ferguson, Jr., who with relatives own most of the land on Fishers Island not under government supervision, are the heaviest stockholders in the Farms corporation and are the two most interested in the new project.

To insure the exclusiveness of the club, which will include hunting as well as golf privileges, the membership fee will be $2,500. By payment of this fee, and purchase of stock in the Farms corporation, which sells at $2,500 per share, the member will procure all club privileges and will be given the right to purchase selected and restricted lots in the vicinity of the proposed hotel and golf links. ## NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Travel to New York by boat, via the regular propeller line was reduced to 25 cents, 75 years ago according to a notice which appeared in a May issue of the Norwich Courier.

Several items taken in part from the Couriers of 1850 are as follows.

Tuesday, May 7, 1850—D. M. Prentice, agent for the Norwich and New York line of packets for 1850 has announced that the sloops Aurora, Capt. Ewen, and Glide, Capt. Palmer, will run between New York and this city each week, one starting out from each port during the week. Both will carry freight.

The Stonington railroad declared its semi-annual dividend yesterday. The business of the road for the past six months has been fair, and a dividend has been earned, but a portion of the funded debt having matured, the directors deemed it for the interest of the stockholders to appropriate the earnings for the payment of the dividend.

In the legislature yesterday a resolution was offered requesting Governor Seymour to procure a block of Portland free stone for the Washington monument, and to furnish a suitable inscription for the same.

Thursday, May 9, 1850—The regular propeller line has announced that the fare to New York will be 25 cents this year. Boats will leave Norwich every Monday and Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Newspapers from California, sent by Col. John L. Devotion reached this city Wednesday and contained many interesting articles about the famous gold state. Notice was given that property values were falling and that head taxes of $25 were being imposed for every foreigner employed at the mines. The report of Hon. T. B. King, on California also came in the mail and contained much interesting data on conditions in that state, although no mention was made of Norwich men now in the gold fields.

T. W. Hammond, treasurer of the Worcester & Nashua railroad has published notice of the new offering of bonds of the company payable in five years. These bonds are being offered at a 15 per cent discount to holders of previous issues.

Saturday, May 11, 1850—Work on the New London, Willimantic and Palmer railroad is progressing rapidly and a call has been sent out for 100 more laborers to work on the line above Stafford.

A tunnel through the Alps, seven miles long, 19 feet high and 25 feet in width, is about being constructed—a gigantic scheme on which the contractor spent five years in study.

According to the New York Evangelist, the receipts of the principal benevolent societies, whose anniversaries have been held in New York this past week, show a gratifying increase over any previous year. The receipts mentioned were $1,068,813 while those of last year were $936,150.

FOR SUPERIOR COURT ON LIQUOR VIOLATION CHARGE

On a charge of violation of the liquor law Andrew Zawacki, 35, of Sixth street, was bound over to the criminal superior court when presented in the city court Monday morning before Judge Arthur F. Libby. Bonds were set at $2,500 and were furnished by Martin Rozycki. Probable cause was found after evidence of actual sale had been introduced.

John Toczko, 26, of No. 57 Sixth street, out on bonds of $1,000 on a liquor violation charge, failed to appear and the bond was declared forfeited.

The cases against Thomas Devoe, 24, of this city and Leroy Jackson, 24, of Bowie, Texas, charged with burglary, were continued until Friday morning. Both were arrested by local and state police on suspicion in connection with the daylight robbery of the home of Mrs. John D. Nolan, Jr., in Taftville, several days ago.

John Crossman, 24, of New London, was fined $5 and costs of $11.05 on a breach of the peace charge. He pleaded guilty to assaulting Fred Randall and paid his fine. The trouble between the men arose over a girl, a fight ensued and Randall was knocked out. A breach of the peace charge against Randall was nolled. Three men paid fines for intoxication and two others, fined for intoxication, went to jail in default of funds to pay their fines.

Peter Lockwood of Stonington was fined $10 and costs on a charge of intoxication. Sunday morning Lockwood started out from Stonington, driving a horse attached to a buggy. He wanted to sell the outfit, but while on the road met a friend, imbibed too freely of liquid refreshments and landed in Taftville in an intoxicated condition, still driving the horse. Humane Officer Wyant was called into the case by Constable Disco of Taftville, and Lockwood was arrested.

WILL PRESENT RESOLUTIONS OF CHIEF TIGHE'S DEATH

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, May 11—Acting Mayor George W. Hickey presided over the regular monthly meeting of the board of aldermen tonight. Reports of the heads of the city departments were read by City Clerk James S. Donohue. Alderman Lee reported for the claims committee. The petition of the Jordan Auto Company for the installation for an automatic sprinkler system was referred to the fire committee. A petition for the extension of sewers on West Main street was tabled when it was made known that the gradings of that section of the street would not allow for the installation of this sewer. A resolution was adopted that the fire committee draft as has been the custom of the chapter in past years.

The meeting closed with the motto and blessing. This was followed by a social hour during which members enjoyed a May basket party. Under direction of the refreshment and entertainment committee Mrs. Charles Marsh, chairman, several members prepared tempting lunches for two daintily arranged, with their name attached which were purchased by those members who had not brought lunch. Each purchaser ate with the one whose name was attached to the lunch. In all about thirty-six responded in this way, each supplying enough food for two people.

The result was a neat sum of several dollars to be added to the treasury. Besides the chapter members, there were lunches, enough so that the members of the Johnson Home family were all provided in this way.

HINDENBURG TAKES OATH AS PRESIDENT OF GERMANY

Oath Subscribed to Was Satisfactory to the Staunchest of Republicans—46 Communists Left the Reichstag as the President-Elect Appeared—Great Crowd Gave the New President Rousing Cheers—President's Flag Was Flown on the Hood of the Automobile as Hindenburg Returned to the Executive Mansion, Where the Republican Presidential Standard Had Been Hoisted.

Berlin, May 12—Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg at high noon today solemnly pledged his word as a man that he would faithfully fulfill the duties of president of Germany, to which office he was elected on April 26, as prescribed in the republican constitution of August 11, 1919.

The oath of office was administered by the president of the reichstag, Paul Loebe, in the presence of all the members of the house with the exception of 46 communists, who left the chambers when Von Hindenburg appeared, shouting "down with the monarchists! Long live the Soviet republic!"

Neither Herr Loebe's invitation to the president-elect to subscribe to the constitutional oath nor the new president's reply after being sworn in contained the slightest element of ambiguity to which even the staunchest republican might make objection. Von Hindenburg's added utterance that both the office of president and the reichstag represented the sovereign will of the German people, gave emphasis to his manifest desire to leave no doubt in the minds of his auditors with respect to his political interpretation of the constitutional significance of the office into which he was today inducted.

This was the first time since November 18, 1918, that the field marshal had entered the reichstag building. Then, he and General Ludendorff came in response to an urgent summons from a parliamentary inquisitorial board which was investigating the German general staff to relative to unrestricted submarine warfare and the extent to which it was familiar with the policy of mediation and the efforts of the late President Wilson to this direction.

On that occasion Von Hindenburg and his quartermaster general were summoned to give an account of their stewardship as leaders of the German armies, and among the men who examined them were communists, independent socialists, social democrats and representatives of the other political parties. Today Von Hindenburg entered the reichstag as president-elect, and less than 30 paces from the speaker's desk where he took the oath of office, sat Ludendorff among the rest of the deputies.

Just by Herr Loebe the new president, standing [illegible] civilian clothes, with black frock coat, but wore no decorations. The reichstag president lost no time in informing the new executive of the nature of the oath he was expected to take; whereupon the document was handed to Von Hindenburg, who in loud staccato voice and with the double addition of a religious affirmation repeated the oath. He followed this with a brief supplementary speech, in which he made specific reference to the republican constitution.

After proposing three cheers for the German republic, Herr Loebe adjourned the swearing-in ceremonies and escorted the new president to the west portico of the reichstag, where a great crowd gave Von Hindenburg rousing cheers. After reviewing a regiment of reichswehr drawn up in his honor, the president proceeded by automobile to the executive mansion, where the republican presidential standard had been hoisted. He also flew the president's flag on the hood of his motor when returning from the reichstag.

At a luncheon given to the executive by Dr. Simons, previously acting president, President Von Hindenburg responding to a toast, paid warm tribute to the late President Ebert for his services to the nation after the revolution, which, he said, friend and foe alike must ever remember with gratitude.

"President Ebert's services to the nation directed at the restoration of law and order after the collapse of our people," he observed, "cannot be questioned."

Dr. Simons turned over the office to the field marshal immediately upon the latter's arrival at the executive mansion, then took the afternoon train for Leipsic to resume his post as president of the supreme court.

Berlin's diplomatic corps headed by the Papal Nuncio, Mgr. Pacelli, entered the diplomatic gallery of the reichstag a few minutes before the president-elect appeared. Warren D. Robbins, the American charge d'affaires, represented the United States. Formal felicitations from friendly nations will not be forthcoming until these nations are officially appraised that the new president has taken office.

The Berlin Bourse reflected a strong tendency today in consequence of Von Hindenburg's speech of acceptance and the successful consummation of his inauguration.

But for the walkout of the communists, the ceremonies in the reichstag proceeded smoothly. They were brief and impressive. More than 120 socialist deputies practiced passive resistance by appearing on the floor of the chamber with red carnations in their buttonholes. They were the target of numerous jibes, for, although they had been insistent in their espousal of the republican colors, black, red and gold, they openly disdained the official colors of communism. Most of the deputies belonging to the right parties appeared in frock coats and high hats, although General Ludendorff wore a plain gray lounge suit.

President Von Hindenburg has received congratulatory messages from the kings of Sweeden and Denmark, the emperor of Japan and the presidents of Argentina and Finland.

GRANDSON OF RUSSELL SAGE ADJUDGED A BANKRUPT

Bridgeport, May 12—Grandson of the late Russell Sage, multi-millionaire, H. Germain Slocum, Jr., Stamford, whose father is said to be worth five millions of dollars, has been adjudged a bankrupt. He declares he has cash of only $25 with debts of $168,726.

Slocum was to have appeared before Referee John Keogh in bankruptcy court this afternoon, but his appearance was delayed.

Lewis Nixon, founder of the town of Nixon, N. J., ship builder during the war and wealthy manufacturer nationally known as a leading figure stood today before Referee Keogh, in the democratic party, took the Mr. Nixon told how he sold $80,000 worth of celluloid to Slocum without receiving compensation.

The majority of the $168,000 owed by Slocum concerns judgments obtained against him on notes in Fairfield county superior court and the supreme court of New York state.

Referee Keogh appointed Milton Fessendon, Stamford, trustee of Slocum's bankrupt estate.

GENERAL BORIS SAVINKOFF HAS COMMITTED SUICIDE

Moscow, May 12—General Boris Savinkoff, notorious anti-bolshevik leader, former military governor of Petrograd and assistant minister of war in the Kerensky regime, has committed suicide by throwing himself from the window of his cell in the "state political department" prison in Moscow, where he was serving a long prison term for counter revolution.

Savinkoff had previously addressed a letter to M. Djerjinsky, head of the supreme economic council, and also once head of the "Cheka," asking if and when he would be released. To this Djerjinsky replied that there was little chance of his liberation.

General Savinkoff, in his letter, said that when he gave himself up to the Soviet authorities he never thought he would be obliged to serve a term in prison. "I thought," he added, "that two courses would be open to me—either I would be shot immediately, or, if I told all, I would be forgiven and allowed to engage in some work."

SALE OF ARMORED TRAINS TO BE PERMISSIBLE

Geneva, May 12—After a bitter forensic fight in the military committee, armored trains steamed figuratively out of the League of Nations palace tonight. By a vote of 13 to 12, the governments represented at the conference on the control of traffic in arms and munitions, sitting on the military committee, decided that the sale of these instruments of war would not be subject to international supervision by license or publicity.

Thus armored cars or trains will be created on the same footing as warships, submarines, airplanes and airships and will henceforth not be listed as armaments whose traffic concerns the international public.

TO EXHUME BODIES OF BABIES WHO DIED ON "FARM"

New York, May 12—(A. P.)—Court orders for the exhumation of the bodies of two babies who died in the East Eighty-Sixth street "baby farm" of Mrs. Helen Augusta Geisen-Volk were issued today.

Assistant District Attorney Ryan, in charge of the investigation, told the court that as a result of the exhumations he expected to get evidence on which he would ask a grand jury to indict the woman on a charge of homicide.

The bodies to be exhumed are those of Agnes Toohey, 18 months old, who died last December 15, and William Winters, six months, who died last February. Witnesses have told Ryan that Mrs. Geisen-Volk, a former German red cross nurse and widow of a Prussian army officer, had dashed the Toohey child's head against a wall when angered by its continued crying the night before its death. The parents of the Winters child have told a story which warranted an autopsy, Ryan said, but he did not make public the details of this case.

REAL NAVAL LIQUOR WARFARE IS PROMISED

Kansas City, May 12—The present blockade of rum runners off the Atlantic coast is "only a minor engagement," and will be followed by a "real naval liquor warfare" when tests are completed, Colonel Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, said here today. Colonel Andrews, who is head of the "dry" navy, was here an hour on his way to an international conference at El Paso, May 15.

"The warfare going on now is not in any sense a big drive," said the colonel. "It is a test. We want to see how the rum runners will defend themselves against this treatment, then we will take the offensive against whatever move they make and so on until it seems that we can operate against them in a really successful way."

"When that time comes, then you will see a real naval liquor warfare instead of the minor engagement going on."

Pilot Boats Dis[illegible] French Rum Steamer

Realizing Their Predicament Rum Fleet Masters Are Hunting New Waters.

New York, May 12—While coast guard officials were announcing today that rum row gradually was crumbling under the dry navy's blockade which opened just a week ago, word came ashore that another liquor carrier, a big French steamer, has arrived on the row.

The new steamer was loaded to the gunwales with a wet cargo, according to messages sent by wireless to the coast guard headquarters. She received a warm greeting from the blockaders, for no sooner had she dropped her anchor than four of the dry navy's vigilant pilot boats were buzzing about her, ringing her in a circle designed to endure as long as the big ship may remain.

In a terse communique reminiscent of war time communication, Captain W. V. E. Jacobs, New York commandant of the coast guard, announced that several of the rum fleet masters, isolated from shore for a week now, gradually succumbing to chagrin and hopelessness, were weighing their anchors and hunting new waters.

"The rum fleet is gradually disintegrating," he said, "and the situation is practically the same as it was yesterday."

Captain Jacobs refused to elaborate and declined to give the number of rum carriers still standing up against the blockade. It was learned however, that every one of the contraband carriers that had weighed anchor and left for friendlier waters had been followed by one or more dry navy craft, to see that they kept moving and didn't take up new positions within striking distance of a possible new whiskey running shore.

From another source it was learned that the blockade had sprung a tiny leak last night, when one boat load got through. This was a small dory which wasn't noticed by any of the rum chasers until she had gotten her load off one of the boats of the line and was scooting for shore. Pursuit was unavailing as the little fugitive managed to get to water too shallow for the pursuer's invasion. When last seen the daring runners were headed for the general direction of Seabright, N. J.

There was talk of a shakeup of land forces of the prohibition unit with the arrival today of Assistant Prohibition Commissioner James E. Jones and Field Supervisor John E. Murphy. Complete details of the proposed changes were not obtainable, but it was announced that the fifty enforcement agents under the supervision of R. Q. Merrick, divisional chief, had been under direction of Palmer Canfield, state prohibition director. It also was said that the prohibition forces were to be moved to another floor in the building they now occupy.

FOUR MEN GUILTY OF MUTILATING SALESMAN

Williamstown, N. C., May 12—Four men were found guilty by a jury here today on charges growing out of the mutilation of Joseph A. Needleman, a young salesman, who was seized by a mob recently after he had been arrested on a charge of attacking a girl he had taken riding.

Henry Dennis Griffin, Julian Bullock and F. W. Sparrow, Sr., were found guilty of performing an operation on Needleman "with malice," and Claro Heath was found guilty of a similar offense "without malice."

The four were remanded to jail for sentence, probably tomorrow. The charges against the first three carry maximum penalties of sixty years imprisonment, and that against Heath, ten years.

TO USE AIRPLANES IN TRACING RUM VESSELS

Boston, May 12—Preparations by the coastguard service of the Boston district to use aircraft in tracing rum craft off the New England coast were divulged today when it became known that a seaplane had been set up at the Squantum naval reserve flying station for the purpose. The machine is equipped with fuel capacity for four hours' flying at high speed. The probable base of its operations was not made known.

Pause in Fighting on Franco-Riffian Front

Tribesmen Are Entrenching and Making Their Positions as Formidable as Possible.

Paris, May 12—(A. P.)—Operations are practically at a standstill all along the sixty-mile Franco-Riffian front in Morocco, with the exception of dashes made by French troops and airplane flights for the revictualling of the besieged French blockhouses and garrisons. Both the native tribesmen and the French Colonial forces are busy grouping and concentrating reinforcements and it is expected that the offensive to force the Riffs from the French zone will be started next week. Meanwhile the tribesmen are entrenching and making their positions as formidable as possible.

Premier Painleve, after a cabinet meeting, declared that the Moroccan situation was stationary and that the arrival of reinforcements was proceeding normally. Until the concentration of the French forces was concluded, he said all that was necessary was for a strict watch to be kept against surprise attacks by the Riffs. These always are to be feared because of the length of the front.

FRENCH FINANCE MINISTER ENDORSES THE DAWES PLAN

Paris, May 12—The Dawes plan appears to be the backbone of the plan of Finance Minister Caillaux for the financial restoration of France.

In the course of declarations before the finance committee of the chamber of deputies today, M. Caillaux referred to the Daws plan proceeds as applicable to the reconstruction of the devastated regions and also to the amortization fund of inter-allied debts. He also said that payments from Germany under the Dawes plan would be used to guarantee the annuities of a new loan which he expected to float for an immediate final liquidation of war damage claims.

Additional taxes and a sterner collection of the existing ones was the burden of M. Caillaux's long awaited declaration on his financial projects. An increased tax on tobacco, of 33 per cent. will become effective Thursday.

The absence from the finance minister's program of anticipated radical measures came as a surprise to the general public, which had been expecting anything from confiscation of 50 per cent. of the treasury bonds to a sale of Indo-China to the United States.

M. Caillaux admitted that the estimated receipts of the 1925 budget would fall short of the 1,240,000,000 francs representing the expected proceeds from the Dawes plan, which he said he had decided not to place in the regular budget, but apply to the devastated regions and to amortization of inter-allied debts. Expenses, M. Caillaux declared, would exceed the estimates by 1,500,000,000 francs. Added to this about 1,250,000,000 francs now carried outside of the regular budget as extraordinary expenses would mean more than 3,500,0000,000 francs which must be raised to balance the 1925 budget.

N. Y. POLICE RESERVIST KILLED TWO NEGROES

New York, May 12—A negro patrolman and an unidentified negro were shot and killed and a white man, a member of the police reserves, was taken to Harlem hospital in a critical condition, as the result of the exchange of between 30 and 40 shots tonight in 138th street.

The shooting, police were told, followed a reprimand, given by the reservist when a negro bumped into the reservist's wife as they were walking Lenox avenue.

George Godfrey, the negro patrolman, and the reservist, Gellen Fuller, both attached to the West 35th street station, were both shot in the chest.

Fuller, upon turning into 138th street from Lenox avenue, discovered that he was being followed by four negroes. He pushed his wife into a doorway and drew his revolver. Before he had an opportunity to fire, the police were told, one or more of the four negroes behind him fired.

Godfrey, who was in civilian clothes, heard the shots and ran up with his revolver drawn. Shots were exchanged between Godfrey and the other four negroes, until Godfrey fell, fatally wounded.

MENTIONED FOR ASS'T SECRETARY OF LABOR

Washington, May 12—(A. P.)—W. W. Husband, of Vermont, Commissioner General of Immigration, has been strongly recommended to President Coolidge for appointment as assistant secretary of labor, to succeed E. J. Henning, who is to retire soon to become federal judge of the Southern district of California.

The date of Mr. Henning's retirement from the department has not been announced but in connection with the suggestion that Mr. Husband succeed him, which would conform to President Coolidge's policy of giving a number of his appointments the complexion of promotions, the executive has before him several names from which to select a new immigration commissioner.

Former Representative Harry E. Hull of Iowa, who retired from congress March 4, is one of these, and Robe Carl White, at present second assistant secretary of labor, also is understood to be under consideration for the place.

OLYMPIA MACRI STATEMENT TO CORONER READ TO JURY

Counsel For the Accused in Vain Fought Against the Inclusion as Evidence of the Alleged Confession Made Half an Hour After the Shooting—Coroner Mix Gave Details of the Statement—Two Other Witnesses Who Were Present When the Confession Was Made Are to be Called Today.

New Haven, May 12.—Olympia Macri, on trial here for first degree murder, today heard the statement she made to Coroner Eli Mix a short time after she shot to death John Bagnano on last February 26 read to the jury that will decide her fate.

During the day nearly all the witnesses who were put on the stand last Friday as Joseph Koletsky, defense counsel, fought against the inclusion as evidence of the alleged confession again testified as to what transpired at police headquarters where the girl was examined by the coroner half an hour after the shooting in front of a local theatre.

Besides Coroner Mix, the testimony of only two others who were present when Miss Macri confessed was completed today before the jury. They were former City Attorney Sheridan T. Whitaker and Miss Mildred Legge, secretary to Coroner Mix. Detective Thomas F. Reynolds, one of the two police officers who pinioned Miss Macri's arms before she could fire the last two of five shots into the body of John Bagnano was on the witness stand when Judge Christopher L. Avery adjourned court for the day. Two others who were present when Miss Macri made her first confession will be called tomorrow.

The taking of testimony was frequently delayed by verbal tilts between counsel and the court twice warned Defense Attorney Koletsky against unnecessarily prolonging the trial. One one occasion Judge Avery warned counsel for the defense that it seemed to him a great amount of time was being wasted and that he might see fit to appoint an assistant counsel to expedite matters. Koletsky questioned each witness with the purpose of showing that Miss Macri was holding something back when she made her statement. The witnesses were also asked if the girl had said anything about shooting in self defense. All of them testified that she had not.

Miss Macri appeared depressed near the end of the day's session. "I am afraid this will last forever," she is reported to have said. Another large crowd was present today. Many brought lunches and stood for hours in the long line outside the court room door.

Coroner Mix was on the witness stand until late this afternoon while he read from the typewritten statement which it took him half an hour to take from Miss Macri. In reply to questions put by State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling the witness read extracts from the statement. He testified that Miss Macri told him she had taken the revolver with which she kill Bagnano from a desk in her father's house about a week before the shooting occurred. She took the gun while members of the household were asleep at about 2 a. m., she told the coroner.

For about a week the girl looked for the man whom she claimed was the father of her baby, Lucy, she told the coroner. She said that on the day of the shooting she left her aunt's home where she had been living at about 2 p. m., and went sopping. In the heart of the city she saw Bagnano, according to the statement and followed him to the theatre building.

She followed him up the stairway to a theatrical booking agency, she told Coroner Mix, and spoke to him. There, according to the statement, the girl asked Bagnano if he wanted to help her. "Wait a while," was Bagnano's reply, the statement continued. Asked by the girl if he wanted to provide clothes for the baby Bagnano replied, "Do that all yourself," the statement said.

Bagnano told her that he was busy because he was going to sing that night, the girl's statement as related by the coroner said.

"I got mad and shot him right then," Coroner Mix quoted her today. "He put disgrace on my face."

In her confession as read to the jury Miss Macri said that she was ashamed to tell what happened on the day she was attacked by Bagnano. When he left her Bagnano said: "Do not ever tell your father and mother, or I will kill you," according to the coroner's statement.

Coroner Mix testified that when he asked the girl why she carried the revolver she said: "I wanted to tell him if he did not do as I said I would shoot him." The day of the shooting was the first one subsequent to her acquisition of the revolver upon which Miss Macri met Bagnano, she admitted in her confession.

In her confession testified to today, Miss Macri said:

"I have given him his chance. I gave it to him with all my heart. I hope he is dead. I wanted to give him the whole five shots—then I would have been satisfied." Coroner Mix said that the girl's manner when he questioned her after the shooting was "quiet, cool, calm and collected. There was no evidence of hysteria."

STATE POLICE LIKELY TO REMAIN IN WILLIMANTIC

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, May 12—There is no immediate chance for the removal from this city of the state police officers who have been called here during the crisis of the American Thread company strike, it was indicated tonight. Acting upon a resolution by Alderman Lee made at the common council meeting, held in the presence of 1,500 strikers Monday night, the police committee planned to meet with Supt. of State Police Hurley tonight.

Chief McArthur of the local police department, Supt. Hurley and the police committee, Acting Mayor George W. Hickey, chairman, and Aldermen Lee and Beebe, were to have a conference regarding the possibility of calling off the state patrol. All hopes for a conference tonight were dashed when Supt. Hurley is alleged to have flatly refused to attend the proposed meeting.

Another step which was authorized by resolution was to appeal to Gov. John H. Trumbull to withdraw the detachment of 20 state policemen from the city. The officers figured in the arrest of seven of the strikers on breach of the peace charge Tuesday and it is believed that this will strengthen their cause for a continued stay here.

LAW ENFORCEMENT TOPIC AT POLICE CONFERENCE

New York, May 12—(A. P.)—Organization and administration of law enforcement agencies in various countries of the world were discussed at the opening of the international police conference.

Captain C. E. Gower, president of the chief constables' association of England and Wales, described the liaison of the English constabulary with the metropolitan government department. As the first foreign delegate to speak, Captain Gower said that crime conditions, such as they are in England, are dealt with efficiently by the present police system.

"Each nation has its own conditions to meet," Captain Gower said, "and that end has organized its police department. As a democratic people the English are satisfied with local police control, and would resent any infringement by the national government."

With a population of 38,000,000 in England and Wales, the captain said in 1923 the police had only 71 cases of murder to prosecute.

Men of education are called to the positions of responsibility in the English police service, he asserted. They enter the service at an early age and devote their lives to it as in the military and diplomatic departments.

DEMANDS BY FRANCE FOR EVACUATION OF COLOGNE

Paris, May 12—Two notes written by M. Briand, the foreign minister one having to do with the requirements for German disarmament before Cologne is evacuated, and the other dealing with Germany's offer of a security pact, were unanimously approved by the French cabinet today.

The disarmament note is a compromise between the French and British views and may be made the text of the communication the allied council of ambassadors will send to Germany. If Germany complies with the terms there is a probability that the evacuation of the territory would take place within a few months.

M. Briand's reply to the German guarantee pact offer lays down as an essential condition of signature that Germany be first admitted to the league of nations. It also insists that such a pact must not in any way injure the rights and interests of central European states.

The note is liberal in tone, and, far from rejecting the German offer as inadequate, manifests France's desire to find a means of setting up additional guarantees of peace.

BISHOP MANNING INSISTS ON OBEDIENCE OF LAW

New York, May 12—Bishop William T. Manning of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York in addressing the 142nd annual diocesan convention today reiterated his insistent that the church's laws must be observed to the letter by clergymen in his see.

"In this church," he said, "no exercise of discipline ought ever to be necessary. It never is necessary unless some one chooses to behave in a way that is inconsistent, unlawful and disruptive. So long as I remain your bishop I shall do my best to stand for the fullest degree of lawful liberty, but I shall also do my best to uphold and maintain the teachings and standards of this church, and I know that you will give me your moral and spiritual support in this."

WILLIMANTIC

The curtains in the local mills of the American Thread Company remain drawn. The strikers are holding firm and word was given out at headquarters that but fourteen people went to work Tuesday morning between 6:30 and 7 o'clock. The Thread Company officials are withholding any statements. E. Kent Hubbard, president of the State Manufacturers' Association was in this city this week conferring with the officials. It is understood that after this week when the company is going through the formality of having its mills open and under power the concern can take whatsoever step it chooses. If the local mills are closed the form of insurance carried through the Association pays the overhead expenses for the upkeep of the local plant, while the work previously performed here can be done in its other mill's, either in New England or in the South.

The alleged assault of one member of the family of Stephen Case and the arrest of Mrs. Katie Chebus and five others by the state officers marked the demonstration Tuesday morning. The picket line was considerably thinner in the vicinity of No. 4 Mill due to the fact that the imported firemen are now being housed within the mill gates. Organizers Miss Mary Kelleher and Edward F. Callahan led the march up Main street to the Gem Theatre, where the strikers packed the building for their mass meeting. Organizer Callahan was the speaker. In mentioning the coming of the state police to Willimantic he stated that the procedure of meeting the common council Monday night to determine who had brought the officers here was well taken. He complimented Acting Mayor Hickey for the stand which he took in announcing his loyalty to the city. Senator John H. Powers of Cumberland, R. I. is scheduled as the speaker at the mass meeting this (Wednesday) morning.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, superintendent of Norwich State Tuberculosis Sanatorium told of the fight being waged in Connecticut against the spreading of the White Plague, at the regular meeting of Willimantic Rotary Club, held Tuesday noon at the Y. M. C. A. President John Ahern presided. Minutes were read by Secretary Pro Tem Gerard E. Loisell. In his talk Dr. Campbell touched upon the two outstanding points of the work, the material and the humanitarian. Regarding the material, he stressed the need of additional quarters at some of the five asylums conducted in the state, two of which are for children and three for adults. There are about 1,000 beds in the five institutions but as in the case of the Seaside sanatorium at Niantic, a child must wait approximately one year in order to gain entrance. Delay in treatment is often fatal and this condition should be overcome. Dr. Campbell illustrated his subject by pathetic word pictures of some of the cases which have been brought to his attention. The per centage of those cured is remarkably large as the result of carefully carried out modern methods of treatment.

The state police made the arrests and the six were taken before Judge Frank H. Foss, of the police court. On request of Attorney Harry S. The cases will be heard Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock and all those arrested were released on their own recognisance, in the care of Miss Amy L. Hooker, president of the Willimantic Textile council.

Mrs. Katie Chabus was charged with assault and breach of the peace. It was alleged that she attacked a young woman who was one of four being escorted to work by a quartette of state police. "At the business meeting which followed P. S. Hill, of Willimantic, reported a balance of $57.64 in the treasury and commented on the efficiency of the one cent tax per member, which left a balance in the treasury of $81.54 after last year's bills were paid. The election of officers resulted as follows: Moderator, Archibald W. Buchanan, Mansfield Center; vice moderator, Harold T. Field, Daryville; scribe, T. O. Wahn, Ashington; assistant, Miss Ellen Keyes, Pomfret; treasurer, P. S. Hill, Willimantic; executive committee, Rev. William Fryling, Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones, Rev. J. G. Graham advisory committee scribe, Rev. William Swainson, Rev. George A. Barker; committee on benevolences Rev. W. B. Williams, Mrs. R. C. Paine, Rev. J. R. Pratt; committee on rural life, Rev William C. Prentis, Plainfield; narrator, Miss Edwina Whitney, Storrs.

An invitation was extended from the church at Dayville for the next annual meeting. Rev. A. E. Patton, of Torrington, spoke on "Psychology with a soul and Religion with a God," saying that there are two things a man can do supremely. He can laugh, even in adversity, and he can "reach out his hand among the stars." He was followed by Rev. W. M. Scudder who gave an address on some modern aspects of missions, outlining the tremendous sifting our civilization is getting today, of the tremendous problems which the United States as a nation has to face and the problem of the missionary of the white race who is being charged in every country with being the friend of capitalism and with being a discriminater in the matter of race; and quoting the statement of a young Turk said to have been made to Dr. Campbell, "If you will live your religion we will all follow you!" After the parting hymn benediction was pronounced by Rev. William Fryling, of Wauregan, who was moderator for the evening.

Auto-matic HEALTH

SOCONY is "Standard"

"LIFE these days is a high-speed affair and the gear ratio is getting higher. Difficult business to keep one's footing, to be free from worry, to guard a generous measure of abundant health.

"Sometimes I think the automobile is the greatest single agent of preventive medicine that we have in this hurly-burly age—that the mere ability to pack up at will and hit the long trail into the peace and quiet of the country, is a gift that few of us realize, and too few take advantage of.

"That's why I like to preach the gospel of Auto-matic Health—the best life assurance in the world. Nothing like the sun in your face and the wind at your back to keep the body fit and the courage soaring.

DANIELSON

Tuesday afternoon, at the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood on Academy street, funeral services for Mrs. Mary A. Spooner, 53, who died at Norwich, were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. Burial was in the Parker Hill cemetery near North Sterling.

Foreman Fred Shippee and a crew of men in the employ of the town of Killingly began Tuesday afternoon the work of oiling streets of the borough. This work has been unavoidably delayed for more than a week by rainy and threatening weather. A tank car of 10,000 gallons capacity is on a siding here and from this the oil is being taken.

Bulletin agents here and in surrounding towns gave up much of their morning, Tuesday to explaining failure to deliver Norwich Bulletins to hundreds of subscribers who failed to get their papers. As was told in The Bulletins when they did arrive here at noon, the delay in delivery was due to an unavoidable accident that disabled the press.

In the recent obituary of Mrs. Lucy Danielson Hutchins in this column it should have been stated that James Danielson, not Elisha, was the original settler of the name in what is now Danielson, he coming here in 1707.

At Wauregan, road signs that have been erected are excellent guide marks for motorists not familiar with this immediate territory. The signs have just been put in place at the junction of the state highways near the Wauregan school, and give directions to all important points from that locality.

Dorothy Cudworth, three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cudworth, broke her leg Tuesday morning when she fell from the veranda at the rear of the new home owned by the Aetkin Reed company, into which the family moved the past week. The child was taken to Lowell, former home of the Cudworth family, for attention at a hospital.

Approximately an inch of rain fell in this territory in the storms of Monday early morning and late afternoon. This rain does not, however, make up the shortage that has existed for nearly a year. Streams and lakes continue to be well below their normal levels for this time of year.

There was a heavy carry-over of seasoned cord wood in teritory hereabouts this spring. This is in contrast to the shortage of such wood in the previous winter. Heavy cutting last fall and summer produced a surplus that the market has not absorbed, though there is a steady but diminished demand throughout the year. Hundreds of cords of good wood are piled up within a few miles of Danielson, waiting buyers.

Records of the selectmen show that filling of streets and highways in Killingly, at the expense of the town, has been a profitable venture. Highway surfaces that have been oiled stand up better and, consequently, do not require as much expenditure for upkeep as do highways that are not oiled. The cost of the oil is far and away offset by the reduction in repair costs on oil treated highway surfaces.

Henri I. Baer has returned to his East Killingly place—the Palisade kennels—and is to remain here, or several years M. Baer, while continuing to operate the Palisade kennels, also has had kennels at Rosedale, L. I., and from that point, as well as from East Killingly, has distributed police dogs throughout the country. His kennels and dogs at Rosedale attracted much attention and they have in instances been featured in motion pictures and in magazine articles. Mr. Baer will continue to devote his time to his kennel business, which is one of the most important ventures of its kind in the east.

Rummage sale by ladies of Baptist church Friday and Saturday of this week, at Railroad square.—Adv.

A Maybasket social for Monday evening next is the event scheduled for Killingly grange, which has been very active the past few months and has increased its membership to over 140, the largest in its history. A Children's night programme is planed by the grange for the evening of June 1.

This (Wednesday) afternoon brings the baseball game scheduled to be played here between Killingly and Putnam High school teams. This game will be of interest not only to the students of both schools, but also to many of the town's people.

Such progress has been made on the completion of the new Longo block that one of the stores the building provides will be opened the coming week end. The other stores are to be hurried to completion and also the four apartments the building provides on the second floor.

As part of the railroad company's safety campaign, signs warning against walking on the tracks and other trespassing have ben erected at vantage points along the route of the New Haven road through Danielson. The company is especially anxious to discourage the use of the tracks by children.

The most meritorious essays written by pupils of Killingly's schools on The Flag Code are to be put on display at the library. Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R. has made available for distribution in the schools, pamphlets setting forth the correct use of the flag, and it is on this information and all other available facts pertaining to the subject that the essays will be based.

Not all, it appears, are pleased with the prospective statute that will fix the state's tax on gasoline at two cents per gallon in Connecticut. The explanation that the man who uses the highways most will pay most for the privilege is logical, but the antipathy to the increased tax appears to be the natural objection to the increase in any and all kinds of taxes.

On Thursday and Friday of this week our store in the Keystone block will be closed. On Saturday comes the opening of our new store in the Longo block. The Alice-Eleanor Shop.—Adv.

Killingly High school has again been certified for a period of four years by the New England College Entrance Certification board, the certification privilege admitting graduates of Killingly High school to many colleges without examination.

Though she has disposed of the Cyr building here, Mrs. Oscar Trudeau is to continue in business in the building where she has been established for many years.

Louis A. Hahn of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Tuesday.

The Service battery, 192nd F. A. will act as escort in the procession to be held here on Memorial day.

A man who spoke of "Williamsville" here Tuesday became an object of special interest. Goodyear has replaced the former name for so many years that it has been practically forgotten by the present generation.

Patriotic organizations here are engaged in perfecting a list of the soldier dead buried in cemeteries in and near Danielson. A correct list is desired and all aid to that end will be appreciated.

Borough assessors are now receiving lists of property taxable in the borough, a matter that interested taxpayers will need give attention to during the present month.

PUTNAM

At the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, held at Putnam Inn Monday evening, Thomas H. deCoudres was elected president by acclamation. Other officers are; First vice-president, E. C. Rogers; second, C. A. Richard; third, Otto E. Wulf; treasurer, C. A. Boyce; directors, Judge F. F. Russell, Willis B. Carroll, Walter N. King, Louis E. Law, Alex Gilman, C. A. Boyce, Arthur E. Smith. The first four have been directors. Alex Gilman, the retiring president, was put on the directorate and Mr. Boyce, treasurer of the Cargill Trust Co., and Mr. Smith, cashier of the Citizens' National bank, are new members. They are elected for a term of three years. The terms of one-third of the directors expire every year. Those who hold over are; Miss Katherine Byrne, Charles E. Dean, F. O. Marion, A. Newton Vaughn, Daniel J. Byrne, Walter J. Bartlett, George L. Padgett, E. C. Rogers, Otto E. Wulf, Francis Metcalf. There was a large representative attendance at the meeting which was held in the dining room of The Inn and was preceded by a supper. This was served under the watchful eye of E. C. Rogers. The menu was everything that could be desired and the service was above criticism.

A resolution was passed by an enthusiastic vote of the members of the chamber extending congratulations to Mr. Rogers on his reassuming the management of the Inn.

The speaker of the evening was Alfred C. Moreau, of the Hartford Credit Rating Bureau. Mr. Moreau gave an illuminating talk on the value of a credit bureau and the manner in which it is conducted. He was given a vote of thanks.

Arthur S. Macdonald, the secretary in his report directed attention to the fact that the opening of two new banks was an event in the business history of Putnam. It was not to be passed by without suitable recognition. It was the Chamber of Commerce that furnished the medium through which this recognition was manifested and brought to the attention of the community of which Putnam is the natural business and financial center.

It was emphasized that after a serious depression Putnam had come back—had arrived. The plan to observe the event was unanimously endorsed and it was decided to hold Come Back Day in Putnam.

The observances developed into a two days' event and centered about the Manufacturers' Exhibition in the state armory, Friday and Saturday, December 5th and 6th.

The venture was a success from every angle.

The finance committee for Come Back Days had collected over a thousand dollars from business men of the city to be used in a publicity campaign and it was decided to make the Trade in Putnam campaign a follow-up campaign for Come Back Days.

A certified Bargain Day and a Dollar Day were successfully put on during the year.

The annual band concerts, with dancing on the square, were again enjoyed by hundreds of people last summer.

In one instance at least a new industry would have been lost to the city had not the chamber stepped in and help iron out several obstacles that it was necessary to overcome.

Matters concerning highways have been taken up with the state highway department; concerning public parks with the state park commission.

Had it not been for the Chamber of Commerce activity there would be a scant observance of Memorial Day last year. It was also with the Chamber's co-operation that the new bridge over the Little River was successfully dedicated as a memorial to World War veterans.

George L. Padgett, chairman of the nominating committee, made a short statement in which he sai dthat it was a little unfair to ask a committee of three to pick out the names of officers, but that the committee, Armand J. Lizotte, Walter N. King and himself had given the matter serious consideration and he hoped their recommendations would meet the approval of the members of the body. He also recalled the reorganization of the Chamber twelve years ago and then touched briefly on the good it had accomplished.

He said:

"Read the list of your officers for the past year—they are representative citizens who have responded promptly, untiringly, unselfishly to every call that would advance or protect the interests of their home town."

Mr. Gilman, the retiring president, asserted his belief that the Chamber of Commerce was an actual necessity to any town and that Putnam especially needed it.

He then introduced his successor, Mr. deCoudres, who said that he was glad to be associated with the representative men and women who made up the membership.

Both Mr. Gilman and Mr. deCoudres were heartily applauded.

At a conference of the board of directors after the meeting it was decided to make a thorough and systematic canvass of the city for new members.

President deCoudres was authorized to appoint two committees, one to be headed by Walter N. King, the other by Armand Lizotte to make a membership canvass. The other members will be appointed later and arrangements mapped out.

A motion was adopted to co-operate with and aid in any way possible the members of the Headquarters Co., 43rd division, National Guard, in a Field Day to be held June 6.

BOZRAHVILLE COUNCIL OBSERVED MOTHER'S DAY

The Bozrahville council of Jewish Women fittingly observed Mother's Day Sunday afternoon at Palmer's hall, Fitchville, when an appropriate programme of vocal and piano selections, speeches, poems, readings, recitations, etc., was successfully carried out with the aid of the children of the town. There was a good sized attendance to take part in the observance of the day. American flags and varicolored flowers were used in decorating the hall and set upon the tables were May baskets filled with goodies, supplying an added tint to the hall.

The speaker of the day, Mrs. Nathan Gilman, in her opening remarks, greeted and extended a hearty welcome to all, expressing her pleasure at having been accorded the privilege to take part in the affair in honor of Mother's Day, which is morally and spiritually uplifting. Continuing Mrs. Gilman said, we are here assembled to give expression of our love and reverence for our mothers, thus setting a worthy and noble example to our children and to our community. I feel that the fine sentiment thus brought out is deserving of our greatest efforts. To our children I would say that we asknowledge our great debt, not only by wearing carnations, or offering of gifts, but by the more spiritual token of sincere appreciation of trying to be good obedient children, by striving to become good and worthy men and women. Then you will fulfill her fondest hopes and aspirations. That will be the greatest tribute you can pay to her, who tenderly cares and relentlessly sacrifices an eternal faith in your welfare, is deserving of your deepest appreciation.

Preceding Mrs. Gilman's address the audience joined in singing the Star Spangled Banner, the opening number of the programme. This was followed by the reading of the proclamation and an extract from the congressional bill, inaugurating Mother's Day. The remainder of the programme was given as follows: Singing of council songs to different airs, by audience; songs pertaining to Mother's Day, by children of community; vocal solos and piano selections by the Misses Jeanne and Rae Cantor, of Hartford; piano selections by Miss Celezonsky; Miss Goldie Fishbone and Miss Frieda Kafkaff; presentation of gifts to mothers, by children; songs, Atikvah and America, by congregation; salute to white carnations, by audience; children's prayer to mothers, Miss Edith Zisman, of Hartford.

CAMPAIGN FOR SAFETY

From now on until the first of October there will be the greatest use of the highways. More automobiles will be driven over them and they will not only go more frequently but the number of visitors will be greater. The height of the motoring will be reached during that period.

In recognition of that fact, and knowing that it is during that period that the greatest use is made of railroad crossings, the American Railway association is to conduct a campaign, commencing the first of June, for the purpose of bringing about a reduction in the number of crossing accidents. The idea is not exactly new for it was employed last year, but its accomplishments were such that it warranted continuance.

Such a campaign is based upon recognition of the fact that most of the crossing accidents are avoidable. They occur because care is not exercised, when it is known that there is danger. Last year there was an increase of about 17 per cent. in the number of motor vehicles and yet there was a decrease in the number of crossing accidents. It is fair to presume that the campaign was responsible for this worthwhile decrease. And having accomplished the saving of life and property represented by that reduction there is certainly justification for setting out to do as well if not better this summer. The railroads are not to blame for most of the accidents and yet their efforts to prevent them are most commendable.

During such a campaign much is accomplished through publicity. Posters are used as additional warnings and autoists are confronted in more ways with the perils of the crossings and the penalty of carelessness. It might be believed that the appalling grade crossing accidents would furnish one of the greatest object lessons that could be desired, but it is apparent that while they may serve temporarily to act as a deterrent they are too quickly forgotten by those who most need better judgment at such points. Whatever campaigns can be conducted that will mean the saving of life and the prevention of injuries are certainly needed.

HINDENBURG IN OFFICE

Germany has elected and inaugurated its second president. It is now President Hindenburg, who is no stronger to the German people and who will henceforth bear the responsibility of [illegible] an important part of the reconstruction period. Germany [illegible] announcing its difficulties. It is by no means out of the woods, but with the government committed to the conscientious carrying out of the provisions of the Dawes plan eyes must naturally be centered upon the manner in which the new president steps into his duties. This is all the more true because of the part which he played in the late war and the belief which has prevailed that he was the choice of the monarchists for the particular purpose of ending the republic.

President Hindenburg has been elected by a large plurality of the people and despite such fears as have been felt and manifested his statements have indicated that it is his intent to be as loyal to the present government in his new post of responsibility as he was to the former, one in a different but nevertheless vital position.

After taking the oath of office, which included his vow to preserve the constitution and laws of the commonwealth, to perform his duties conscientiously and to deal justly with all, he issued a manifesto to the people in which he again promised to devote his energies to guarding the constitution and the laws. Thus does he open a term of office that comes at a critical time for his country. He apparently gives due consideration to the fact that he is under test. He has endeavored to dispell suspicions and his appeal is for a fair trial. That is of course what he is entitled to, that is what the voters of Germany have opened the way for him to get, and he as well as others must be conscious of the fact that on the showing he makes will depend the immediate future of Germany. He has the chance to make good and be of real constructive benefit to that country.

PRINTING MORE BILLS

When the statement is made that the treasury department has ordered a large amount of special paper and will start the first of July to increase the production of paper money, it is not to be supposed that that there is going to be any effort made to outdo the printing press production of currency to which European countries have been resorting.

Uncle Sam has been making a study of paper money and it is found that unless it is allowed to "season" after printing for several months its life is considerably reduced, and it has to be frequently renewed. Because of the demand for the small bills it has gotten so that no time for the seasoning has been permitted. It was impossible to get a surplus of bills ahead for seasoning so constant was the call for new money. This was due to the fact that where seasoned bills used to last from 14 to 15 months, the bills which were quickly put into circulation after printing last but little more than half that time.

Had the public taken kindly to the idea of keeping the silver dollars in circulation some help would have been obtained. The necessity for so much paper would have been overcome, while more could have been piled up for seasoning. Also it would have meant a saving due to the reduction in the cost of printing. But it failed, and the alternative is that the treasury department must proceed to print and stack, faster than new money is called for.

With more money in circulation and with the costs higher there is a big demand for the small bills in the conduct of business. That demand must be supplied, even though it does mean an additional expense. It is to meet this that preparations for increased paper money production are now being made.

It doesn't however mean inflation. Back of every bill that goes out there will be ample security, as there is now. Every dollar will be worth 100 cents, but the plan should result in extending the life of the particular pieces of long green which are exchangeable for others of similar value.

TAKING THE RIGHT VIEW

When the author of the pollution bill speaking in the house declared that it was not perfect but a step in the right direction, it is evident that his attitude in regard to making a start on this problem in Connecticut was shared by the representatives.

The adoption of the bill in the house should be followed by similar action in the senate, which would mean no greater progress than was made by the legislature of two years ago, but with such action on the legislation there are reasons for believing that Governor Trumbull would not stand in the way of having it go into operation.

Had the bill of two years ago been signed by the governor at that time it is not to be supposed that the stream pollution of this state would have been elimination before this time. There would however been a start made, and that is what will be accomplished through the Wheeler bill now before the general assembly. And it is making a start that is necessary. The state might fool away a quarter of a century debating this matter in the hopes of getting a perfect bill adopted by the legislature, and then not succeed.

The need is to make a start and as time goes on and different phases of the problem arsie proceed to get nearer to the perfect by making the needed changes, and in the meantime there will be a check placed upon the amount of pollution, preparations for even greater reductions and the conditions of the streams would be growing better instead of worse. If there is an attempt made to wait for a perfect pollution bill nothing will ever be accomplished.

ANOTHER LIPTON CHALLENGE

When Sir Thomas Lipton was last in this country he gave the impression that he would challenge for the America's cup next year, if information which comes from abroad is correct he has not changed his mind.

Sir Thomas has made many tries and met with many failures. He is nevertheless one of the best of sportsmen. That is no secret and for that reason any announcement to the effect that he is to send a contender for the cup is bound to enliven the interest in such a contest.

The war caused an interruption in international yacht racing, but interest will be easily revived. Its absence has created a longing for such a contest.

The war caused an interruption in international yacht racing but, interest will be easily revived. Its absence has created a longing for such a contest, for even though there are not many who can enjoy the full pleasure of such a contest there is nevertheless countrywide interest in such a matching of skill from the designing and construction of the boats to the handling of them under the various conditions that can be anticipated.

Not only will such a challenge key up the yachting interests on this side of the water but it will be the signal for bending all efforts to providing a defender that can be expected to keep the much coveted cup on this side of the water. Sir Thomas has been defeated in his ambitions so many times that most anyone else would have long since before discouraged. He has nevertheless got much pleasure out of the contests, seen some magnificent racing and been frank to admit the superiority of the winner quite as often as it was necessary. At the same time he has gotten a large amount of publicity out of the ventures, and that if he were to commit himself he would probably admit it has been worth considerable.

THE SEWING CIRCLE

"Clothes, clothes, clothes!" exclaimed the young matron with the auburn wave, impatiently. Two swift motions of her hands rolled her sewing into a wad and she thrust it violently into the apricot-colored silk bag in her lap. "I get so sick of buying 'em and fixing 'em and mending 'em that I often wish I could spend my days in a uniform like the letter carrier, for instance.

"Now when he gets up in the morning he knows perfectly well what he is going to put on and he knows he is going to keep it on all day. He doesn't have to worry whether the beads on his blouse are the right shade to go with embroidery on his gloves or for fear there's a run in the leg of his best fawn stockings." She glared around the sewing circle invitingly.

"It's no worse than food, food, food," burst out the newest member, who had been keeping house a year and considered herself a veteran. "Honestly, my whole life seems to be set to a chorus of 'steak, chops, roast; chop, roast, steak,' until my mind aches. You just don't know—"

"Don't we?" interrupted the young matron with the auburn wave, crisply; she glanced around the circle of silent listeners their faces all eloquent of sympathetic understanding, but calm with the calmness of struggle and quest. "Most of us here have been doing the home making act for ten years at least, with food doing a solo theme. We know what you mean, oh, believe me. If you let it get on your nerves, that way lies madness. While we live we eat, and that's that."

"But Mrs. Jones, says," argued the newest member, "that modern women should not be hampered with petty household tasks. She says she herself has a soul above the fettering duties most women bear."

The newest member was so interested in her recital that she failed to notice the deep silence on all sides. "I don't exactly know how she works it out," she went on, "but she must have some clever system, because they do seem to spend a lot of money and my husband says they are really not well off at all.

"By the way," she added in surprise, "isn't Mrs. Jones coming today?"

"Perhaps not," said the young matron, carefully. "I fancy Mrs. Jones is not a permanent member of our circle. She asked to join, you know, but she seems to have—er—society column ambitions and artistic leanings and they both beknille her away from our quiet midst. I don't know why Celeste isn't here, though," she added in a different tone of voice, the fluffy-haired blond being a popular member and her absences noted with regret.

"Oh, she's gone to a matinee or something," said the newest member. "Now there is a girl, if you like, who doesn't seem to be a creature of cares. I'll bet she never made a salad or sewed on a button in her life. She always has a look of utter luxury."

"Oh, Celeste is a fussy old thing about her clothes," said the young matron, affectionately. "Real lace in her handmade lingerie and all that, but she's done the family mending for many years and I've known her to get dinner for a party of thirteen, when the cook was sick and after five or six hours over the gas stove to drift into the drawing room at 7 o'clock in white chiffon and the family pearls and greet the guests as casually as if she had just remembered they were coming."

"Hush," said the newest member. "Here they are. How do, Mrs. Jones."

"So sorry to be late," cooed Mrs. Jones, removing a white kid glove that was ripped in two places, "but a friend sent me roses and I had to arrange them in my boudoir. The lovely things almost begged me to stay with them."

"What kept you, Celeste?" the young matron with the auburn wave demanded of the fluffy-haired blond, who was struggling with galoshes.

"What?" said the fluffy haired-blond, absent-mindedly, as she came up for breath. "Oh! Why our houseman has gone off on a bat so I had to take ashes out of the furnace and put in coal."—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

Richard Lander, the Servant, a Great Explorer

No dime novel ever told a more exciting story than that of Richard Lander, who went through a series of most incredible adventures, achieved great feats of exploration, and finally met death at the age of thirty, as the result of a desperate encounter with African savages.

Most adventurers start their career in early manhood; Richard Lander started his in childhood. Being poor, and having to work for a living, he became a servant. Now it happened that he found employment with a man who was about to travel to the West Indies. He was then only eleven years old, but he was strong, and willing to do anything or to go anywhere. Therefore he said good-bye to his father, who kept a little inn in the south of England, and set off on the high seas. For the next 19 years he was a wanderer over the face of the earth, and particularly an explorer of savage regions. He had no other training than the taining that he gained in his work as servant. He had no education, no scientific knowledge, no exact information, but he did have an absolute courage, and a willingness to do anything. He was the sort of man who "sees it through."

Finally he went, still as a servant, to Africa. The man whom he served in the miasma-filled jungles of unknown Africa died. Then arose the great explorer—the new man—for the servant carried on the master's work, penetrated the depths of the dangerous forests, dared the savages, and able to use no instrument except a small compass, mapped unknown regions, brought back the most valuable accounts, handed over his master's papers, added to them what he himself had observed, and returned in triumph to civilization. That was one of the great feats of exploration.

It is no wonder that the British gave him full honor, later awarded him the Royal Medal, and appointed him to do further work of a similar nature. For Richard Lander there was no such thing as luck; he won his way by sheer desire to do the thing that needed to be done. Again he went into the dark forests, among the fierce tribes, but this time as master. He went where no white man had ever before gone. But his way through steaming jungles, slept in the midst of a thousand perils, followed unknown rivers in crude canoes, provided his food from the country and with an iron will bent all men to his purpose. He mapped the river Niger, and made innumerable fine observations of the region and of the natives. He was captured, set free, beset by storms, threatened with fevers, and in serious danger every minute. Finally, in 1834, when he was 30, he was killed while paddling a canoe on a river that led through a savage region.

Richard Lander was a real man.

Stories That Recall Others

Not the "Cat's Pajamas."

Janice had gone to the office with mother after father one evening. When he got into the car he said: "Hello, darling, are you the 'cat's pajamas this evening'?"

"No," said Janice, whose feelings evidently had been hurt. "I'm sweet." The crazy language of 1925 seemed much too modern for Janice.

Correct!

A certain teacher was propounding questions of various import to her eager pupils. Some of the questions naturally "stumped" some of the children but there was always an answer to each interrogation.

"What is a circular letter?" she asked with characteristic dignity and with a feeling that she had at least found a term which could not be solved without considerable mental exertion. But among her pupils were boys at the age, when, literally and figuratively speaking, "boys will be boys." Up went the hand of a lad whose face beamed with an apparent feeling that here was a chance to score a hit.

"O," was the lad's responsive answer.

It was too much for the teacher and mirth conquered dignity.
